The DOOM TRAIL
by ARTHUR D. HOWDEN SMITH
AUTHOR OF PORTO BELLO GOLD ETC.

PRECEDING CHAPTERS

Harry Gorman, described as a stout, portly man, returned from France to London, bringing a bag of money. He was the grandson of a former steward of the Admiralty. He had been in the service of the Admiralty for many years, and had accumulated a handsome fortune. He had been in the service of the Admiralty for many years, and had accumulated a handsome fortune. CHAPTER II—Continued

"He is no enemy to be slighted," I said.

"No, he thrives upon opposition," but—

"A secretary rapped for order." To the king's most excellent majesty in council, he recited from a document he held, "The humble petition and representation of Samuel Barker, Samuel Stokes, Richard Janeway and others, merchants of London, trading to New York, in behalf of themselves and the rest of the persons concerned in the New York trade, which petition, having been considered by his majesty's council, hath been referred, with his gracious consent, to the lords commissioners for trade and plantations."

was well thought of, Master Harry. We must not let him get ahead of us. You must sail on the first passage available. Do you follow me?" And he started off as fast as his legs could carry him, bumping and prodding his person against all who did not move from his path.

"What will you say, Tom?" Jenkins returned Juggins. "How are you?"

"A good afternoon to you, Tom Jenkins," returned Juggins. "How are you?"

"Aye, New York province."

"The bury man consulted his record book."

"We had the ship New Venture. At that time, sailing from Greenwich the end of the week. What's your cargo?"

"Mind your place boy," he rebuked me.

Then he continued half apologetically to Master Juggins—

"This fellow Jenkins put a slight upon me before the lords of trade, and the lord's a good youth and devoted, though fresh come out of Dorset, as you may see—was most indignant on my behalf. And now about the passage? I'll pay well. Sure, you can always find room for an extra man on shipboard."

Daddy's Evening Fairy Tale
MARRY GRAHAM BONNER

THAT LOST HOUR

Mahalla had simply lost an hour that day. She really had not known what had happened to it and then, wonder of wonders, a little gnome had appeared.

His name was Someone and it was he who was the creature meant when people said that "Somebody" must know or that "Somebody" could do this or that.

Someone Bade Her a Polite Farewell.

orles stayed on people could always summon them to their minds when they wished.

And then Someone took Mahalla back home.

There was something about the Valley of Memories that made her want to send only memories she cared about there, for why memories and selfishness and hoard memories and such a dreadful time when they arrived.

Salts Fine for Aching Kidneys

When Back Hurts Flush Your Kidneys as You Clean Your Bowels

Most folks forget that the kidneys, like the bowels, sometimes get sluggish and clogged and need a flushing occasionally, else we have backache and dull misery in the kidney region, severe headaches, rheumatic twinges, torpid liver, acid stomach, sleeplessness and all sorts of bladder disorders.

Used All the Other Dishes

Mrs. A. "Was your vacation an inexpensive one this year?"

Mrs. B. "Dear me, no! My husband broke a lot of my best china."

A dear girl is apt to make a poor young man feel cheap.

Tanlac Is Guardian of Her Health

Extreme Nervousness and Upset Stomach Relieved. Strength Restored. Says Tanlac Adds Years to Life

"I thought my days were at an end," says Mrs. Sarah Vose, 63 Wells St., Kingston, Pa., whose marvelous recovery from a long period of suffering surprised her closest friends. If you never feel well and just drag through the days, tired and fagged-out, if your stomach rebels at food and you spend miserable hours doled out by a mass of facts and statistics. When he sat down it seemed to me that no Englishman who thought of his own country's interest could resist the logic of his appeal.

"You will note," whispered Master Juggins in my ear, "that the name of Murray is not in the list. He appears here, not as the principal, which he is, but at the request of these merchants, who are his deacons, and ostensibly in their interest."

"You have heard the petition and reference of the council read," gabbled Pelham in whining voice, "we will now hear arguments by the opposing side. Who appears against the petition?"

Master Juggins rose beside me. His arguments were substantially those he had used with me, but worked additionally by a mass of facts and statistics. When he sat down it seemed to me that no Englishman who thought of his own country's interest could resist the logic of his appeal.

"This is our goods," he muttered. "They are our rivers, our trading posts, our people, the tribes which are friendly to us—and now they use our ships."

"Often," admitted Jenkins disinterestedly. "Since the peace of Utrecht he has done a sight of shipping business with the Frenchies."

"Is to our shame," declared Master Juggins roundly,

They had to fuss and change and rearrange themselves instead of being able to enjoy the place at once.

A lost hour was a pity as it was not an hour which had lost itself but only through her, though sometimes lost hours were lost by her when they passed so quickly with fun.

That was quite all right. But she didn't want any ugly, dragging hours. They had such shuffling feet, and seemed so ashamed of themselves when they came arriving in the Valley of Memories.

"I think you here."

"He who hath the interest in the Frenchy," responded Jenkins. "Well, lad, keep your hands off him, despite his insults to your master. And what's your name?"

"I felt something brush against my coat sleeve and looked around. I had just time to see the back of a gaily dressed and a poorly black head, crowned by an ornate crooked hat, disappearing in the crowd."

"Do you see?" I said.

"Aye," responded Juggins grimly. "I might have known it. Well, it's a lesson in time. We will not forget it."

Indigestible Dish

There is one dish which must appeal to every child reader of the "Arabian Nights" and that is the cucumber soured with pearls which is mentioned in one of the stories. The idea of those priceless pearls bursting through the skin of a cucumber must have tantalized many a youngster whose imagination was so freely unbridled that he would consider what a real indigestible dish it was.

Desert Reservoir

In the hot desert region of Arizona and Mexico the cactus stores in its thick leaved stem a drop of water or dew that it can use, so that there is always a supply for a dry season. In reality the stem of the cactus are the remnants of its leaves, and the so-called leaves are the modified stalks. In the western regions where the cactus grows it has very little use for leaves that would only wither away from the heat, so it reduces them to a very effective weapon against all enemies, and then swells the stalks to make the kind of water tank it can best use for its purposes.

Snakes Eaten as Food

Snakes, considered by some peoples as food delicacies, are a specialty in the new Klump restaurant in Tokyo, Japan. The proprietor is a well known Japanese chef and his juicy fried snakes already have a great and wide vogue, it is said.

Have a lovely Complexion

You can make and keep your complexion as lovely as a young girl's by giving a little attention to your blood. Remember, a good complexion isn't skin deep—it's health deep.

Physicians agree that sulfur is one of the most effective blood purifiers known to science. Hancock Sulphur Compound is an old, reliable, scientific remedy that purges the blood of impurities. Taken internally—a few drops in a glass of water, it gets at the root of the trouble. As a lotion, it soothes and heals.

"Why are you late for breakfast?" asked Bobby's father as the boy slid silently into his chair.

"Well, you see," explained Bobby, "when you called me, I was having a mighty funny dream, and I just slept a few minutes longer to finish it."
