MEALS FOR THE DAY.

COMBINATIONS are not always good in leftovers, unless great care is used in blending them. The following, though allowed, proved very good. A cupful of two of veal broth with noodles was the basis of this dish. A baking dish was well greased with the fat from a piece of steak, also a small bit of cold steak was minced and put into the dish, with some of the cooked veal, also minced, from the roast and the jelly soup, a dish of creamed onions (which were also leftovers) were chopped and added, and the whole covered with leftover mashed potato, moistened with milk. Bake until the potato is slightly brown and serve from the dish. Add such seasonings as are needed when arranging the food in the pan.

Liver With Onion Sauce.

Parboiled sliced (left) liver until well heated, turning in the boiling water, drain and dip in flour well seasoned and fry in hot bacon fat until well cooked. Fry a cupful of chopped onions in the remaining fat, until a slight brown; add a tablespoonful of vinegar and pour over the liver.

Potato Spring Salad.

Cook the potatoes with their skins on; cool and peel, then cut in dice, add a handful of minced olives or a few shredded onion. Now add finely minced, tender uncooked lambton greens. Mix all together and pour over hot season fat with the sauce mixed in it, stir and mix well, then add a little boiling hot vinegar, salt and pepper and serve hot.

Wilted Cucumbers With Sour Cream.

Wash the cucumbers free, peel them and let them stand in salted water until wilted. Rinse in fresh water, ice-cold, and dry on a cloth. Season with salt and pepper and serve with thick sour cream.

Two's Home May Disappear.

Two's home may be in the Hall of Fame, but as far as the world is concerned, some of his masterpieces were written have not come to light. The real estate dealer who bought it for $55,000 and now sells $200,000 for it, may still erect the Mark Twain apartment after demolishing the quaint, half-rotted home with the kitchen built toward the street. "I cannot say he wasn't going to be incensed by having his secret and notes running to the front of the house to see what was going on, so he made a frontal observation of the kitchen."

Twenty-one years ago Miss Ella Tarrant bought a piece of 200-acre farm near Pleasant Grove, Pa., which she held for some years. For 21 years Miss Tarrant and her family made a home on the farm. Not long since she discovered on the farm, today, the Tarrant's income from the mining which have been added to the farm.

City health and police authorities of New York have redoubled their efforts to prevent possible typhoid carriers from entering the city from the island. This picture shows an inspector, mounted to prevent possible introduction of typhoid, inspecting an immigrant boat for possible carriers.

Where an Ancestor Died.

The bones of the late and able of St. Magnus, killed at Kirkwall in the Orkneys, were formerly buried with tombstones in the oldest of which seems to be dated 1222. Among them is one in memory of a certain William Irving, who was killed a violent death. "I shot out of a cannon" this man, who possessed out of the world, in 1614, the same year that the castle was built. Irving's father was born in the island of Shetland, across the sea from Kirkwall, and emigrated to New York in 1702. (National Geographic Magazine.)

Smallest Park in the World

What is said to be the smallest park in the world is located at the top of the famed Winter Hill at Somerville, Mass. It is known as Paul Revere park. The tiny site set aside by the city is in the form of a triangle, two sides of which are 30 feet, and the other 20 feet long. This makes the area of the plot 300 square feet. The old road over which Paul Revere dashed on his famous midnight ride, runs along one side of the park.
