Watch Cow's Temperament

Most temperamental of all farm animals is Madame Dairy Cow, according to the Larousse Institute of Animal Economics. She who is considered by most persons as the incarnation of calm and the living contradiction of nervousness is really the fittest and most thoughtful, work-anxious on the part of the dairyman now devoted to the pampering of her whites.

bars to call her fussy," according to the institute, "but the extent to which she is governed by her temperament is really amazing. The slightest variation from the daily routine inevitably results in a lowered milk production. A change in the stall, or feed, unusual change in the weather—Madame Dairy Cow notices none of these things. It is sure to show it in the weight of her milk for the day, or, perhaps, several days after she has been particularly upset by something.

"Madame Dairy Cow is especially sensitive to changes in feed and the loss of many a well-dowered dollar of the cow owner may be traced to it. This does not mean a change from one brand of feed to another but rather to the inevitable and unsuspected changes such as the substitution of another brand of feed, or a change in the manufacturer of the feed. Such changes affect the feeding value of a ration and Madame Dairy Cow spots them all. She is fussy about the flavor of her ration, and does not care who knows it. There is just one thing she craves and that is uniformity. She approves of it and demands that her ration have exactly the same feeding value, the same flavor, and the same day out, month in and month out. If she is to give the maximum production which that particular ration will permit. This is a real problem for those who mix their own rations and the manufacturer of dairy feed is no less a victim of these variations. Only one feed manufacturing concern, so far as is known, has by means of an ingenious device solved this problem. Through a system of storage blending and blending on a large scale, this organization is producing a composite of many different lots of the same ingredients in their feeds that is giving them a mixture as perfectly uniform as it is humanly possible to make it. Such uniformity in feed affords Madame Dairy Cow the least possible excuse to display her fussiness."

It is never easy to reduce expenditures or cost of living. If one-half the effort which is made to increase one's personal savings were directed toward careful and economical management of one's personal spending, a big step would be taken toward solving our national economic problems.

The average man or woman will readily apply a system of control over the business or household budget as to work to be done—things to be accomplished—but for some unknown reason will not apply the same control to personal financial affairs.

Wise expenditures is not mere economy or a business or any particular will spend. It is simply wise regulation. It is directing the power of money and doing away with its lost motion.

MAHAFFEY FAN HOUSE DESTROYED BY FIRE

Fire, presumably caused by a short circuit of electric wiring, resulted in the destruction of the Mahaffey Coal Company's fan house about half a mile east of Mahaffey at nine o'clock on Saturday morning. The house had burned completely before being discovered. The Mahaffey Fire Company responded to an alarm but was unable to save the fan house. The loss is estimated at about $12,000, partly covered by insurance.

Health Rules Lead to a Cure

It is generally accepted that tuberculosis is more easily prevented than cured. That it can be cured, however, is shown in many cases where an early diagnosis is secured.

Two typical instances of the early discovery of tuberculosis are reported by the Reading Sanatorium for the Treatment of Tuberculosis, which is affiliated with the Pennsylvania Tuberculosis Society and is supported by the sale of Christmas Seals. The one observed the rules that lead to health and the other did not.

About two years ago a Reading man went to the office of the organization for a health examination. A thorough examination proved that the germs of the disease were present in an active form. The man had been losing weight steadily and had begun to cough. The case was so far developed that sanatorium care was deemed imperative. The man became a patient in a state sanatorium. He tried to follow every direction and six months ago he returned to his home, went back to his former job and today is supporting his family. He is having frequent health examinations at the free clinic.

Another male patient at the clinic had the malady, not nearly so far advanced as the first case. He also was sent to a sanatorium, but because he missed the companionship of his family he refused to stay. He returned to his home and during the past six months his case has become decidedly aggravated, and his presence in the family circle is a menace to every other member of the family.

Prevention a Big Factor

"Our progress in fighting tuberculosis has been somewhat meagre through prevention," said Colonel Henry W. Shoemaker, Christmas Seal Chairman for Pennsylvania. "The tuberculosis societies are doing a work of prevention whose value is hard to measure."

The heart of this life saving work is the Christmas Seal which comes back this year with a renewed promise of health and good cheer. The Seal teaches good health habits. "One of the biggest factors in this preventive movement has been the work among children. Through the Christmas Seal many thousands of Pennsylvania children have learned proper health habits through enrollment in the Misters Health Crusade. This effort also has included well baby clinics, nutrition classes, medical examinations, conducting of summer camps for undernourished children, and projects of similar nature."
