

How a Single Industry Spreads Prosperity

A most significant fact about an industry is the large number of people who benefit from it.

Take the cement industry, as an example:

The mills used 9,000,000 tons of coal last year. This meant 9,000 coal miners steadily employed—their families, numbering not less than 25,000, maintained—and along with them tradesmen and other people enough to supply the needs of a town of over 50,000.

That is, of course, saying nothing of the business created for coal operators and transportation lines.

Sacks are not so large an item in the cement industry as coal, yet 50,000,000 new sacks, representing 50,000 bales of cotton, had to be bought last year for replacements alone. Back of this were cotton planters, plantation workers, mill owners, mill operatives and so on—thousands altogether.

And consider these other requirements of the industry last year:

- 3,700,000 barrels of fuel oil
- 3,400,000,000 cubic feet of gas
- 15,000,000 pounds of explosives
- 32,000,000 pounds of greases and oils
- 1,700,000 linear feet of belting
- 4,500,000 firebrick for relining kilns
- 7,000,000 pounds of paper for bags
- 600,000 tons of gypsum

In addition the industry bought quantities of heavy grinding and burning machinery, locomotives, cars, rails, electrical and other necessary equipment.

In this way a single industry spreads prosperity to many others.

HELPING OTHERS

THE busiest man can find time to be helpful. The most determined man can, without harm to himself, stop now and then to help others on the way up.

Few successful men there are who have not done much for their fellows. The race for success is hot and hard, but there are always times when others can be lifted from the roadside and put back on their feet.

Hard indeed is the man who will not offer a word of advice or encouragement to a brother bound the same way.

There is little enough kindness in the world, but that is not the fault of its great men. Read Meccoby and you will discover that practically all those who attained high places in the world were glad to give others a hand on their way.

The old, the weak, the ill need help, as a matter of course. They need more than they receive, although the world is learning, day by day, better to provide for them.

But the young need help, too. They need to be told of the dangers that wait on ahead and how to avoid them. They need the lessons that the more successful can give them and, above all, they need encouragement when

THE MAN-LAND

By GRACE E. HALL

WOULD you hurry away to the Man-land,

Little boy with your eyes of blue,

Would you trade all your precious treasures,

Real wealth that is fine and true?

They have strange toys in the Man-land,

But of marbles they have not one,

Though they have queer games they are playing.

From morn 'till the day is done;

They sail great ships in the Man-land,

So large that you'd be afraid,

And their trains go past so fast—so fast

That you can't see how they go.

There's just much fun in the Man-land,

Little boy with your eyes of blue,

Though you think it is very pleasant

As you glimpse it from far away;

And there's scarcely a one in the Man-land.

With all of its seeming joy,

Who wouldn't turn backward gladly,

And be just a care-free boy?

But they do strange things in the Man-land.

That sensible lads would spurn:

They hide all their fears, their sorrows

And this you would have to learn.

They forget their prayers in the Man-land,

Little boy with your eyes of brown;

They even forget their manners.

And sneeze with snore or frown;

They tell many tales in the Man-land,

And often they're quite untrue.

But they aren't like the fairy stories

That are told to interest you;

They grow very cold in the Man-land,

And their laughter gets out of time;

Oh, stay with your toys for all little boys

Go to Man-land too soon—the soon!

The Young Lady Across the Way

It is when we realize this that we experience a great dash of joy, raptured in Lydon's measures and tuned in perfect steps.

We wear on the wings of the dove, we have risen high above the boys and quagmires.

We have come from a state between sleep and waking. Our vision is clear. Our mind is alert, appreciative, considerate and kindly disposed.

Our thoughts fly straight to the mark, never diverted by ill-humors or a violent rush of hot blood.

In some indescribable manner a burden has slipped from our galloping shoulders, and we are buoyant, happy, uncomparable.

The ruling forces of the universe have taken hold of us, while other Affection, sentiment and compassion have become parts of our disposition.

The control of impulse has grown perfect through the supremacy of our higher motives.

Has Anyone Laughed At You Because—

By ETHEL R. FEYSER
JOHN LAKE

You keep religious holidays in the "old style"? This laughter takes all the nerve you have to "keep going" through. Don't mind it. If you observe religious festivals and holidays and the Sabbath, you get something out of it that should make you above anyone's laughter, so why worry? If you observe these days because your family wants you to, and not because you care to, even here you are being truly unselfish and the laughter of others can't really hurt you, except in your imagination. We all need more time for reflection and the religious holiday that will bring more of us to our knees, if only for a respite in life's little hostilities, helps more than any laughter can mar.

SCHOOL DAYS

Something to Think About

By F. A. WALKER

SELF-CONTROL
THE simple process of practicing self-control is a beneficial as it is astonishing. In little while those of us who succeed in obtaining mastery of our emotions, our glib tongue, our strutting pride and our indolence, find ourselves in a new world.

We wonder at the aggressiveness of our friends, the business of the beavers, the sweet songs of the birds and the thousands of beautiful things all about us which heretofore we have passed without notice.

At last we have succeeded in pulling an old mask from our face and we are able to think. We have in some way composed our scabrous spirit and found a grain of faith—faith in ourselves and in our intimates. We are changed, and the whole world is changed with us.

