AMERICANS BUY AUSTRIAN VILLA

"Liegenschaft," Ancient Seat of Nobility, Now Home of Laughing Children.

Villa in Vienna, the seat of varied and powerful traditions since centuries, has been purchased by Americans for fat profits in real estate. The villa, known as "Liegenschaft," is a beautiful and historic structure, and its purchase is a landmark in the history of American investment in Europe. The villa is situated in a beautiful park, and is surrounded by a high wall. It is a fine example of Austrian architecture, and is a most desirable home for a family. The villa is now being prepared for occupancy, and will be ready for the new owners in a few weeks.

American Lutherans in their World Service Campaign for $1,200,000 to be conducted the last two weeks in October, are underwriting numerous orphanages in 17 countries of Europe in addition to the United States. The problem is so appalling that it is utterly impossible to cope with it alone. If American friends would in sustaining Europe in this one thing, it will be enough to guarantee the salvation, political, economic, commercial, moral and spiritual of the next generation.

"BUDAPEST UNIVERSITY" NEW REFUGEE COLLEGE

Refugee camps, schools, and orphanages are everywhere in Europe, but in Budapest there is even a refugee college. There is no time again in the history of mankind when the world has seen so many children as yet, but there are just as many degrees after the names of the graduates as in a full-fledged State University, and the graduates have no less excellent training.

DR. J. A. MORHEAD

From notes and papers which these persecuted Lutherans had fled to Budapest and Dr. J. A. Morhead, the representative of the National Lutheran Church, found the scattered notes and papers, and brought about a meeting of the faculty, board of trustees, and other interested parties, and a corps of distinguished professors and 100 students in Budapest.

I have never witnessed in Europe a more earnest and noble spirit than that of the English and American refugees who are now in Budapest. They are now the class of 1912, and are now the class of 1912. They were home made, practical, and were able to do their own work, and their work was of the highest quality. They are now the class of 1912, and are now the class of 1912. They were home made, practical, and were able to do their own work, and their work was of the highest quality.
