THE OLD SWIMMIN' HOLE

By James Whitcomb Riley.

Oh! the old swimmin'-hole! Where the creek so still and deep Looked like a baby-river that was layin' half asleep,
And the gurgle of the water round the drift just below Sounded like the laugh of something we can't see to know
Before we could remember anything but the eyes of Paradise:
But the merry days of Youth is beyond our control forever with the old swimmin'-hole.
Oh! the old swimmin'-hole! In the happy days of youth,
When I sat to lean above it on the old sickamore,
Oh! it showed me a face in its warm sunny tide
That gazed back at me so gay and glorified,
It made me love myself, as I leaped to carous
My shadder smilin' up at me with such tenderness,
But those days is past and gone, and old Time's tuck his toll
From the old man come back to the old swimmin'-hole,
Oh! the old swimmin'-hole! In the long, liny days
When the ham-drum of school made so many run-a-ways,
How pleased was the journey down the old dusty lane,
Where the tracks of our bare feet was all printed as plain
You could tell by the dent of the heel and the sole
They was lots o' fun on hands at the old swimmin'-hole.
But the best joys is past! Let your tears be sorrow roll
Like the mist that set to dapple up the old swimmin'-hole,
There the bullrushes grewed, and the cattails so tall,
And the sunshine and shadder fell over it all,
And it rolicked the water with amber and gold
Til the glad lilies rocked in the rip-ple that rolled,
And the meadow's four gauzy wings fluttered by
Like the ghost of a daisy dropped out of the sky,
Or a wounded apple-blossom in the breeze's control.

As it cut over the old swimmin'-hole!
Oh! the old swimmin'-hole!
I last saw the place,
The scene was changed, like the bridge on the railroad now crosses the spot
Where the old swimmin'-hole is sunk
And I stray over the banks where the trees will their shade shelter me
And I wish my sorrow I could strip off my grave like the old swimmin'-hole.

OUT FISHING

A fellow ain't thinkin' mean—out fishin'.
His thoughts are mostly clean—out fishin'.
He doesn't care for his fellow men—out fishin'.
Or harbor any grudges then—out fishin'.
A fellow is his best when—out fishin'.
The rich are comrades to the poor—out fishin'.
All brothers of a common lure—out fishin'.
The urchin with the pin and string, Can chum with the Millionaire and King—out fishin'.
A fellow's game changes to dream—out fishin'.
He learns the beauties of the stream—out fishin'.
And he can swim his soul in air—out fishin'.

That ain't foul with cellish care, And relish plain food and fare—out fishin'.
When A fellow has no time for hate—out fishin'.
He ain't eager to be great—out fishin'.
He isn't thinkin' thoughts of self, Of goods stacked high upon a shelf, But he is always just himself—out fishin'.
A feller ain't plotting schemes—out fishin'.
He's only busy with his dreams—out fishin'.
His livery is a coat of tan, His credit to do the best he can, And always mostly, more of a man—out fishin'.
A feller's glad to be a friend—out fishin'.
A helping hand he'll always lend—out fishin'.
The leatherhood of rod and line, And sky and stream is always fine, Men come real close to God's design—out fishin'.
