PENNYPACKER'S COSSACKS.

In the early morning of June 8th, the state constabulary, the mine officials and strike breakers under the direction of the J. & C. Coal and Iron Co. at Ernest, which is a branch of the Rochester and Pittsburgh Coal & Iron Co., murderously fired upon a body of citizens numbering about one hundred, lead by a brass band composed largely of boys, the youngest being 13 years of age, and shot six of the men in the parade, one of whom, Nicholas Macher, died within a short time. Five others were wounded, Macher, and the others seriously wounded all being shot in the back.

The verdict of the corner's jury sitting on the body of Nicola Macher in the borough of Indiana, Indiana county, on June 14, 1906, is as follows: "We find that Mr. Nicola Macher died from a gun shot wound received while marching through the village of Ernest, in the parade headed by a brass band on the morning of Friday, June 8th, 1906, that the said Nicola Macher with the others in the parade was an orderly, sober body of men marching on the highway; that the shooting was done by sheriff's deputies, police officials or officers of the coal company; that owing to the insufficient evidence jury cannot determine who fired the shot that caused the death of Nicola Macher."

THE Blossburg advertiser says: A Chicago man, after 21 years of silence, has just recovered his power of speech. Evidently he read the beef report and it made it him so mad he had to say something.

It must require considerable nerve for a corporation that gives all of its job printing to a job office and then asks the newspaper office to print and circulate, at its own expense that which will enlighten the public on its business and advertise it as well. Why not get a circular at the job office and post on the trees. Newspaper men should waken up to this sort of imposition. If a newspaper office is good enough to give publicity to a business, it ought to be good enough for a return of courtesy.—Clearfield Raftmen's Journal.

A LITTLE story has been going the rounds of the newspapers for the past few days, saying that some coal companies are going to introduce cats in the mines with the hope that their presence will prevent the ravages of the mine rats. It is undoubtedly true that the mine rats destroy considerable around the stables underground, not only in the feed line, but they cut and chew harness and make the mules restless during the night. Several cats around a stable at night might have a tendency to frighten the rodents away causing less destruction and less expense to the coal companies.

Valuation for Road Tax.

A letter has been sent out by State Highway Commissioner Hunter to the county commissioners throughout the state, calling their attention to the provisions of the new road law, which makes it the duty of the commissioners to furnish the supervisors of each township, on the first Monday of March, with the latest valuation of the township property for county purposes. It is on this valuation that the supervisors are authorized to levy the road tax for the ensuing year.

Get the Best Always.

It's the same with paint as with anything else. It always pays to get the best. The trouble is to know what is best. In paint we can tell you in a way that you will readily understand. With every gallon of Patton Sun Proof paint we give you a written guarantee good for five years. Could anything be fairer than that? If you are now or will soon be in need of paint, come in and let us talk it over with you.

BINDER & STARRETT.

WORK OF THE COURTS.

On the train himself. W. J. Brooley, prosecutor in the case and a son of the man alleged to have been murdered, followed Mr. Smetzer on the stand. He said his father was 68 years old at the time of his death, and had always been healthy and of a rugged constitution. He testified as to his father's condition during the time the sick man was at his house before being taken to the hospital. He described a number of encounters he had with the defendant calculated to make him believe his father had been foully dealt with.

Mrs. James Brooley, the estranged wife of the dead man, testified as to her husband's habits and health. John Brooley was the best witness that could have been produced for himself. For two and one-half hours the old gray haired man sat in the witness chair with a sturdiness that forbade confusion. The commonwealth made every effort to get the old man tangled in the straightforward story he had related of the feeling existing between himself and his brother; their relations, their agreements and their disputes, without varying in the least particular.

"Jim an' me was not on very good terms," he said, "but we never made our business the business of other people. We kept our difficulties to ourselves. We did not speak together for over a year before his death, but I had nothin' agin Jim. He knocked me down once, but I walked away from him. I didn't want to get in no quarrel with him. I just wanted to keep away from him, that's all."

It was shown that Brooley purchased the box of "rough on rats" after the death of his brother. Several witnesses were heard for the defense, whose evidence was very much in favor of the prisoner and aided materially in the finding of the jury.

