Many Eyes Are Ruined

Industrial Body Plans Code Compelling Employers to Provide Goggles.

HARRISBURG.—The number of eyes lost by workers in industry during the first two months of 1921 was 132, exceeding the losses of other parts of the body by approximately 100 per cent., according to a report of the Bureau of Compensation, Department of Labor and Industry, announced yesterday.

The Industrial Board is now preparing a code making it mandatory for employers to provide goggles for workers, who are required to wear them to prevent the excessive number of eye accidents in industry.

The number of hands lost during January and February came to 68, about half the number of eyes that were lost. The remainder of the accidents took a toll of 15 legs, 17 arms and 30 feet.

Fatal accidents during February came to 155, according to this report. The total number for 1921 thus far is 351, it is shown. Of the fatalities last month, 54 were in industry, 32 in public service and 69 in mines.

The Bureau received reports from 25,232 cases during January and February of this year, it was announced.
