

THIS WOMAN'S REMARKABLE RECOVERY

Entirely Due To Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

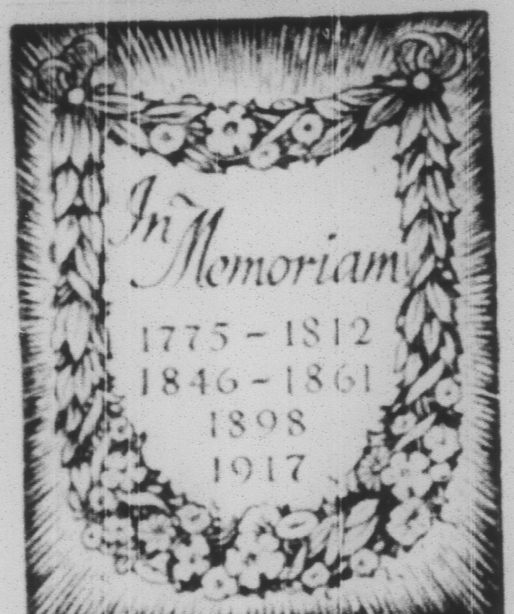

Forest City, Iowa. "My first child lived only a short time and I was sick for a year after. When I bent over and raised myself up again I would almost scream with pain in my back. One day I was so bad that I had to leave my washing and get ready to go to the doctor. He gave me medicine but it did no more good than if I drank just water. Once when we had been in town a little book telling about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound was left in our car. I have taken two bottles of the Vegetable Compound now and I do all my housework and help with the milking and taking care of chickens and garden. Besides I have a nice baby girl eight months old, but the picture of health and I am feeling fine myself. You may use this letter as a testimonial and I will answer any letters asking about the Vegetable Compound."

—Mrs. OSCAR F. BURGELIN, Route No. 6, Forest City, Iowa.

To Those Who Died

"The Dawn of Glory" by Pietro Mantegna, a monument at Highland park as a tribute to those who served in the World War. This beautiful creation, full of vitality, is the third monument to be erected in Brooklyn by the same sculptor.

How readily we forget the bitter-ness of other men—that past we would never and honor evermore. A little just of years has blown behind us. A little just of life and all that dim of war. And we forget already as stocks market.

Forget the price they paid, those gallant boys Who left their shining youth on our dark earth. They were scattered through the ranks and files, they were scattered through the ranks and files, they were scattered through the ranks and files.

Instead of taking off his coat, rolling up his sleeves, and doing his best to fulfill his duty, the young man in uniform admits his impotence to cope with the essential things of life, intended by the world creator to develop his character and take him to pleasant pastures.

To deal openly to accept defeat and admit that no one else is to blame for the misadventure of his cherished plans, is the main thing to do even though he may experience a shameful sense of humiliation.

Behaviors of this kind makes better men and women. It gives all of us a clearer insight into our frailties, and if we have within us the right spirit, we can soon pull ourselves from the shadows and step with assurance into the glorious sunshine.

The man or woman who habitually blames others misses the noble and beautiful life, and loses the lofty soul-strengthening inspiration which comes and carries him or her to certain victory.

To be honest, successful, good-hearted, steer your ship far away from the treacherous shoals of fault-finding, then you will be able to enjoy the true sense of life.

If it is the fault-finder that fills the diverse courts with woes and tears, crushes loving hearts by robbing them of their sweetest joys and intimacies, while going up and down the world like a roaring lion.

SOMETHING TO THINK ABOUT

By F. A. WALKER

FINDING FAULT

It is a lamentable evidence of weakness in mortal nature when they deliberately shift the blame for their own shortcomings upon the shoulders of others.

This not uncommon tendency exhibits what is smallest and worst in character with ugly, repulsive qualities such as strong, honorable men studiously avoid.

The human who is always making excuses shunning responsibility by shifting the fault to where they do not belong is not destined to sit in the high places or take prominent parts in making a brighter and better world.

