BILL SAM'S DICTIONARY

By J. L. MARTIN
The old fiddlers' concert at Happy Hollow Friday night was a sore disappointment to everybody present, as the music was ruined by a couple of city fellows who were allowed to use their mandolin and ukulele in the concert. The fiddlers got so nervous the music sounded like it had palsy, and two or three times Bill Dooley, the best fiddler in the neighborhood, took the shimmies, dropped his bow, and began to pick the strings of his fiddle with his fingers.
