Daddy's Evening Fairy Tale

MARY GRAHAM BONNER

WITTY WITCH

The fairies are very fond of the lizards, so today, as it was raining a little bit, the fairies gave a supper picnic for them.
When the red lizards got there ahead of the others they saw all the fairies dressed in wonderful costumes of red.
Of course, the lizards were very much pleased that the fairies had paid them such a compliment as to dress up in the color they always wore.
And when the gray lizards came crawling along, the fairies all changed their costumes to gray.
And all through the afternoon first they would be red and then they would be gray.
And their wands all matched whatever color their dresses were.
After they had had some games—some very queer, crawling-around-the-ground games that the lizards love so well—then the wonderful supper took place.
Everything that the lizard family is fond of was on the long supper table at the fairies' picnic.
And as for decorations! Well, the fairies had gone to a great deal of trouble for this party and they had special help from the raindrops.
The table was very long and also very low down, almost touching the ground.
There were benches around covered with moss and soft, damp earth, which the lizards thought was quite perfect.
On the table were red candles, which strangely enough did not go out when the raindrops came down, but instead burned all the brighter and just flickered with fun every time a raindrop fell on them.
The raindrops made the table glisten and look as though there were sparkling lights bobbing up everywhere around.
There were red berries on the table and all sorts of good things made out of moss and earth, and goodies from the woods.
In fact all the bushes had been only too glad to give the fairies lots of berries and other delicious things to eat for the picnic supper.

But after all the supper was over with, the Fairy Queen surprised everyone by saying:
"Now, Old Witty Witch is coming to tell us stories and do tricks for us."
"Her first name is Witty, as you know, because she is very funny, and so in high honor of her 'wit' they have always called her 'Witty.'"
"And, of course, her name is Witch—for you will understand when you see her tricks that she certainly is a witch."
Witches feel very badly that some children think they would frighten them.
They can't help looking old and funny—that's what makes them witches—and the kinds of tricks they do—but they think children are pretty nice, and wouldn't frighten them for worlds.
And at the supper picnic the little lizards crawled up and sat in old Witty Witch's lap, and the fairies all gathered around, while old Witty Witch gave them all a fine evening full of jokes and surprises.

- Riddles
- What poet was never slow? Swift.
  - How do locomotives hear? Through their engineers.
  - What pain do we make light of? Window pane.
  - Why is a caterpillar like a pancake? Because it's the grub that makes the butter-fly.
  - What two letters in the alphabet represent a British admiral? BT (Admiral Beatty).
  - Why are bells most disobedient? Because they won't keep still when they're tolled (told).
  - Why should horses be unnecessary in the Isle of Wight? Because the visitors prefer Cowes to Ryde.
  - What is the difference between a camel and an orange? The camel has the hump, and the orange has the pip.
  - What is the difference between a donkey and a postage stamp? One you tick with a stick; the other you stick with a lick.