He disbelieves in the doctrine of excellence and accepts without any qualms of conscience the logic of Luck and then in his shifting faultlessness sits in his easy chair and grumbles because Luck fails to bring him the exalted position in society to which he imagines himself justly entitled.

Instead of taking off his coat, rolling up his sleeves, and doing his best to fulfill his duty, the young man in uniform admits his impotence to cope with the essential things of life, intended by the world creator to develop his character and take him to pleasant pastures.

To deal openly to accept defeat and admit that no one else is to blame for the misadventure of his cherished plans, is the main thing to do even though he may experience a shameful sense of humiliation.

MA ON SAVING

By DOUGLAS MALLOCH

WELL, Pa is talking saving, too. I like to hear him say, "When I'm in good and through. He'll really start to save." This ain't no spender I have got. But, like a lot of men, Whenever he has saved a lot. He blows it in again.

He saves it here, he saves it there, He saves on this or that, And that is why I have to wear A 1900 hat.

And then some fellow comes along With some gigantic scheme And sprouts it up a dream To save a better than to spend. But saving ain't enough. The thing that matters is the end Is where you put the stuff. Don't try for twenty-five per cent, A fortune in a week, I wish I had what Pa has spent For rainbows, so to speak.

Just put a little in the bank Or else the building loan, Not land it to some crazy crank, Some man you've never know. Go buy a bond, or buy a lot, Or something you can see, Right spreading after all what is real economy.

Civil War Fought by Boys

ALL overseas of the Civil War are vividly spoken of as "boy's war." It was fought by boys. Year after year it has become almost as specialized as a recognition of the soldiers of the Civil War as an actor as a soldier. As a sign was supposed to mean wisdom, the highest sensitive body of old war at first actually and later theoretically, at least, composed of old men. Senator Alderman, means simply, old man.

All Worthy of Tribute
As we lay our tributes of gratitude and devotion upon the graves of those who gave their all, let there be no distinction made between them. Let us honor equally those who, as President Coolidge so aptly and so beautifully phrased it, "those who made their mortal service, those who made their sacrifice in one way, and those who made their sacrifice in another way."

It is sufficient to know that all were Americans and believed in America, and that America claims them all; the flag floats above them and they all rest in the same divine peace.

THE TOWER MYSTERY

"I've long spotted more than any other ghostly haunts that place in a story," says Charles F. Harper in his new book, "Haunted Houses," published this morning by J. B. Lippincott company.

"The very remarkable story told in 1800 by Edward Leithair Swyre, sometime keeper of the crown jewels, has elements of the fantastic and the horrible which leave the ordinary ghost story far behind."

"I have often purposed," he says, "to leave behind me a faithful record of all I personally know of this strange story."

"One Saturday night in October, 1817, about 'the sitting hour,' I was at supper with my wife, her sister and our little boy in the sitting room in the least house. The doors were all closed, before and dark, and my wife had just taken a glass of wine over the window and the only light in the room was that of two candles on the table. I sat at the foot of the table, my son on my right hand, his mother seated on the opposite side. I had offered a glass of wine and water to my wife, when, on putting it to her lips, she passed and exclaimed, 'Good night, it is that!'"

There has always been a strange on account of the history of the spirit of the soldier of the Civil War. It was the great American war that was also a great spectacle, fought over an immense territory, with imposing marches, immense rides, and it caught the imagination as modern wars do.

No Sectional Feeling in the Nation Today
There are days in America to one who do not like to observe. One does not think of Memorial day as a time for celebration. Neither should it be given over to sadness because those for whom it has been set apart are the soldiers who have gone on to the greater adventures of their final rest.

Memorial day in America came into being as a tribute to the men and to the women who had made it possible for the North and South to wave over at the end. It was a time for flowers to be strewn upon the graves of the fallen and in the waters that ran down into the sea. In memory of the soldier who has died in the Civil War, it was a time for addresses and ceremonies, through which the memory might be kept green and the next generation instructed in the duty owed those who had gone before. The time came when the old sectional bitterness passed on as in form. Then it was that the graves of the Confederate soldiers were cared for.
