IN THE DEPTHS.

The other day a well known farme of the vicinity of Patton dropped into the Courier office on business and during a conversation with him, the following tale was gleaned:

The said farmer came to tow Wednesday of last week, principally to visit a local physician, and secure medicine for a sick daughter at home This he did. The medicine was bulky and required a large bottle to contain it. After securing it, he placed it is his wagon and went on another erran in town, after which he drove home Upon his arrival he discovered the medicine was missing and he was re quired to drive back to town for more Investigation disclosed that the bot tle was taken by by parties who pre sumed that the botle contained som thing "good to drink." Perhaps it die for the sick girl, but inasmuch as had nothing of alcoholic content in it it might have acted as poison to the bunch of direlicts that confiscated i Had it been wood alcohol it would have proved better. Such is the de ths men reach.