Attorney Rose submitted the case without argument, relying, as he said, upon the court's charge to the jury. The court's charge to the jury was concluded at 5:25 o'clock Saturday afternoon. The evidence in the case was reviewed briefly and the statutes governing the crime of murder were explained to the jury. Before the clock in the big tower had clanged the hour of six the jury filed in and polled. The verdict was anticipated. "We find the defendant not guilty," John Brooley smiled again as he did during his arraignment for trial. There was nothing of triumph in his manner. But there was an expression of serenity on his wrinkled countenance that seemed to belong there to one of his age.

Leon Roosles, the man accused of having murdered a fellow countryman at Hastings February 2 of this year, and who was allowed to plead guilty to murder in the second degree, was Saturday night sentenced to spend 13 years in the Western penitentiary.

WHEREAS, by satisfactory evidence presented to the undersigned, it has been made to appear that "THE GRANGE NATIONAL BANK OF PATTON," in the town of Patton, in the County of Cambria, and State of Pennsylvania, has complied with all the provisions of the Statutes of the United States, required to be complied with before an association shall be authorized to commence the business of Banking. NOW THEREFORE, I, Thomas P. Kane, Deputy and Acting Comptroller of the Currency do hereby certify that "THE GRANGE NATIONAL BANK," in the town of Patton, in the County of Cambria, and the State of Pennsylvania, is authorized to commence the business of Banking as provided in Section Fifty One Hundred and Sixty-nine, of the Revised Statutes of the United States. IN TESTIMONY WHEREOF witness my Hand and Seal of Office this twenty-fourth day of May, 1906. T. P. KANE, Deputy and Acting Comptroller of the Currency.

Charter Granted.

A charter was granted last week at Ebensburg to the Riverside Athletic Association, of Spangler. The petition for incorporation was presented by Attorney Philip N. Shettig. It is signed by fifteen of the most prominent men in Spangler, each one of whom owns four shares of stock of the par value of $25, making up the $1,500 capital invested, all of which is paid in. The men who may be spoken of as promoters of the scheme are Edward S. Allen, Thomas B. McClain, Squire I. N. Rodkey and John L. Van Pelt.

Cyclone Franks. A traveler in the west, the Rev. C. T. Brady, says that of all the manifestations of power he ever witnessed, from an earthquake down, a cyclone is the most appalling. The midnight blackness of the funnel, the lightning darkness of the funnel, the lightning darkness of the funnel, the lightning darkness of the funnel, the lightning darkness of the funnel.

Curious Mexican Laws. They have some very curious criminal laws in Mexico. For instance, it is twice as much of an offense to mutilate the face of a woman as that of a man. The law seems to be based on the idea that a woman's best possession is her beauty and that to mar it does her a greater injury.

An Impudent Fraud. An impudent fraud was perpetrated upon a Manchester bank by one of its customers, who opened an account with some few hundreds of pounds. The man, after a few weeks, drew two checks, each within a pound or so of his balance, and, selecting a busy day, presented himself at one end of the counter, while an accomplice, when he saw that his friend's check had been cashed, immediately presented his own to a cashier at the other end. Both cashiers referred the checks to the ledger clerk, who, thinking the same cashier had asked him twice, said "right" to both checks. The thieves were never caught.

How to Give a Cat Medicine. A New York gentleman has a very fine Angora cat, and so fine a specimen of her kind that she is famous in a large circle of fashionable folk. She is not rugged in health, yet she cannot be persuaded to take physic. It has been put in her milk, it has been mixed with her meat, it has even been rudely and violently rubbed in her mouth, but never has she been deluded or forced into swallowing any of it.

Advertising

consists simply in presenting before the people the goods you have to sell in an intelligent manner, whether it is a house and lot or a pair of shoes. It is too late at this day to expatiate on the merits of advertising. That has been demonstrated so often that iteration is futile.

Everybody now days knows that advertising pays. The main question is, what medium to use? Advertising experts long ago settled it by declaring that newspaper advertising was by far the most effective and brings better returns than any other extant. The merchants of this section long ago declared that better results were obtained by using the COURIER than by any other means. It is read every week by hundreds of families and goes into the homes of the majority of the people of Northern Cambria county.

The rates are low, just and equitable—one price to all and the small advertiser gets just as good a rate as the large one. If your business needs a tonic, come in and let us talk the matter over with you or send us word and we will have a representative call on you and explain everything about our plan. You may do business without advertising, but you are certain to do more by advertising. It is an investment that will repay you an hundred fold. We will prepare your copy and take complete charge of your advertising campaign, however large or small, without extra cost.