It is when we realize this that we experience a great dash of joy, raptured in Lydon's measures and tuned in perfect steps.

We wear on the wings of the dove, we have risen high above the boys and quagmires.

We have come from a state between sleep and waking. Our vision is clear. Our mind is alert, appreciative, considerate and kindly disposed.

Our thoughts fly straight to the mark, never diverted by ill-humors or a violent rush of hot blood.

In some indescribable manner a burden has slipped from our galloping shoulders, and we are buoyant, happy, uncomparable.

The ruling forces of the universe have taken hold of us, while other Affection, sentiment and compassion have become parts of our disposition.

The control of impulse has grown perfect through the supremacy of our higher motives.

TREES THRIVING NEAR HIGHWAYS

Saplings Along Roads Throughout State Doing Fine. Department Report

2,041 TREES WERE PLANTED

Interesting News Items, Briefly Condensed, Picked Up At the Department Which Are of Interest to the People of the State.

Harrisburg, Pa.—Figures compiled by the Pennsylvania Department of Forests and Waters show that during the past spring a total of 2,041 trees were planted along the highways of Pennsylvania. The total cost of the work amounted to $2,759.14, or an average of $1.35 per tree, which includes all charges incurred by the Department and the Department of Forests and Waters. Reports from District Foresters show that the trees planted in Berks, Lehigh, Erie, Huntington, McKean, Dauphin, Delaware, Somerset, Monroe, and Lycoming counties are thriving and growing well. Many of the trees planted along the highways in Adams and York counties died because of the exceedingly dry weather during the summer and fall of 1923, followed by the dry spring and summer of this year. The dead trees will be replaced next year and special precautions will be taken by watering them frequently during dry weather.

Two Made Boiler Inspectors.
Andrew J. Bell of Pittsburgh and John Forgan of Scranton have been appointed state boiler inspectors at $2,400 a year by Secretary Royal Meeker.

Power Company Plan Granted.
The application of the West Penn Power Company for approval of the right of eminent domain over and across certain tracts of land in Plum township, Allegheny County, has been granted, the public service commission announced.

Discussed Coal Prices.
Gov. Pinchot and three of the four anthracite operators who carried on the negotiations with the miners' union officials held a conference at which the Governor discussed "available" methods of reducing the price of coal to the consumer to the lowest possible point. A. D. Wootton, chairman of the anthracite price commission, also was present.

Railways Reorganization Stayed.
The Public Service Commission has extended until December 1, 1923, the date for the reorganization of the Pittsburgh Railways Company to become effective. The company presented the petition and no objection was raised by the city of Pittsburgh. The master appointed by the Allegheny courts to make a report on the reorganization has reported as of October 11. According to law, the master's findings must be advertised for 30 days before the court can make an order and the further extension until December 1 was sanctioned by the commission to meet its requirement.

August Crossing Accidents.
Automobile collisions with trains at grade crossings during the month of August were ninety in number, according to figures announced by the Bureau of Accidents of the Public Service Commission. The total for the month was 197 which took a toll of twenty-one lives, of this number twelve were killed in auto crashes. Fifty others were injured in similar accidents. The others killed were three wagon riders and six pedestrians. Compared with the same month of last year, these statistics show increases of forty-five in the number of accidents; ten in the number of killed; and thirty in the number injured. With the exception of two persons, the twenty-one fatal injuries in August occurred in daylight.

To Combat Forest Fires.
Preparations to combat fall forest fires, which includes the building up of the firefighting and fire prevention organization, have been completed by the Department of Forests and Waters. The fall forest fires, with several exceptions, have not been so disastrous as the spring fires. This is due, in the opinion of George Wirt, chief fire warden, to the short days of sunshine which prevent the underbrush from thoroughly drying out after the customary heavy night dews. The proportion of fall to spring forest fires is about one to four, Mr. Wirt said.

Peanut Macaroons.
Beat the white of an egg until stiff and add one-fourth of a cupful of granulated sugar gradually, while beating constantly; add five tablespoonfuls of chopped peanuts and a teaspoonful of vanilla. Drop from the tip of a spoon on a buttered sheet two inches apart. Garnish with half of a peanut and bake for twelve to fifteen minutes.

The man who doctors a horse has to have a degree, which might be a good plan for the learned experts who would thump with an auto's innards.

The fathers and husbands of America could almost afford to subsidize those striking milliners to shut off permanently the output of Paris hats.

Somewhat a revolution in Spain seems to have an affinity with that other happy thing, a caste in Spain. Neither is worth getting excited over.

Mrs. Edward Pinson

Wheelerburg, Ohio.—"My wife had pneumonia about six years ago and it left her with a dreadful cough. At night she would cough until she was exhausted. She could get no rest or sleep. Her stomach was so bad that she could not retain food. She went down in flesh until she was merely skin and bones. I had tried many doctors and medicines but still she grew worse. At last a neighbor who had relied upon Dr. Pierce's medicine for years, told me about Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, and before she had taken all of the first bottle she began to improve. By the time she had the third bottle taken her cough had entirely stopped. She gained in flesh and weighed twenty-five pounds more than before she took the 'Discovery'."—Edw. Pinson.
