

SICK 3 YEARS WITHOUT RELIEF

Finally Found Health by Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Columbia, S. C.—"Your medicine has done me so much good that I feel like I owe my life to it. For three years I was sick and was treated by physicians, but they didn't seem to help me any. Then I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and got strong enough to do my housework, where before I was hardly able to get up. I have also taken the Vegetable Compound during the Change of Life and it has left me in good health. I recommend it as the best medicine for women in the Change of Life and you can use these facts as a testimonial."

Why suffer for years with backache, nervousness, painful times and other ailments common to women from early life to middle age, when Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will bring relief? Take it when annoying symptoms first appear and avoid years of suffering.

In a recent country-wide canvass of purchasers of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound over 200,000 replies were received, and 98 out of every 100 reported they were benefited by its use.

Salvationists' Good Work

After a separation of 30 years and attempts through all his days of manhood to find her, an English soldier, now in Egypt, has been brought in touch with his mother now in Virginia. The Salvation army in Canada accomplished in a few weeks a task that has baffled the soldier for the greater part of the 30 years.

Mad at Somebody

"So Madam! Buff sink with feeling!" "Oh, yes! Hard feelings, I should say."

GASTRITIS IS DANGEROUS STOP IT QUICK

When your stomach is bloated when it is so distended with gas that pressure on the heart almost suffocates you. What are you going to do? Take a chance of getting rid of the gas today!

Cheerfulness Wins

Be cheerful! The worst disease with which a man can be afflicted is that of being a continual knacker or grumbler. It gives one a sickening feeling to meet on a pleasant day men who are continually finding fault with everything and everybody.—Gert.

Always

A safe and soothing remedy for cuts, burns, or skin troubles. Protects, relieves and heals. Take internally for coughs and sore throats.

Vaseline

PETROLEUM JELLY. Chesebrough Mfg. Co., New York. State St.

Cuticura Toilet Trio

Send for Samples. To Cuticura Laboratories, Dept. 25, Hudson, Mass.

ASTHMA? Kidder's Asthmatic Pastilles

are relieving sufferers all over the world. Sample free at your druggist or from SAMUEL KIDDER & CO., INC., Chemists Since 1894, Boston 29, Mass.

Kill All Flies!

THEY SPREAD DISEASE. Kill all flies, mosquitoes, gnats, and other insects that are dangerous to health and property. Made of natural, non-toxic ingredients. Don't kill or hurt anything else. Kill all flies, mosquitoes, gnats, and other insects that are dangerous to health and property. Made of natural, non-toxic ingredients. Don't kill or hurt anything else.

Green's August Flower

for Constipation, Indigestion and Torpid Liver. Successful for 50 years. Kill all flies, mosquitoes, gnats, and other insects that are dangerous to health and property. Made of natural, non-toxic ingredients. Don't kill or hurt anything else.

SOMETHING TO THINK ABOUT

By F. A. WALKER

BIASED MINDS

TO AN incredible degree our beliefs are greatly influenced by our feelings and wishes. By bringing together ideas and dwelling on them under the sway of strong feelings, the mind tends naturally to believe in the corresponding realities.

This is seen in the strength of belief associated with the wild dreams of youth. To keep these airy visions constantly before the mind without testing them in practice, sooner or later is sure to cause a bias or prejudice which in turn brings about dangerous fancies or delusions to the detriment of the intellectual forces.

To become biased and "set" in ideas is to become warped and imprisoned in a vicious circle from which as the years advance, there is but little likelihood of escaping.

The simple process of thinking clearly, accepting facts as they present themselves and weighing the accumulated evidence thus gathered on scales whose weights are true, is the only method by which the young or the old can expect to achieve and attain.

If you will study the bright intellects of the past, the minds which have left their shining monuments in the world, you will find that they reached their exalted places by clear reasoning and a cheerful willingness to listen to words of counsel from others.

There was in them no desire to declare their superiority for they were ever anxious to avoid the pits and drive steadily up the hills with free hearts.

WHO SAID

"Time will unweave all things to posterity."

THE author of this truth was Euripides, the celebrated Greek writer of plays. Euripides was a thinker and like all thinkers, he was inclined to think of things that were ahead of his time. It may well be that the above quotation was his reply to criticism directed at him for some of his advanced beliefs.

He may believe it or not, we can imagine the Greek man of letters saying, "but the future will prove me right. Time will unweave all things to posterity!"

The first published play of this great tragedian was "Troilus" which appeared in 455 B. C. This play was well received, but did not win the first prize which the Greeks were in the habit of bestowing on the writer of the most meritorious play.

Like every man of prominence, Euripides had his enemies and these men determined upon his downfall. They charged the poet with impiety and unbelief in the gods. Whether or not the charges were true, they were believed by the people, and their admiration for Euripides turned to enmity and he was forced to flee from Greece.

