AN ATTRACTIVE IDEAL WALL BUNGALOW

THE NEPONSET—DESIGN A 312

Now that the Ideal wall has been recognized as an appropriate and desirable type of wall construction for homes by the Government, its already great popularity will be very much increased. About two years ago the United States Senate appointed a committee to investigate building costs. Hearings were held in various cities. The result of the inquiry was to call attention to the excessive and expensive requirements of many of the building codes. This was found especially true of those sections of building codes which dealt with the minimum thickness of brick walls for dwelling houses. Although brick walls eight inches thick had been used from time immemorial and were comfortably housing generally hundreds of thousands of families, some cities required brick walls twelve, sixteen, and of even greater thickness for dwellings. Mr. Hoover appointed a committee of eminent architects and engineers to formulate a model code. This though the total dimensions are recently issued, and the eight only twenty-six feet three inches high solid brick wall is allowed for by twenty-seven feet. It contains the upper thirty feet, plus five feet for a gable, of two story dwellings, by twelve feet with a large The Ideal wall, which saves one fire place and a seat placed next to third of the cost of solid brick wall the open stair.

The Neponset is an excellent story and a half design, built with this wall. It is a five room house with some very unusual features, walls twelve, sixteen, and of even greater thickness for dwellings. Mr. Hoover appointed a committee of eminent architects and engineers to formulate a model code. This though the total dimensions are recently issued, and the eight only twenty-six feet three inches high solid brick wall is allowed for by twenty-seven feet. It contains the upper thirty feet, plus five feet for a gable, of two story dwellings, by twelve feet with a large The Ideal wall, which saves one fire place and a seat placed next to third of the cost of solid brick wall the open stair.

The Common Brick Manufacturers' Association, Cleveland, Ohio, can furnish complete drawings for the design.

Sweet Odors always "Scented" and used sweet odors. In the spring, the result of the burning of incense on the stairs and the very word perfume (under which head we may include all delicate fumes of small vases from the Latin incense, smoke or vapor. The early Egyptians knew the use of the still, and adapted it to the preparation of the odorous principle from fragrant plants, but the most delicate odors were drawn from natural gum, such as camphor, myrrh and cassia.
