CONWAY SIGNS UP TWO CLEVER FIGHTERS
Everything in readiness for his boxing show at Johnsonburg next Monday, Dec. 5.

For the curtain-raiser of the all-star boxing show to be held in the Auditorium Johnsonburg, Monday evening, Conway and Luffler have signed up George Peck, rugged little brawler of Pittsburgh, to swap blows with Eddie Carver of Johnsonburg. Both Carver and Peck have had considerable ring experience and their fight will be in line with the other bouts on the card.

The main attraction between Harry Taylor of Ontario Can. and Teddy Walsh of McKeesport will also comprise two junior welterweights who simply do not know when to quit boxing. In their last fight in Johnsonburg they had the fans on their feet all the time with their terrific boxing. The fight has been training for the last few weeks and it would not be a surprise to fight experts if their battle ended in a knockout one way or the other.

Andy Tomasky of Wilmerding and Eddie Meyers of Detroit, Mich., are scheduled to meet in an eight-rounder on the same card. Tomasky has appeared in Johnsonburg on several occasions and has always given the fight followers a good show for their money. Meyers is one of the best light fighters in the Detroit section and is trying his best to break into the Pennsylvania ring.
