

Creoles in Pageant of Evangeline's Wanderings

The Creoles of New Iberia, La., recently staged a pageant depicting the journeyings of Evangeline, heroine of Longfellow's poem. The illustration shows a group of the characters at the bayou landing where Evangeline is said to have landed, and, at right, Miss Rita Blanchet, who had the name part.

Wrecking of British Cruiser on Labrador Coast

This wonderful photograph clearly gives an idea of the heavy sea that swept the English cruiser H. M. S. Raleigh when the vessel went on the rocks off the treacherous Labrador coast recently. With great difficulty all of the crew safely reached the barren shore. Some of them on life rafts are seen at the left. The pictures were made by a member of the crew.

He's a Congressional Dairyman

"A congressional dairyman and proud of it," is the way Congressman John A. Clarke of New York describes himself. This photograph shows that he still works at his old profession, too, and he declares he never fails to go out among the cows when he is back at his farm near Fraser, N. Y.

SPARROW-HAWK GOT SNAKE

Reptile Seemed to Have Small Chance Against the Little Though Fiery Bird.

We soon found that there were two sparrow-hawks about, and by the 7th of March it seemed evident that they were mated and were considering the locality as a summer residence. We now saw them almost daily, and the perfect domestication, indeed I should say affection, shown between them, and the tender care and gallantry on the part of the male, would seem to suggest a high plane of evolution, and remind me again that all the world is kin. Indeed, what have we of animals which may not have its beginning in the humblest creature?

In accord with history and tradition the male was chief hunter, but very often shared the game with his mate after the "killing" coming to the back window, attracted by a loud call of killee, killee, killee, we would frequently see him returning from the hunt with a mouse, or an English sparrow, and it must be confessed that even small song-birds were not strictly prohibited under his liberal interpretation of the law. In a moment the female would light on a perch nearby, whereupon the male would immediately remove the mouse from his talons, with which the prey is almost always carried, and politely deliver it to his mate from his beak. One bright, sunny afternoon there was an unusually excited call heard. It seemed that a snake had glided forth from its hiding place to enjoy the early morning, or a circumstance which proved more fortunate for the "snake" than for the early snake. It was most picturesque and exciting, and to a spectator to see this little bird, slightly smaller than a sparrow, flying about from tree to tree in search of a more favorable place, struggling with his writhing prey. When the snake had been decapitated and several inches of its length devoured, it seemed sufficiently satisfied to be offered to the hawk although it was still writhing when he dropped the offering. She ate with a voracious relish, holding it firmly in her beak under her foot while she gnawed off small pieces. When the task was reached it became very difficult to hold this slender, tapering serpent. Harassed Chubb is silent.

Was Marcus Aurelius a Professor? Under the sign of the prince-philosopher, Marcus Aurelius, were the Christianians persecuted after Roman, Linnæus, and Willard have charged the emperor with infidelity. In a preface to his last published edition of his "Præceptorum" at the end of the century, according to the instructions given by Marcus Aurelius to the legate of Lyons were in common and not a religious matter. Besides, the prince was then ill, and was impossible for him to compare the legate's reports. Several texts indicate that Marcus Aurelius allowed certain measures taken against the Christians and that those which he ordered were perhaps exceeded. The emperor's heirs on very remote days. If Marcus Aurelius had had knowledge of the controversy he would undoubtedly have cried with indignation: "It is a royal virtue to do well and to let calumny run its course."

The Old Teddy Yoddy. According to a rural paper a central Kentucky man takes himself in the possession of a "teddy glass" that has been in his family for over a century. The "teddy glass" recalls an old Kentucky custom, but was an institution down to the middle days. The "teddy glass" was utilized for the mixing of a cold toddy that was passed around and partaken of by company and family. The common toddy glass before the sanitary crusade aimed at individual toddies became obsolete. In these days even if people did not stand in the way, the "teddy glass" likely would be used under the health law along with the common drinking cup. —Louisville Courier-Journal.

New Kid on the Block. David Cook, son of Wabash, has been around town since he was born, but was never at Lake Wabash until Sunday. A friend of the Cook family had the youngster out about his rights, and finally pointed to a sail boat which was traveling the distance. For several minutes the boy was unable to find the boat. Suddenly he spied it and said, "Oh, you mean that boat with the sail on it?"

Steel Used in Railroad Cars. One million, two hundred thousand tons of iron and steel were consumed in the production of railroad passenger cars in the United States this past year. This amount of metal is approximately 4 per cent of the entire output of the mills of the nation.

He Might Try. "And now that we've engaged, George," she cried, "you'll promise to write me every single day that you're away?" "Why, of course, I'll write, dear," he replied. "But," he added in a desperate attempt to be perfectly honest, "I don't think I'll be able to write you every day." "Not able to write every day? Why not?" she asked, with evident disappointment. "No, I don't expect to be able to write every day. You see," he explained, "I'm going to Havana."

Left Him No Escape. "If you feel that way, why did you propose to the woman?" "I didn't," she proposed to reply. "But you could have refused him?" "No, I couldn't. She said, 'Will you marry me?' Have you any objection?' So whether I'd said 'yes' or 'no,' she'd had me either way." "Well, you shouldn't have answered her." "I didn't," she said. "Silence gives consent," and that settled it.—Boston Transcript.

Advertisement for Postum. Text: 'The Cap that never fits. NO harm can come to me from coffee or tea," is what so many people say. Yet those same people are often quick to note the signs of coffee harm in others. How familiar the danger signals are—upset digestion, sleepless nights and irritability—all warnings of the nervous breakdown that lurks just a little way ahead. How easy and how delightful the escape—by drinking delicious Instant Postum instead of the beverages that contain the irritant caffeine. Instant Postum is the tempting cereal drink made from roasted wheat. It is prepared instantly in the cup by the addition of boiling water. Its snappy flavor is not unlike that of coffee. It is safe for everybody in your household including the children, and there's nothing in Postum to keep you awake even if you drink it at midnight. Postum Cereal Company, Inc. Battle Creek, Mich.'
