

HELP FOR SICK WOMEN

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Has Restored the Health of Thousands

Brooklyn, N. York—Mrs. G. Hegmann of 228 Schaefer St., was in a run-down condition and could not do her housework. She could not sleep at night. Her story is not an unusual one. Thousands of women find themselves in a similar condition at some time in their lives. "I found your advertisement in my letter box," wrote Mrs. Hegmann, "and took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and got relief."

There are women in your state—perhaps in your town—who have written letters similar to this one telling how much Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has helped them.

The Pinkham Medicine Company, Lynn, Mass., will gladly furnish other women with these names upon request.

She Hadn't Seen It Please, ma'am," said the beggar, "I've lost my right leg."

"Well, it isn't here," said the woman, slamming the door.—New York Times.

Good health depends upon good digestion. Safeguard your digestion with Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and you safeguard your health. 572 Pearl St., N. Y. Adv.

STORY FROM THE START From the comfortable financial situation to which he had been born, Peter Milman, American gentleman of the old school, and last of his family, is practically reduced to penury through the misfortune of a friend unwisely trusted. Learning of Brewer's suicide, which means the destruction of his last hope, Milman engages a French butler, Achille Luty, who speaks no English, and he to replace Sneed, servant of long standing. By Luty, Milman receives letters to Prof. Fleming Bradney, Floyd Malet and Neeland Barnes, men whom the world has classified as failures, once of high position. In response, the three call on him at his home. After dinner each relates the circumstances that wrecked their careers. Milman convinces them that their misfortunes were all due to one man, Paul Raxon.

CHAPTER IV

When midnight was passed and the four men very comfortably seated about the fire, Neeland Barnes began to think there was to be no unmasking of his past. In a sense he was glad. These two men whom he had begun by despising seemed, after all, to have but considerable figures once. Barnes was a shrewd judge of men. He thought that they had spoken only the truth. The big man with the eager, gray eyes was most certainly no grifter. And as to the other, Barnes recalled his case well now it was brought to his notice. He had sneered at the sculptor's odd defense and believed it with most men about town a very poor excuse. But now he believed absolutely in Floyd Malet's integrity. In comparison, Neeland Barnes, professional man-of-the-world, felt rather a poor specimen.

"We now come," said Milman, breaking in on his reflections, "to the case of Mr. Neeland Barnes."

Mr. Neeland Barnes groaned inwardly. Externally he was urbane and gracious.

"Shearing the black sheep," he said, "A lesson to all young men. How not to live."

"Mr. Barnes," said Peter Milman, "is not so complex a type as his fellow-guests. He aimed at physical attributes rather than intellectual or artistic achievements. And he succeeded just as they did. I doubt if there is an American living who excelled in certain phases of sport as Mr. Barnes did."

"He was a man who might have passed a blameless life had his money lasted. There came a time when his relatives would not help and his horses could not win races. Finally, he was accused of some trickery at Saratoga and found his racing career at an end. Since then he has been living insecurely on what his few remaining relatives choose to give him."

"Mr. Milman," Barnes said, and there was a certain dignity in his bearing, "I have been almost every sort of a fool in my day. I have thrown away fortunes and gambled and drunk like a madman, but I never pulled any dirty tricks on a race track. I was always out to win and never betted against my own horses. I'm not what you might call a reliable man, and I've done things I'm heartily ashamed of now, but I did not do what the Saratoga stewards believed of me."

"What did they believe?" Bradney demanded. He knew nothing of racing.

"My trainer gave evidence before them that I instructed him to dope my entry for the Saratoga cup so that I might bet on another horse. Mine was the favorite. It did go to the post full of bronchitis, and the horse I was reputed to have bet on won at long odds. I had the trainer against me and the bookmaker, and because I was known to be in monetary difficulties, I was disbelieved. Not that I blame the stewards. They did their duty as they saw it. Somebody fixed my trainer and the jockey. I was forced out of the racing game, and found I hadn't a friend in the world. My wife would have believed me, but she was dead. I used what money I could get hold of to fight the thing, but the man, or men, who framed me had more money. I shall never know who it was."

"I know," said Peter Milman quietly. "You were not framed, as you term it, by any crooked owner of thoroughbreds. None of them was big enough to pull down a man of your sort. You had traditions and a name behind you. Your downfall came because you threw a man from the pier at Narragansett into the Atlantic ocean. Do you remember?"

"Yes," Barnes said slowly, "I think I do. There was a woman mixed up in it, but I forget her name now. She was one of those little fluffly blondes that were fashionable that season. Ah, I have it. She was a roof-garden girl. A man came up and tried to take a scene. My Aunt Sarah, who was most particular, was coming toward us. The thing would have been most disastrous because I had turned over a coatless to be added to her will. Fortunately, the man struck at me, and I thought the simplest way out of it was to drop him in the sea. Aunt Sarah, being short-sighted, did not even see him disappear." Mr. Barnes mused on the thing for a few moments. "Most extraordinary. I never saw him again. There was no summons, no publicity—nothing. I was a bit uneasy at first lest he should have been drowned, but somebody saw him crawling ashore. I never knew his name, and I never saw the blonde again."

