AMERICAN LEGION NEWS

With the banner of the national commander of the American Legion fluttering above the flags of all nations, the liner George Washington sailed from Hoboken Wednesday, bearing a party of 250 members of the Legion who will revisit the old battle scenes of France as guests of the French government. The party will land at Cherbourg and will spend three weeks in France, returning to the United States about September 15. The pilgrimage is headed by John G. Thery, national commander of the Legion and among the delegates representing every state department of the veterans' organization are Henry W. Lindsley, of Texas, and Franklin D. Oher, of Philadelphia, past national commanders.

The State Federation of Labor in Oklahoma has invited the American Legion to send representatives to its next convention. Courtland M. Faquay, national executive committee man from Oklahoma, will represent the Legion. "The organizations are working to advance the same fundamental principles and the cementing of the friendship will add strength to both," said Edgar Featon, head of the state labor organization.

When Mrs. Ida Crouch Hazlett, socialist speaker was threatened with violence at Los Moines, Ia., a party of American Legion men escorted her to the police station for protection. The police department commended the Legionnaires for their chivalry.

James C. Russell, a member of the Blackhawk post of the American Legion in Chicago, has sent post cards to United States Senators and Congressmen. The cards bear a photographic reproduction showing a half a few minutes after he had suffered two gunshot wounds while fighting in the trenches.

After reviewing a parade in Cleveland, O., recently in which the United States flag was carried, John G. Emery, national commander of the American Legion, made a statement in which he scored "the two-percent Americans" who fail to remove their hats when the colors are passing.

Following a speaking tour of the west and northwest, Lemuel Bolles, national adjutant of the American Legion, declared that every where in the territory which he had visited he found the Legion had highest place in community progress. He said political entanglements had been avoided, in all the states he had toured, without losing effectiveness in the promotion of true Americanism.

The citizens of Evansville, Ind., have built a home and presented it to the mother of James B. Graham, one of the first three Americans to die in the world war. Graham was killed November 3, 1917 during the raid of a German patrol. The hero's body was brought to the United States recently and the reburial took place last week under the auspices of the Evansville post of the American Legion.

Ben L. Cumbs, postmaster of Haxara, Ga., a member of the American Legion, who was shell shocked while serving overseas, was found sleeping on a bench in Parkside Square, Los Angeles, recently. When awakened he couldn't explain how he got there. He said the last thing he remembered was applying for a vacation from his work. Physicians said Cumbs apparently suffered from amnesia due to shell shock.

General Baron Jusseux of Belgium, who has accepted the invitation of the American Legion to come to this country for its 25th anniversary convention at Kansas City, October 31 to November 2, was commander-in-chief of the Belgian forces during a great part of the world war and at different times was in direct command of the American Forces serving with the Belgians.

Col. C. A. Pennington, assistant director of the Bureau of War Risk Insurance in charge of the insurance division, has been appointed to act as liaison officer between the American Legion and the Bureau. Colonel Pennington is a member of the Spaulding post of the Legion.

As a result of representations made to the United States Civil Service Commission by the National Legislative Committee of the American Legion, disabled veterans of the world war, who have undergone training by the Federal Board for Vocational Education, will be allowed to enter examination for any government position for which they have been trained if application is made within sixty days after completion of training.

HOW HE DESCRIBED IT.
De Style—I saw Miss H-ayer at the opera and she had on a fairy dress made of very flimsy material.

Gambusta—Chiffon?
De Style—Well, yes—it seemed more like chiff.

Muggins—That girl is as pretty as a picture, but she is positively stupid.
Buggins—Yes, she has both the pearls and is as dumb as an oyster.

Mrs. Grogg—I could have married a dozen men before I met you.
Mr. Grogg—That settles it. I always did think it was an unlucky number.

Muggins—Women are certainly changeable.
Buggins—Yes, the divorce courts prove that.

CREDITS BILL IS PASSED

Senate Pass Through Measure for Agricultural Relief.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—The agricultural credit bill, embodying the Administration plan for loans by the War Finance Corporation to aid exporters of farm products, was passed Friday by the Senate. There was no record vote on passage of the bill, which now goes to the House.

The measure authorizes agricultural loans from the $500,000,000 cash capital of the War Finance Corporation, which also is authorized to issue two billion dollars of bonds in obtaining additional loan funds.
