Benefit of Thorough

Training Made Plain Once upon a time there was a little boy who was imbued with the ambition to become a great novelist

One day he said to his father: "Dad, I wish to become a great writer, the author of books which will entertain the world. What shall write about?"

"Son, you should write about ad venture," replied the loving father. The parent, who wished for his son a great success and a place in the Hall of Fame, gave his entire time to the education of the offspring.

The boy was taken all over the world to get first-hand information regarding every sort of land and every kind of people. He was shown everything that had to do with adven ture. He was taken to Iceland and to the South Sea islands so that he would know every clime and every country.

He was taken across plains and deserts and ranges of mountains. He was taught, from actual experience. about typhoons and hurricanes and cyclones. His education was lacking in nothing that would form a ground work for wonderful stories of the adventures of men under the most try

Apologetic Man Gets

Little Out of Life A really gifted financier can coin the golden sunshine and the silvery laughter and make two bank accounts grow where but one grew before, all on a capital as ethereal as the blue which will include an Early Diagnosis Campaign, was outlined and apdome overhead, comments the Muncie Evening Press.

But the apologetic man can't exchange a $10 gold piece for $5. Any dominant personality with blue-shaven, square jaws can look the little fellow over and after piercing with a glance the latter's shifting eye, tell that the honest but bashful man is a crook. The grocer looks over the self-apologist coldly and bites the coin that is handed over the counter before condescending to accept it.

And, somehow, the apologist always has a way of wearing his clothes like he had stolen them off a clothesline somewhere, and he can't put up a "front" without he has better attire than he can afford. The humble man never gets credit for anything until he dies, and then the preacher, casting around for some thing good to say of him, puts in the worst knock of all by saying: "He hadn't an enemy in the world."

Pity the Woman Artist

Good artists are treated very badly If one is a good artist and a woman it is even worse; and if one is a good artist and a good woman, it is, if you will pardon me saying so, absolute hell. There are moments when I long to be a member of the leper colony of Sumatra. These unfortunate people are at least regarded as objects of romantic interest, whereas artists. or at any rate good artists, are not. It is hardly respectable to be good nowadays.-Edith Sitwell.

Made Name Famous

At first Napoleon was known by his full name, just the same as any other citizen or soldier of France. Later. when he became emperor, he assumed the name of Napoleon I. It is cus tomary for kings and emperors to have but one name, as Wilhelm III of Germany, Nicholas II of Russia. etc. They also had family names. such as Hohenzollern and Romanoff, but these names are seldom used in referring to them.

Christmas Seals Protect Health of

Many Uses For Santa's Seals

This is the twentieth year that the Christmas Seal has been sold to supply funds for fighting tuberculosis. The 1927 Seal pictures Santa Claus on his sleigh drawn by four reindeer. It is Santa's Seal and can be used to decorate many things besides letters and packages. It can be placed on Letters and cards, Gift packages, Monthly bills. Insurance policies, Legal papers, Notes, checks, etc., Lodge notices, Magazines and papers, Milk bottles. Pay envelopes, Restaurant menus. Candy boxes, Merchandise packages.

Seal Benefits Every Person Says Governor

The Christmas Seal campaign against tuberculosis has benefited all the citizens of Pennsylvania, according to Governor Fisher, who is Honorary Chairman of the Christmas Seal Committee for Pennsylvania. The Governor said: "The great united campaign against tuberculosis has been of unusual value to Pennsylvania because it has benefited every community and all the citizens of each community have profited in various ways.

"Foremost in this effort stands the saving of thousands of lives annually, which means so much in the family life of the State. Economically, the campaign has benefited practically all citizens, including the merchant, the manufacturer and the worker. "The bright little Christmas Seal has represented the heart of our people in this great fight against tuberculosis, a preventable disease, but which is no respecter of persons. In of the Christmas Seal, I am confident it will be welcomed as an important aid in further reducing the ravages of the White Plague."

The Early Diagnosis Campaign which will be nation-wide, will be directed in this State by the Pennsylvania Tuberculosis Society, with the co-operation of its affiliated organizations and the medical societies.

Tuberculosis Battle Only Half Finished

Col. Henry W. Shoemaker, in announcing his acceptance of the Christ-mas Seal Chairmanship, appealed to Pennsylvanians to rally to the halffinished task of conquering the plague of tuberculosis. Colonel Shoemaker

"A half-finished task faces Pennsylvanians in the fight to wipe out tuberculosis. In 1906 the death rate from tuberculosis in Pennsylvania was 151 per 100,000 and in 1926 the rate was 77 per 100,000.

