"I suppose you want to know what happened to your road," said the cost missioner, while shaking hands with the delegation. "I can tell you it is still on the map." Mr. Sadler then proceeded to explain that owing to the industrial and financial depression it seemed that tax collections from all parts of the state were slow, with the result that funds for highway construction are about exhausted. funds, besides the slowness of state revenue collections, was that a large CENTER COUNTY LUMBER part of the bond money available had already been pledged and a considerable sum must be retained in order to meet the requirements of the federal state aid act. The state must have on hand some money to insure rereceipt of its share of the federal appropriation. The federal bill has been hanging fire in congress. It at first carried $260,000,000 for roads, but the appropriation has been cut to $75,000,-000 and the bill has not yet been passed.
