FATHER

SYNOPSIS -- In a preface Mary Marie explains her apparent "dou-ble personality" and just why is a "cross-current and a contradiction"; she also tells her reasons for writing the distry-later to be a novel. The diary is commenced at Andersonville. Mary begins with Nurse Sarah's account of her (Mary's) birth, which seemingly in-terested her father, who is a famous astronomer, less than a new star which was discovered the same night. Her name is a compromise, her mother wanted to onli her Viola and her fother insisted on Abignif Jane. The child quickly learned that her home was in some way different from those of her small friends, and was pushed thereat. Nurse Sarah tells her of her mother's arrival at Andersonville as a bride and how astomished they all were at the sight of the dainty ighteen-year-old girl whom the Nurse Sarah makes it plain why the household seemed a strange one to the child and how her father and mother drifted apart through landing, each too proud to in any way attempt to smooth over the situation. Mary tells of he time spent "out West" where the "perfectly all right and genteel and respectable" divorce was being arranged for, and her mother's (to court's decree the child is to spend six months of the pear with her mother and six months with her fa-ther. Boston is Mother's home. Mary describes her life as Mario ith her mother in Boston and bout her mother's "prospective diera." Then Many goes to her day home to visit her father, and Jan't questions.
