Laugh at Lightning

mother shivers and you swallow hard and tell Johnny, "Pooh, pooh, there and the classic work of the late Docis nothing to be afraid of," and then duck your own head under the bedclothes-don't. You are right. There is nothing to be afraid of. The chance of a person being struck in his home is one in several million.

And if you chance to be at your desk in some downtown skyscraper, the lightning cannot reach you. from R. M. Spurck, an engineer of the new switchgear plant of the General Electric company at Philadelphia, in charge of the high voltage testing of The bolt might tear up the roof, or circuit breakers, where arcs of arti-

Not Mere Guesswork. "Shooting a million volts into circuit breakers to thoroughly test them before leaving the factory is not mere | ning conductors are centered. Most | house.

On the Other Side of the World

New York.—The next time the guesswork, The fundamentals are plumbing and heating pipes run up pany's laboratories, field observations, tor Steinmetz," Mr. Spurek said. If you reside on the top of a hill with no trees about, you are in a comparatively perilous position. But if you live in the average city home, with houses of equal height about you, lightning is likely to single you out about once every thousand years. As for the residents in the house be struck by the bolt that comes once even set it afire, but likely would get

Keep Away From Walls.

based on studies made in the com- and down in the middle of the house Keep away from the walls in which they run. Do not stand between two metal objects, such as a heating radiator and the plumbing pipes. There is nothing wrong with the superstition that the bed is a safe place.

In the modern steel office building lightning can't even get the roof. Most roofs of such buildings are metal and are purposely brought in contact at some point with the steel frame-You have the assurance for this one in several million that they will ries off any lightning that may chance to shoot down.

Perhaps the question of the efficacy of lightning rods has never been fully ficial lightning at from fifteen to twenty feet are played over apparatus to make sure there are no defects and that it will withstand conditions when that it will withstand conditions when the conditions when the conditions when the conditions when the carried impotent to the plumbing the carried impotent settled in the public mind. Lightning air vent-a pipe-that runs upward to, if not through the roof. It serves The safest place in your house is anywhere except where these light which pricks the air on the farmer's

Leave the Green Isle for America

Thousands of young Irish boys and girls are leaving Ireland every week with the enlargement of the American immigration quota. In one week 1,700 enthusiastic emigrants, such as are shown here, departed from Queenstown This picture was taken as a shipload of emigrants sailed.

AUSTRALIAN MERMAID

By THOMAS ARKLE CLARK Dean of Men, University of Illinois.

HAVE always thought that things would be very different on the other side of the world-different customs, a different language, different peoples. The South Sea islands have always spelled mystery and magic to me and dusky forms waving strange weapons in the air. India and the Malay peninsula I was sure was an other world.

My cousin Tracy, who is a banker with nothing to do on occasion but to sail the seas and to stop at strange and unfamiliar parts has been going around the world recently, an experience which is new neither to him nor to his much traveled wife. He sends me a bundle of newspapers from Singapore. Of course you all know what and where Singapore is. I do, since I asked Nancy, and she, to be certain, looked it up in the Atlas. It is an English possession, I believe, where the papers advertise "snappy fifteen dollars each-dollars, mind you; good American dollars, not pounds, shillings, and pence. They marry and murder in Singapore the same as we do in this civilized and enlightened country. They

The photograph shows Edna Davey who will represent Australia in the women's 440 meters race at Amsterdam this summer. Her best time for 440 yards is 6 minutes 3 4-5 seconds. And her beauty will certainly help the judges in picking winners.

fluence has not traveled so far. They and all sorts of sports and sportsmen have moving pictures, and just at the time when Tracy was there, Andy and cities. The other side of the world Min and Chester Gump were holding the boards. Think of little Chester doing his stuff in Singapore! It advertise motor cars and whisky (without an e) for Mr. Volstead's in political outrages there, and men are lonable hotels, they use safety razors

History in Wampum

ess belts of Indian wampum recently added to the collection in the New York state museum make it one of he Snest groups of these "historical ocuments" in the world.

The belts were left to the museum by the will of Anna Treadwell Thacher, whose husband, John Boyd Thacher, purchased them in 1893 for $500.

The four new belts in the collection are known as the Hiawatha belt, the Washington Covenant belt, the Wampum to Mark the First Sight of Pale-

one might suppose

SUCH IS LIFE -No Hurry Whatever -By Charles Sughroe

to be the original record of the forma-tion of the Iroquois league. The exact age of the belt is unknown, but it is believed to have been made in the middle of the Sixteenth century.

The Washington Covenant belt was the one most highly prized by the wampum keepers of the Onondaga nation. It derives its name from its use during the Presidency of George Washington as a covenant of peace between the thirteen original states

The Champlain belt is virtually a duplicate of the Gen. Eli S. Parker belt, also a part of the collection. It commemorates the excursion of Samuel Champlain into the country of the until now.'

