TAXES PAID BY ALL CITIZENS ARE MADE PUBLIC BY RULING

Possible to Estimate Wealth of Others by Careful Study of the Open Lists.

PUBLICATION IS UPHOLD

Washington, September 1.—The Supreme Court today upheld the publication of the names of taxpayers who pay more than $1,000 in taxes.

The court ruled that the publication of the names of taxpayers who pay more than $1,000 in taxes is not a violation of the right of privacy.

The court's decision is based on the fact that the publication of the names of taxpayers is a public record.
