A STRONG MIND AND BODY BEST FOR ALL
"Lindbergh's feat of crossing the Atlantic will go down in history as one of the greatest adventures of all time. And while the nation universally acclaim him a hero he persists in his fascinating modesty and in the use of 'we', said Dr. Theo. B. Appel, secretary of health, this week.
"Lindbergh knows full well that the strong mind in the strong body was the guiding force of his epic achievement; and as an inspirational lesson in the advantages of clean and sane living habits it stands perhaps without a parallel for the youth of today.
"But Lindbergh has not forgotten that the motor in his plane after all did the work that raised him from an unknown boy off the ground at Long Island and set him down at Le Bourget, a world figure. Hence the logic, 'we'."

"Unlike the hero of the hour the average person does not recognize the absolute partnership existing between him and his motor—the heart. And calamity sometimes results."
"Indeed, the situation is assuming rather important and alarming proportions. For the forgotten heart receiving no attention, and in thousands of instances being subjected daily to harm,resents this carelessness—and flops."
"Therefore, take all the credit you feel like taking for your achievements—your heart will not be insulted if you do not use the impersonal 'we' when referring to it and yourself. But let your oversight be one of grammar only."
"Remember that everything you do, in the last analysis, rests on the proper functioning of that marvelous piece of mechanism within your chest. Give it a square deal. Which means, do not habitually over-exercise. Do not over drug it with coffee and tobacco. Give it sufficient rest each day. See to it that it is daily sustained with the proper amount of nourishing food."

"The national increase in heart disease in 1926 over 1925 was 5.7 per cent. This tells its own story. Typhoid fever, diphtheria, and tuberculosis are being conquered. They can in great measure be controlled through public health measures. But the heart and its condition are vitally personal matters. You and you alone are usually responsible for its defects."
"Your life is a lone flight—like Lindbergh's. Don't forget the 'we'. Sall on to a ripe old age. Barring accidents, your chances of reaching the goal are good. But to do this you must take your heart to heart."
