Are Busy.

The guiding motive of the American Legion is to keep alive at least some part of the wonderful spirit of services that animated everyone in 1917 and 1918. If even a flicker of that spirit can be preserved and turned to good account legion men feel that their organization will not have existed in vain.

The application of such spirit of service to national problems may be known as Americanism. The legion has already succeeded in passing or is working to pass in every state school laws covering the teaching of the American constitution. It is working to build up in the coming generation a vivid realization of what American citizenship is, what American institutions are and how and why they should be respected. Many states already are carrying out in the schools complete programs written by the legion which will inspire a new kind of citizenship in the years that are not far away.

The legion is working actively to combat radicalism. It has taken an active and very influential stand against class and sect selfishness and intolerance in every form. The legion is working toward the passage of sound immigration laws and for adequate military and naval defense for the country.

The legion's work is very practical and not visionary and it is legal—thousands of American communities and not merely national. Almost everyone of the 1,500 legion posts can show concrete examples of good work done for the community. Out in Kansas, a post adopts a Boy Scout troop; in Wisconsin the legion stands sponsor for the education and citizenship of an alien who had worn the planted on a highway, in New York, the legion raises $5,000 to buy a highway for the tubercular ex-servicemen. The examples are myriad.

The legion is the International

Veterans' Federation, that was practically sponsored by the legion. It is a dream for a near coming time and its possibilities are far-reaching.
 The legion's cultural expression—

The legion has made great strides in organization. It has expected that even more will be accomplished since the convention of delegates from the allied countries in New Orleans in October, just prior to the legion national convention.

 The legion has always been first in the fight to obtain justice for the disabled of the late war. Surely, it is a grand and noble way in demand, the legion's way in the world.