At the court of Archelaus, the king of Macedonia, the poet was warmly received and was accorded the highest honors by the sovereign and his courtiers.

Euripides is entitled to be called the master of the Greek tragedy and one of the greatest playwrights of all time. He is said to have composed between 75 and 90 tragedies.—Wayne D. Murray.

Bird Is Forecaster

The hawk, hawk of the Tasmanian country is an excellent weather prophet. A day or two before a storm, large flocks of these birds will cry all day and flap their wings almost continuously.

PICKLES AND RELISHES

NICE crisp cucumber pickle is liked by most people. It is not necessary to use alum, which is injurious used even in small quantities. For a good pickle that is easy to put up, try these. Take three quarts of vinegar and one cupful of water, one cupful each of sugar and dry mustard, and salt; stir until well mixed, then drop in small fresh cucumbers, the smaller the better if of uniform size.

Mustard Pickles. Take equal quantities of small cucumbers, the largest allowed, green tomatoes, cauliflower picked into flowers, and button onions. Cover with a strong brine for twenty-four hours, using one cupful of salt to a gallon of water. In the morning wash the brine and pour it while boiling hot over the pickles. When cool, drain thoroughly and prepare as much vinegar as is needed to cover them. To one quart of vinegar use one cupful of brown sugar, one-half cupful of four, one-fourth of a pound of dry mustard. Boil the sugar and vinegar, then mix the flour and mustard with a little cold vinegar and pour into the hot vinegar. Cook for a few minutes, then when smoothly pour over the pickles.

Tomato Catsup. Put a basket of tomatoes, skins and all, into a kettle, boil until tender, then cut through a colander to remove the skins. Mix one cupful of salt, two pounds of brown sugar, half an ounce of cayenne, three ounces of alcohol, the same of Worcestershire sauce, two ounces of vinegar. Add two quarts of vinegar, cook until thick, strain, reheat and bottle.

Whale Had Lived Long. A whale caught off the coast of Greenland not long ago had in its belly the head of an old harpoon which experts estimate must have been there for 30 years at least.

HUSBANDS

By DOUGLAS MALLOCH

I THINK no woman really knows the things her husband undergoes. The constant struggle day and night. The good and bad, the wrong and right. The endless battle he must fight.

While here the lot of husbands' wives. He leads a multitude of lives. The club, the office and the street. The Sunday victory, defeat—Temptation everywhere to meet.

One tempts with pleasure, one with gold. Each day around him souls are sold. Are sold for riches, sold for ease, or sold some base desire to please—He meets all day such things as these.

While you, the sheltered and the warm, Know little grief or little storm, or hidden sting, or thorns rose, or shining stream that darkly flows. That meet him everywhere he goes.

Oh, keep the cottage windows bright! That man may find his way tonight. Such golden love your heart should hold. That none may lure with love or gold. In that mad world where souls are sold.

The loose of tongue and loss of mind, The business sharper he will find. The painted woman gambler, cheat, Who set their traps in every street. Your love and kindness can defeat.

Homes not a table; home is more; A lighthouse on a stormy shore. An altar and an inner shrine. That God has blessed and made divine. And you its priestess, love its sign.

Keep then the lamp of love ablaze. To guide him up from darker ways. Till every temple he has passed—Your strength so strong, your love so vast. You lead him home to God at last.

1—Fish Fand club of Chicago, political organization, the raiding of which by dry agents promises to bring on a finish fight against methods of the prohibition officials. 2—Miss Dorothy Schurman, daughter of the ambassador to Berlin, who is assisting her mother as hostess of the embassy in Berlin. 3—Funeral cortege of Cardinal Begin in Quebec, headed by Cardinal Hayes of New York.

NEWS REVIEW OF CURRENT EVENTS

Sudden Death of W. J. Bryan Shocks the Country—His Burial in Arlington.

BY EDWARD W. PICKARD

WILLIAM JENNINGS BRYAN, one of the most notable figures in American public life, has passed on to another world, and his body now lies in Arlington National cemetery—a consistent disciple of peace surrounded by the ranks of those who died in the great service of their country.

The sudden death of Mr. Bryan in Dayton, Tenn., where he had just won a temporary truce against the theory of evolution, came as a shock to the country, and indeed to the world, for he was known in all lands. He died while he slept, of apoplexy aggravated by indigestion. He was sixty-five years old. After the holding of memorial services in Dayton the body was transported in a special train to Washington.

There in the New York Avenue Presbyterian church, the funeral rites were celebrated on Friday, and the casket on an artillery caisson and escorted by a military detail, was taken to Arlington where the War department officials had selected for the burial a fine site near the Admiral Dewey tomb. It was in this most beautiful cemetery in the world that Mr. Bryan had expressed his desire to be interred.