DIPPING INTO SCIENCE

Millions of Insects we do in our own undergraduate-filled

There are between five and ten million species of insects in he world. Many of these are very necessary to us. Some help in destroying the harmful sects, others give us valuable medicine, and others still more useful carry the pollen from plant to plant, enabling them to bear their fruit and flowers. δασσοσοσοσοσοσοσοσοσοσο tions of the Iroquois, the great Indian

The third belt was made by the Iro-the first palefaces," but it is not

Spaniards, French or Dutch.

faces, and the famous Champlain belt. | which he represented and the six na-

BUT ITS AFTER SIX =

ARENT YOU AFRAID YOU'L BE LATE FOR SUPPER?

way in which our own unscrupulous medicines for rheumatism, and use oliticians are done away with. alarm clocks to rouse the lethargic They seem to have the same motor from their morning sleep, and they cars, the same lubricating oils, the sit through plays which depict the ansame rubber tires, the same varieties tics of college students the same as of ice cream and typewriters in Singapore as in Kankakee, Ill. It rather surprised me. There are military In fact the thing which impresses training schools and pacifists, and tenme as I read the Singapore Free Press nis clubs, and football associations. is that on the other side of the world things go on much as they do in these in Singapore as there are in our own middle western American towns of ours. People play the same games, does not seem so different from the eat and drink the same food, with side with which we are acquainted as only slight modifications, and in the main follow the same daily routine They dance after dinner at the fashand think the same thoughts.

MEAT!

PRICE FIFTEEN DOLLARS

ILA GORDON started with dismay as Mrs. Warren sat down side her in the street car. Her smile, however, was so cor dial as to disarm suspicion. Even un-der the other woman's critical stare she maintain her little air of gaiety, Yet she was tingling with the conciousness that her shabby winter hat and coat were in striking contrast to Mrs. Warren's smart spring attire.

displayed the wealth of her purse. She was evidently also going down town to shop and Lila, mindful of the twenty dollar bill which was her all bit her lip as she averted her eyes. She decided to elude her compan on as soon as they reached the downtown district but when she left the car Mrs. Warren followed her. "I am going to look at a living room chair," Mrs. Warren said, "Can't you ome with me and give me your "Why, of course," Lila smiled graciously. She hadn't the least doubt that Mrs. Warren's own opinion was sufficient for all purposes. It was only that she wanted to show off. The only way to defeat her was to behave as unenviously as possible. Lila therefore tried the luxurious depths of great stuffed chairs, admiring the shape and quality as generously as if she herself were making a selection. But as she patted the soft cushion she wistfully pictured her husband resting on at the end of his day's work. What a difference money made Mrs. Warren didn't stop at buying a chair. She also purchased a lamp and a table. There seemed no end to the quois to commemorate the "sight of contents of her purse. known whether this reference is to

"I am afraid I seem extravagant to you, Mrs. Gordon," she said, "but my husband's salary warrants my pleasing myself a little. We've been wanting these things a long time but, of course, they have never seemed quite possible

"In the spring one seems suddenly to require so many things," Lila said bravely. "Do we part here, Mrs. Warren?

"Why," Mrs. Warren's glance dwelt upon Lila's worn felt, "if you are going to look at hats I will come, too. I simply can't resist hats."

"Oh, hats, of course!" laughed Lila. She was thinking that it would do no harm to look into a hat shop. Perhaps ome way of escaping this woman would then offer itself. They entered the shop together. In fact Mrs. Warren led the way thither. It was a shop such as Lila seldom en The black felt she was wearing, like most of her headgear, came from humbler places. She gazed about her at the colorful display with wide wondering eyes. "I got a hat the other day," Mrs Warren said to the saleswoman, whose sharp eyes recognized the hat if not the wearer. "My friend wants a hat. Please show her what you have."

Lila flushed with embarrassment She had no intention of buying a hat. The most she had intended to do was to get a bit of trimming for a hat she had at home. Her twenty-dollar bill was dedicated to a sterner purposea linoleum rug for the dining room. The need for that had been so great that even Bert had seen the purchase could no longer be delayed. Her embarrassment increased as the saleswoman began to produce charming hats. Mrs. Warren insisted that Lila try on one after the other. They mistook the cause of her radiance and plied her with reasons why she should

It was a severe test, only a woman can understand how severe, Lila had every reason for wishing Mrs. Warren to think that she could have any hat she chose. She was proud and brave. not afraid to say no, but she was in a peculiar situation. Her air of bravado seemed to fail her. Owing to Mrs. Warren's interference she saw that she could not leave that place without buying a hat. If she did Mrs. Warren would know what she was trying so hard to conceal and, knowing, Mrs. Warren would exult. Indeed it came to Lila in her perplexity that Mrs. Warren was putting "it up to her," as Bert would say. She was trying to see what Lila would do. It was this last thought that made Lila reach over, select a hat and place it on her own head. It was not that it was be coming and serviceable, it was only that she had caught sight of the price tag. It appeared to be marked $5 "I will take this hat," she said care-

"Fifteen dollars," said the sales-

Lila's heart turned, but beholding her own face in the mirror she saw that she did not blanch.

