MODERN DAY MIRACLES

Famous Scientists Declare that Tremendous Advancements of the Future Will Come From the Chemical Laboratory

No. VIII
LOOKING FORWARD

Mankind, after passing through the ages of the bronze, iron and the various phases of civilization now stands at the dawn of a new era. Thomas Edison, in a recent interview, declared that we have entered into the Age of Chemistry and the remarkable advances of laboratory workers serve to substantiate this statement.

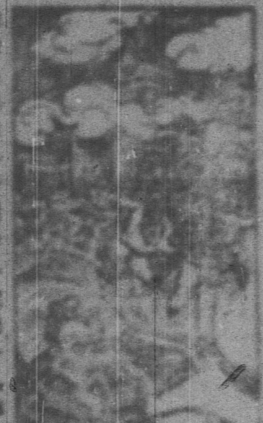

It is difficult to prophesy how great will be the contribution of chemistry to the progress of civilization, but it has been accomplished and so great is the expectancy that it is exciting why thoughtful men are insisting that the public should be awakened to a full knowledge of the significance of the science of its national life.

The synthetic chemist has been able to produce practically all necessary raw materials and thousands of artificial products in peace time, mostly those used for war, but it has only touched the fringe of its ultimate development. Synthetic foods and substances are being produced from the air and water.

Edwin E. Strosser, in his splendid book, "Creative Chemistry," quotes the following:

"The problem of food is a chemical problem. The day will come when each person will carry for his nourishment his little nitrogenous, his fat, his sugar, his vital of aromatic spices, suited to his personal taste; all manufactured, economically and in unlimited quantities, all independent of the soil, and free from pathogenic microbes, the origin of epidemics and the enemies of human life. On this day chemistry will have accomplished worldwide revolution that cannot be estimated."

Organic chemical factories, dye plants and others, are truly arsenals in disguise. The will of man can instantly convert these peaceful factories, where research is constantly going on, into gigantic bulwarks of national defense because of the deadly instruments of war they are able to produce.

So much for peace. Now consider the prophecy of General DeBenedy, of the French army.

"Colorless, odorless gases will be discovered that can be condensed into infinitely small compass and solidified into tablets and pills. Already we know, unfortunately, what the character of these things will be. Scatter the contents of a few small boxes on the ground and a dense, smoky mist will arise, a deadly fog fatal to everything living within its range. Broad belts of territory may be poisoned for weeks at a time by a few drops of gas poured out here and there a few drops at a time. Against the attacks of air-borne barages of gas which will bring instant death to the pilot will be launched. The air will be filled with ambushes and snares. On land aircraft gas tanks will be used in front of the infantry detecting hidden gases and deluging the ground with an asphyxiating liquid."
