PATTON COURIER TO MOVE TO NEW LOCATION SOON

Thirty-Five Years in the Good Building Ends With This Present Issue.

GOING TO MASONIC ROOMS

With the remodeling of the First National Bank of Patton, and the consequent need of more space, it is the order of things that the Patton Courier shall move, and this work will be started on this week, in fact.

It is on account of this that the paper comes to you somewhat early this week, that it may not be up to its usual standard, and that some copy intended for insertion may have been omitted.

The change of location of the Patton Courier will be strange indeed to our patrons. For the past thirty-five years, or since the Courier was started in 1893, it has been located on the second floor of the Good Building.

We are moving to the Masonic building on Fifth avenue, in the quarters at one time occupied by Barton and Winslow. We feel that the change will do both ourselves and our patrons good. We have been handicapped for some time for space. This feature in our present location has curtailed the addition of some much needed additional machinery, and in the new location this feature will be overcome.

Of course it is going to take considerable planning and much hard labor to move our plant. At the time you will be reading this the work will have been started. It is our earnest hope to be able to print next week's issue of the Courier in our new location, but if we are a day or two late, we hope you will pardon us. We don't move often, and we hope we won't have to again for years to come.

JUST A FEW WORDS ABOUT MEASLES BY HEALTH MEDICO

"The large increase in measles during the past twelve months is a manifestation of the periodic return of this disease in epidemic form, which is likely to occur every third year. In many cities of the Commonwealth the peak already has been reached. On the other hand there are numerous sections in Pennsylvania that have not shown a definite increase in this malady. These latter localities may reasonably expect a decided addition to their measles rate during the 1928-29 season," said Dr. Theo. B. Appel, secretary of health, during the week.

However, all parents, whether or not they are living in communities already vigorously attacked by measles, should at all times carefully guard against the possibility of such infection on the part of their children. This can best be accomplished by avoiding contact with this type of illness.

"The first symptoms of this disease are affections of the eyes and nose similar to those usually associated with the common cold. It is at this time, before the appearance of the rash, that measles is highly communicable. Therefore parents should, as far as possible, keep their children away from other youngsters manifesting these early symptoms.

"Many people falsely consider this disease lightly. While individual cases may be mild the consequences frequently are serious. For example, it is well established that children who have had measles are particularly susceptible to tuberculosis for some time after the attack. Pneumonia, sinus trouble, and ear affections are complications requiring prompt professional care.

DON'T FORGET THE BIG HARVEST HOME PICNIC CHEST SPRINGS SATURDAY

All plans and preparations are now completed for the annual Harvest Home Picnic to be held in the grove at Chest Springs on Saturday of this week. A chicken and veal dinner and supper will be on the card, and there will be square dancing in the afternoon and in the evening until nine o'clock, after which time round dancing will feature until 12 o'clock. Competent orchestras have been engaged to furnish music for the occasion.

There will be games and amusements for all and the various committees in charge are stretching every effort to make this by far the best picnic ever at Chest Springs. Plan to drive out there for one of the meals.

LOCAL AND STATE NEWS OF INTEREST

Condensed items gathered from various sources for the busy reader.

In thirteen orders during the present year the Public Service Commission in this state has directed railroad crossing elimination which when completed will cost $973,187. The Department of Highways will pay $376,8834 of the cost.

Compilation of county allotments for closed schools this week revealed there are 2,509 of them in the state. The allotment for each school permanently closed or discontinued is $200.

Reports form headquarters of the Department of Public Instruction show that Junior Red Cross membership reached a total of 847,416 in the Pennsylvania schools during the past year.

Pennsylvania is not a good market for stolen cars, reports of the Pennsylvania Department of Highways indicate. The state highway patrol reports the arrest of 26 persons on stolen car charges during the month of July. Twice as many cars from other states were recovered in Pennsylvania than were stolen in Pennsylvania and recovered elsewhere.

Pennsylvania's forests comprise nearly one half of the state acreage, and the state is owner of about one-tenth of the forest land. Not a bad record for an eastern industrial state.

GENERAL ACCLAIM FOR GRAPHIC FILM

Critics and Public Alike Bestow High Praise on Film Showing Life of War Aviators.

Critics and the general public alike have acclaimed the "Legion of the Condemned," Paramount's screen play of the early days of the war from the air, which comes to the Grand Theatre on Tuesday and Wednesday of next week.

"The Legion of the Condemned" is filled with the romance the daring and the excitement which surrounded those birds of war for which no mission was considered too dangerous. It is chock full of unique thrills taken from the cockpit of the airplanes.

Here is the tale of a young American newspaperman, who, believing that his sweatheart has passed out of his life forever, plunges into the Legion of the Condemned, who personell consists of men who want more than anything else to die. Each and every one of them have pasts, and according to their philosophy, their sins may be expiated only through death.

He is torn between two fires, however, when he is confronted with the girl he loves over the German lines as a spy.

The Legion of the Condemned comes from the pen of John Monk Saunders, author of the famous road show, "Wings," and was directed by William Wellman, who handled the megaphone in "Wings." The latter was a member of the Lafayette Squadron during the war.

The cast consists of Fay Wray, who leaped to fame through her performance in Paramount's "The Wedding March," after being "discovered" by Eric Von Stroheim. Gary Cooper as the leading man and Barry Norton, Lane Chandler, Francis McDonald, Voya George, Freeman Wood, E. H. Calvert and Charlott Byrd.

The pilots of the "ships," a great many of whom assisted in the filming of "Wings," include many world famous names in the world of flying. Among them are Captain S. C. Campbell third ranking British ace, Ted Parsons of the French and Lieut. Rudolph Schlad, a member of Baron Von Rittche's Flying Circus.

The same technical work which made "Wings" such an outstanding hit, was employed in the making of this newest picture of the air. Having gained an unusual experience in the filming of "Wings" Director Wellman applied the same methods in the filming of this production and possibly introduced some new angles in the filming. The patron is taken aloft by the pilot, and flies right along with him in the cockpit, undergoing the same reaction the fighting pilot receives. The unusual film sequences in the air were obtained by employing the use of automatic cameras placed at advantage angles on the "ship."