"The man you threw into the water was the man who arranged matters so that you should be compelled to give up racing." There was a trace of triumph in Mr. Milman's manner. "You will never be able to prove it, so don't try."

"And I hoped he didn't drown," said Barnes, looking about for sympathy. "What's his name?" Barnes did not doubt his host's sincerity for a moment.

"All in good time," said Milman; "first let me show you his photograph." He unlocked a drawer and took the picture from an envelope. "Is that he?"

"As I remember it, yes," said Barnes; "but it's years ago, and there might be a possibility of error."

Milman passed the photograph to Floyd Malet.

"Do you recognize him?" There was excitement in the sculptor's voice. "It's the man with the fur coat who came to my studio that night. This is the man, I'll swear. What's his name?"

"That is the man to whom you all owe your misfortunes—Paul Raxon."

It was a thin, narrow face that stared back at them, but it was not the face of a fool. Few men without the early advantage of financial training had impressed themselves on Wall Street as he had done. The collapse of International Motors and the failure of the Hazen Brewer crowd to break him made Raxon for the moment the most spectacular figure in New York. And yet none of Milman's guests had ever before seen a photograph of him. He had a knack of outwitting the newspaper photographers. He had smashed many cameras. It had come to be understood that to attempt to photograph him was to incur the enmity of a man who never forgave or forgot.

"That he broke Professor Bradney was a precautionary measure and not born of any personal malice. No doubt his subordinates had found the professor was not rich and supposed him ripe for the fall. There is hardly a doubt that he has made enormous amounts by these methods, always covering himself with hopelessly compromised lesser men who dared say nothing. As to Mr. Malet, that was merely bad luck and not in the first design. I don't suppose Raxon had anything personal against him, but he recognized the opportunity to escape from a troublesome position. The only purely personal spite was in the case of Mr. Neeland Barnes. Raxon was intending to buy a big house at Narragansett and entertain largely."

"I don't remember the name there," said Barnes.

"He left the pier," Milman answered. "Raxon is curiously sensitive to ridicule. He could not remain to be pointed out as the man Neeland Barnes had contemptuously tossed into the ocean. It took him several years to get his revenge, but it was a complete one. He boasts that he never lets up, and ascribes his industry to this unnamable quality. His most spectacular hatred was that my poor friend Hazen Brewer incurred."

THE KITCHEN CABINET

(50, 1927, Western Newspaper Union) When a man will trust his wife with his name, his honor, and his children and will not trust her with his purse, it is easy to see on which he put the highest value.

FOODS FOR OCCASIONS

Some time when you want the delectable especially attractive, serve ice cream in an angel food. Bake the cake in a round tin. Remove the top take out the center and fill with vanilla ice cream. Cover with the cake lid and pour over the top enough crushed and sweetened strawberries to cover.

Chocolate Waffles—Make a paste of one-half cupful each of cocoa and hot water, then add one cupful of milk, two well-beaten eggs, two cupfuls of flour sifted with four teaspoonfuls of baking powder, one-half teaspoonful of salt, one-fourth cupful of water and two tablespoonfuls of melted butter. Mix all together well, add a half teaspoonful of vanilla and bake on waffle iron. Serve with a chocolate and marshmallow sauce.

Mixed Fruit Salad—Use one-half cupful each of shredded pineapple, chopped nuts, orange pulp, grapefruit pulp, halved maraschino cherries, and one and one-half cupfuls of sliced bananas. Mix the fruit and nuts and chill. Serve with one-half cupful of heavy cream whipped, adding two or three tablespoonfuls of mayonnaise dressing. Serve in nests of lettuce.

Angel Food Marquis—Prepare an angel food, using one cupful each of egg whites, sugar and flour, a pinch of salt, one-half teaspoonful of cream of tartar and a teaspoonful of vanilla. Beat the egg whites, adding the salt and half of the cream of tartar; add the sugar when the whites are beaten stiff but not dry, adding it gradually, then fold in the flour, to which the cream of tartar that remains is added. Bake in a tube pan for two hours in a very slow oven, browning the last few minutes in a hot oven. When the cake is cool, cut in three layers and put together with whipped cream, chopped banana and pineapple, with a few nuts and raisins if desired. Cover with whipped cream and serve.

Galantine—Put a pound of steak through the meat grinder, add two eggs beaten, the juice and rind of a lemon, one and three-fourths cupful of bread crumbs, a grating of nutmeg, salt and pepper to taste and one teaspoonful of tarragon vinegar. Pack into a well greased pan and steam four hours. Serve with tomato salad. Cut into thin slices when serving.

Eat much lettuce; it is rich in vitamins, lime, manganese, has some sodium and a generous portion of phosphorus.

Seasonable Reminders. This is the time of year when we dispose of the things we do not need, and which add to our labor or discomfort, by means of a small garden, even a few square feet, will bring to the table the crisp and tender lettuce—so good for us to eat, the rosy succulent radish and green onion, all with very little care and labor.