It would be presumptuous to undertake to characterize Bryan. There can be but few Americans who have not formed their own opinion of his character and his work. He had a devoted following of hundreds of thousands, a host of persons knew him personally and loved him, and every one was familiar with his life record and his views on all manner of topics. These complicated by the Democratic party for the Presidency he virtually controlled that party for years, and though he lost that control in 1900 he was still the leader of a powerful faction.

Countless of politics his influence on the life of the people was immense—an emotional rather than an intellectual influence. From President Coolidge's telegram of condolence to Mrs. Bryan may well be quoted these phrases:

"Mr. Bryan has been a prominent figure in public affairs for a third of a century. He has been a leader in the advocacy of many moral reforms, and was representative of the effort for purity in our political life. He was endowed with the great gift of eloquence.

The sincerity of his motives was beyond dispute. He was three times chosen the head of a great political party and held the exalted office of secretary of state. His career is an other example of what American opportunity affords to those who have the will industriously to apply themselves.

It would be difficult to find among his contemporaries any one with so large a circle of friends and acquaintances who had so generously bestowed upon him their esteem and confidence."

By direction of the President, Secretary of State Kellogg announced Mr. Bryan's death, and the flag was displayed at half staff on all public buildings in Washington on the day of the funeral.

DEATH took another eminent American last week—Felix A. Blauvelt, our ambassador to Japan. He had been in for several weeks and died at Kuratsawa, a health resort. Throughout Japan the mourning for Mr. Blauvelt was general and sincere, for he had endeavored himself in the Japanese people and was held in the highest esteem by the officials there.

Our own state department feels his loss deeply, as do his many friends and admirers in the United States. Mr. Blauvelt, who was born in Galesburg

NEWS REVIEW OF CURRENT EVENTS

Sudden Death of W. J. Bryan Shocks the Country—His Burial in Arlington.

BY EDWARD W. PICKARD

WILLIAM JENNINGS BRYAN, one of the most notable figures in American public life, has passed on to another world, and his body now lies in Arlington National cemetery—a consistent disciple of peace surrounded by the ranks of those who died in the great service of their country.

The sudden death of Mr. Bryan in Dayton, Tenn., where he had just won a temporary truce against the theory of evolution, came as a shock to the country, and indeed to the world, for he was known in all lands. He died while he slept, of apoplexy aggravated by indigestion. He was sixty-five years old. After the holding of memorial services in Dayton the body was transported in a special train to Washington.

There in the New York Avenue Presbyterian church, the funeral rites were celebrated on Friday, and the casket on an artillery caisson and escorted by a military detail, was taken to Arlington where the War department officials had selected for the burial a fine site near the Admiral Dewey tomb. It was in this most beautiful cemetery in the world that Mr. Bryan had expressed his desire to be interred.

It would be presumptuous to undertake to characterize Bryan. There can be but few Americans who have not formed their own opinion of his character and his work. He had a devoted following of hundreds of thousands, a host of persons knew him personally and loved him, and every one was familiar with his life record and his views on all manner of topics. These complicated by the Democratic party for the Presidency he virtually controlled that party for years, and though he lost that control in 1900 he was still the leader of a powerful faction.

Countless of politics his influence on the life of the people was immense—an emotional rather than an intellectual influence. From President Coolidge's telegram of condolence to Mrs. Bryan may well be quoted these phrases:

"Mr. Bryan has been a prominent figure in public affairs for a third of a century. He has been a leader in the advocacy of many moral reforms, and was representative of the effort for purity in our political life. He was endowed with the great gift of eloquence.

The sincerity of his motives was beyond dispute. He was three times chosen the head of a great political party and held the exalted office of secretary of state. His career is an other example of what American opportunity affords to those who have the will industriously to apply themselves.

It would be difficult to find among his contemporaries any one with so large a circle of friends and acquaintances who had so generously bestowed upon him their esteem and confidence."

By direction of the President, Secretary of State Kellogg announced Mr. Bryan's death, and the flag was displayed at half staff on all public buildings in Washington on the day of the funeral.

DEATH took another eminent American last week—Felix A. Blauvelt, our ambassador to Japan. He had been in for several weeks and died at Kuratsawa, a health resort. Throughout Japan the mourning for Mr. Blauvelt was general and sincere, for he had endeavored himself in the Japanese people and was held in the highest esteem by the officials there.

Our own state department feels his loss deeply, as do his many friends and admirers in the United States. Mr. Blauvelt, who was born in Galesburg

SCHOOL DAYS

Getting Rid of Ants

Sprinkle whole cloves wherever ants are found and they will disappear as if by magic. The remedy, although highly objectionable to the ants, is not in any way objectionable to human beings. It is quick, clean and certain. Whole cloves will also expel all other creeping things when they come creeping out of bounds, says a contributor.

THE YOUNG LADY ACROSS THE WAY

Whale Had Lived Long

A whale caught off the coast of Greenland not long ago had in its belly the head of an old harpoon which experts estimate must have been there for 30 years at least.

Neenie Maxwell

© 1924, Western Newspaper Union.