"Very well," she replied, and care lessly handed out her $20 bill, taking are that Mrs. Warren should not see it left her purse empty save for a few "And now," she said smilingly to the other woman, "I think I will just run home with my new chapeau. If it had not been so far she would ave walked by way of penance. As t was no one who saw her in the new hat knew what was going on behind her dark eyes. She swung off at the corner. Her steps lagged as she neared ie apartment house. Suddenly the life seemed to go out of her. How could she confront Bert? What would say to her? What would be do? He was not at home she saw as sh inlocked the door, but there were evi-

She took off her things and sat down n the old morris chair and bowed her head on the arm and wept. In all the six years she had been married she had wept but once before and that was the other day when Bert lost his job. Yes, she had wept then, but not as she wept now, never as she wept now. Bert out of work, so many things needed in their small apartment and she buying a $15 hat! Yet she had been forced to do it by that woman. Mrs. Warren had challenged her, she had accepted the challenge. The purhase was the result. The terribleness of chance! If she had taken the preeding car or the one that followed in en minutes she could have avoided Mrs. Warren and this would never have happened. And now they must trip over the holes in the old dining room rug for a long time to come! For even if Bert found another job they would have to economize sternly.

A thing that is done cannot always undone and Lila resignedly arose, bathed face and began to prepare dinner by opening a can of salmon. She was wondering whether to make croquettes or an escalloped dish when she heard Bert's footsteps. As he entered his eyes fell upon the new hat which she had left in plain sight on pur-

"Hello! Been getting you a new topknot? Let's see how it looks on you!" He placed it upon her head, studying her downcast face tenderly. "All right -I like it. Look here, what are you

"Because I am a fool," Lila sobbed against his shoulder. "I paid $15 for that bot I shoulder. that hat-I really thought the price tag read only $5-I couldn't back out -before Jack Warren's wife, Oh, Bert! You know why." She poured out the details incoherently. "She ight over a hundred dollars' worth of furniture—I saw her do it. I couldn't let her think we were down and out just because her husband had got your job away from you. I acted as if we had all the money in the world and not a care. I-I think I fooled her. But, oh, Bert." He held her close, bending his fair head to her dark one.

"You are some girl." he said softly.
"Some little wife! Stop crying, love. It is all right. I am glad you did it. I understand."

She looked at him piteously. "I wouldn't have said a word if you'd-kicked me," she said. He roared boyishly.

"You game little girl! Listen here, ove. While you were going through the agony of that hat deal I was out hunting a job, I got one. Start in omorrow. Forty dollars a week and a spiffy chance for promotion. Go ahead and wear your new hat and enjoy it. That's not the only thing you re going to have."

"Bert!" she clung to him joyously.

They kissed, long, sweetly.
"Say!" shouted Bert. "What's become of that steak I brought home? Where did I put it? And the other hings? Hurry up and put the frying pan on. We're going to celebrate do you hear? Celebrate!"

Versatility of Goethe

Matter for Wonder

In these scientific days it is hard to believe that a man, less than a cen-

"There is a man!"

Goethe's child-mother gave him imagination; his father gave him depth. Who gave him, we wonder, that passion for being in love? Gretchen and Annette, Friederike, Charlotte and Maxmiliane, Lili and Charlotte again (this one the motner of seven children), Christine and Bettina, Minna and Marianna (he was sixty-five then), and last of all Ulrike, whom he wooed when he was seventythree-each of these, as she passed through his life, left some mark on his writings.

For Goethe's work was not merely the product of his inspiration. It was the product of his life.-From the Continental Edition of the London

Pomp and Circumstance Related of Benjamin Disraeli, in Collection and Recollection by One

"His style of entertaining was more

Stork Was Just Teasing

Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Poquette of Chicago were expecting a visit from wife preferred a daughter. When at last the stork arrived the anxious father was informed he had a brand new daughter. Almost before he could get ever the shock the nurse told him of the arrival of a second daughter. When a few minutes later the nurse again approached Poquette he braced himself for another shock. This time he was told he had a charming boy. Then the father cheered up; at last dences of him in the dingy living room. he had got his wish, out of the ground, quarrying for amber has started again at the great Prussian amber mining works here. which is the only plant of its kind in whole village of 800 people is employed in the plant.