"Notwithstanding the fine progress made in combatting the White Plague, it took the lives of 7391 Pennsylvanians in 1926 and it is still our most costly disease. Much work remains to be done against this preventable disease, which claims the majority of its victims between 20 and 45 years of age. Besides the heavy loss through death, there is a terrific drain on the welfare of the commonwealth through the continued incapacity of sufferers for periods of from six months to six years. About 60,000 persons in Pennsylvania have active tuberculosis and about the same number have the disease in an arrested or quiescent state. "One of the greatest weapons in the progress made in fighting tuberculosis is the Christmas Seal.'

Formative Years May Have "Made" Carlyle

He was born December 4, 1795, in Ecclefechan, Scotland. His father was exceedingly stern and Thomas childhood was, as he afterward remarked, wholesome rather than joy ous. Seafaring Men Long Clung to Sea Serpent

Since the days of the first seafarers who peopled the ocean with mer and mermen—as well with awful monsters, the belief in sea serpents and similar marine wonders has been firmly held by many

In modern times sea serpents were reported to have been seen along the coast of the United States and Canada in 1806, 1816, 1844 and 1846, and in the latter years similar creatures were reported to be prevalent along the Norwegian coast.

The first case which gained any credence among scientific men, however, was the report of Captain McQuhas of the British navy, commander of the warship Daddalus, who declared that on August 6, 1848, while en route from the Cape of Good Hope to St. Helena, he and his men saw a strange monster of great size, having many characteristics of the sea serpent of the popular imagination. After long discussion, however, the scientific world decided that the "serpent" was a species of seal inhabiting the South seas.

Strawberry Tree

Apart from naturalists and botanists there are probably few people who are aware of the existence of the strawberry tree, as distinct from the strawberry plant. Yet there is such a tree. It usually bears flowers about the end of September or beginning of October, and along with the flowers are found the fruits of the previous year.

The fruit is a large orange-red berry, closely resembling the strawberry; hence the name of the tree. The strawberry tree is not a native of England, and in this country is seldom found outside parks and gardens, but in Ireland it is frequently found growing wild, especially in the

Nelson's Column

The Nelson column in Trafalgar quare, London, cost the comparatively small sum of £28,000, including the statue, but excluding Landseer's four lions, which were not added until 1868, nearly twenty-five years after the completion of the memorial itself. This long delay in the delivery of the lions sorely tried the public's patience. and when they were eventually forthcoming opinion was by no means unanimous concerning their artistic merit. Many cruel jests were uttered at their expense, one being that the old lion on top of Northumberland house refused to acknowledge them as brethren.

Reason and Instinct The amount of conscious reason that an ordinary man uses in his life. compared with the great unreason or blind impulse and inborn tendency that impel him, is like his artificial light compared with the light of day -indispensable on special occasions, but a feeble matter, after all. Reason is an artificial light in the sense that it is not one with the light of nature and in the sense that men possess it in varying degrees. The lower animals have only a gleam of it now and then. They are wise as the plants and trees are wise, and are guided by their inborn tendencies.-John Burroughs.

Rulers Believed in Early Working Hours The old Emperor Francis Joseph of Austria used to leave his bed every morning at four o'clock, sometimes even at 3:30. Clad in an old wornout general's cloak, and on his head the only correct regulation officer's cap in the entire Austrian army, he worked until six. He went to bed every night at eight. Frederick the Great always began his day at five, and during the last few months prior to his death his privy councillors had to bring him their reports at four in the morning. He consoled them with the remark that "it would not last much longer."

Emperor William I was at his desk every morning at seven; while his grandson, the ex-kaiser, when he came to the throne, always rose before seven. This was a severe trial to Prince Bismarck, who hated to have to attend in conference on the sovereign at eight in the morning.

Up till midnight the iron chancellor generally had a gathering of friendly politicians about him, then he worked till four, and slept till ten the following morning.

Flint Axes of Stone

Age Found in Sweden The 4,500-year-old-stock-in-trade of a Stone age peddler in flint axes has been found by some workmen in a] gravel pit in the Swedish province of Soedermanland. The peddler's hoard consisted of a number of light-gray flint axes of exquisite shape and workmanship, evidently hidden in the ground by the trader, who seems to have wandered a long way from the south of Sweden to barter his axes for the precious furs of the hunters of the Soendermanland forests. The poor peddler seems to have met his death for he never returned for his axes that now are said to be the best find of its kind ever made in that part of