Save all bits of leftover paraffin from jelly glasses. When well washed it may be used again for another season of jelly.

Those who still use the old-fashioned irons will find a piece of paraffin a great help in keeping the irons smooth and free from rust.

It is wise to remember, when the berry season is on, that fruit picked after a rain will not jell and loses much of its flavor.

Fruit for jelly making should not be too ripe. The pectin which thickens the jelly is found in larger quantity in unripe fruit. Pectin is the thickening agent which makes jelly jell.

Some fruits have more pectin than others. Apple is always a good fruit to add to those fruits lacking in pectin. Strawberries do not make good jelly alone, but added to apple juice or a commercial pectin, are most desirable as a jelly.

Keep a cork on the spindle in your desk. It may save a scratch or an eye. Any green vegetable while cooking is of better color if kept uncovered.

Lettuce that has become too old to serve as fresh lettuce makes fine greens, cooked.

The uncooked stems of fresh mushrooms cut fine and served with almonds on lettuce with a good dressing make a fine salad.

Save meat and gather the delicious mushrooms now until frost in the fall; they will be found in fields, woods and pastures.

Acute attacks of appendicitis may be relieved at once by fasting, using enemas every two hours, lying on the back and covering the whole abdomen with hot applications, to allay the inflammation.

Now is the time to give away all useless articles of ornament, used clothing, furniture and dishes. This will make living simpler and more comfortable, besides giving some one else pleasure who has less than we.

Obeying Instructions "Oh—ah—by the way," remarked the doctor in some embarrassment, "how about that little bill I sent you last month?"

"Oh, yes," agreed the patient brightly. "Well, you know you told me not to worry over anything."—The American Legion Monthly.

RESERVATIONS TIME HAS BEEN EXTENDED

Time in which reservations may be made in the American Legion pilgrimage to France next September has been indefinitely extended by Howard P. Savage, national commander of the Legion, following urgent requests from the field. The reservations will be accepted and handled to a date as near as possible to that upon which the big Legion fleet of 24 vessels will shove off for France, it was announced by National Commander Savage. Many factors make it imperative that Legionnaires planning to take part in the France convention pilgrimage should make reservations at the earliest possible moment, said Commander Savage.

"I would not wish any Legionnaire to be barred from revisiting the scenes of the World War and the cemeteries where our comrades lie buried in France," said Commander Savage. "I cannot, however, urge too strongly that veterans planning to make the September pilgrimage make their reservations at once. There is now a variety of steamship accommodations and housing in Paris from which the veteran may make a selection to suit his taste and pocketbook. The space of the ships is rapidly filling, and some of the liners already have a full quota. Especially is this true of two-berth cabins and accommodations for man and wife.

"Veterans who recognize these conditions and make reservations early will be able to obtain accommodation they desire, while those who wait will have to take what is left," Commander Savage said.

There still remain accommodations with state delegations. The steamship accommodations range in price round trips from $145.50 up on most of the ships, and from $137.50 up on the S.S. Leviathan, flagship of the movement. The Legionnaires will be exempt from steamship tax and landing charges if they carry the official American Legion identification certificate. This certificate which will be issued for the nominal sum of $1 to those taking the trip will effect a saving of $20 alone in passport and visa charge if the veteran goes to France alone. Eighteen countries of Europe will accept the Legion certificate in lieu of passport and visa charge.

Fifty per cent reduction in United States, Canadian and French railroads to veterans having the identification certificate have been announced. The British, Belgian, Italian and German railroads have likewise announced a substantial reduction in fares to the visiting Legionnaires. Remarkable savings on Paris hotel accommodations were made by the Legion with the hotel men when the franc was low, are announced. Thirty thousand rooms in Paris are under contract.

Post Escorts Pupils on Visit to State Capital

The week after it completed a membership campaign which increased its membership 313 per cent and gave it second place in a state-wide contest, the Harry Howe post of the American Legion of Lynn, Ind., plunged into community service activities, taking the civics classes of Lynn and Sparta high schools to Indianapolis to visit the state legislature and state and national headquarters of the Legion.

Forty-five pupils were taken on the trip in automobiles provided by Legionnaires. D. J. Ferguson, principal of Lynn high school and a member of the post, and Raymond Sommers, post adjutant, led the group. Sessions of both houses of the legislature were visited, the pupils being shown how the laws of the state are made. A visit was also paid to the office of Governor Jackson. Later the classes were shown through the state and national Legion headquarters where the work of the Legion was described by John Klingler, adjutant of the Indiana department.

Massachusetts Legion O. K.'s Blue Uniform

Navy blue won in a conference of Massachusetts Legionnaires held in Boston recently on the question of an official uniform for the department. Seven models of uniforms were displayed. The type favored consisted of a blue overseas cap with gold piping and the Legion seal in gold, a single-breasted blue coat with brass buttons, brass numbers showing the wearer's post, brass letters "M. A. S." on each lapel and a large Legion emblem embroidered on the left shoulder, and blue trousers with a gold stripe down each leg.