German Amber Town

Amber, "Prussian gold," was traded at this little spot on the Baltic coast with the ancient Phoenicians. Fisher men dredged for it in earlier days Palmnicken lives on amber. The but more recently it has been dug out of the blue clay with machinery. Great hoppers bring up cars of clay rom an area a square mile in extent. The clay is washed for amber in much the same way as auriferous earth is washed for gold. Each season about 3,000,000 cubic meters of soil are

Just What They Are Looking For

Amber is found in clusters. The pieces are picked out and washed with sand in great revolving drums. An army of girls sits at a running band and picks out six recognized standard

Every year the "erop" runs to 125,000 pounds but only onethird of this is suitable for beads and rnaments. The rest is ground to powder to make "pressed" amber, or melted down to make varnish and co ophony. Amber oil and acid are byproducts obtained by distillation. Pieces of seven or eight pounds weight are not rare, but the biggest single tump ever found here weighed about fifteen pounds. In the laboratory, pieces of amber of all shades and sizes are keptbright amber, pale-yellow amber, plain and with flies, bugs or tiny leaves im bedded in them, dating from the ter tiary period when coniferous forests flourished here in a subtropical cli-

The most valuable amber bears the quaint name of "sauerkraut" because it is of a pale-yellow tinge and has markings suggesting strands of cut

Government Is Asked to Alter Girls' Dress Rome.-Bare arms, low necks and short skirts would be taboo for Italian high school and college girls if Minister of Education Fedele took the action asked in a letter now before him.

The body known as "the national mmittee for the correctness of the mode" has petitioned him requesting that all those whose costume "does not conform to that modesty which is dictated by civilized Christian usage and sentiment" be barred from the institutions under his control. The school supervisors in several large provincial cities have already publicly admonished girl students for "im-modest dress,"" but with little effect.

$$$$$$$$$$$$$$$$$$$$$ German Waiters Again Will Work in England

Berlin.-German waiters are work in English hotels and restaurants again for the first time since the war. Four German waiters have left Germany for England and others soon will follow them.

According to German estimates, more than 40 per cent of all employees in English hotels and restaurants before the war were Germans.

The Neue Berliner Zeitung states that the first group of German waiters to resume work in England and who have just departed, have been engaged for between $30 and $35 a weekfar more than they could earn

δοσοσοσοσοσοσοσοσοσοδ

Myrna Loy proves her talent for esigning by this simple yet beautiful inner frock of black pussy-willow taffeta with overdress of black dotted ace, showing the uneven hemline Two large bows at the hips of taffeta and lace add a touch of smartness to the gown, and a colored flower at the shoulder completes the effect. A large black satin and tulle hat is most ap propriate with this dress.

tury ago, could have been a master of law and medicine, an authority on war, statecraft and political economy; one of the leading art critics of his day; so keen a scientist that he nearly stumbled on the Darwinian theory half a century too soon; so ardent a wooer that twelve women are famous only because he loved them. Add to this cats ment that he was probably the greatest literary genius since Shakespeare, and we can hardly fail to eche Napoleon's brief and heartfelt comment,

Daily Mail.

Who Has Kept a Diary":

showy than comfortable. Nothing could excel the grandeur of his state coach and powdered footmen; but when the ice at dessert came up meltng, one of his friends exclaimed: 'At last, my dear Dizzy, we have got something hot; and in the days when he was the chancellor of the exchequer some critical guest remarked of the soup that it was apparently made with deferred stock."

Long-Handle Are Big

DUST-PAN

SA

Why stoop ov down on your k scrub, when you scrub brushes, d pans can all be h well as the mu Here is a farm handled dust-pan when cleaning a other dust-pan, should see that t straight, so that

be high and shape

dirt from falling or the dust-pan is r fairly heavy quali The housewife shown is a membe organized by the onstration agent. various pieces of chance to see which ed to the special vidual household.

nity arises, the pi The picture was to

Needed in Both vegetables the body with iro mineral matter, and are particularly ne of children, says the be served at least of help to keep the b flavoring for soups added to milk or served with meat

used, do not have i

it with scorched fa

are simple. Canar have been added ray keep only a few chase ready mixed.

does not furnish a

forms a good comb

and summer rape.

seed in prepared s

is of a species that flavor, but all relish true summer rape. COMFORT

Army Shoes Are

In choosing this se shoe for the United maximum of comfor for the wearer was forms to the correct described in Farmers in that it is broad a toe and straight alon It has thick soles, w feet against injury uneven surfaces and and slush, so that it i able for severe out As thick soles last ones, they are more