

PICTORIAL LIFE OF HERBERT HOOVER

No. 9

By Satterfield

1. En route to China, Hoover married his college sweetheart and took her honeymooning to Manchuria.

2. Rumors of discontent spread through Northern China. Violence threatened all foreigners.

3. When the Boxer uprising started, Hoover built works; Mrs. Hoover cared for the wounded.

4. Civil war ended Hoover's promising explorations in China, and he sailed with his wife for home.

a normal reading of the examination chart, 32 per cent of that number with their eyes controlled with 'drops' were definitely discovered to be far sighted. Such a condition makes it necessary for the eyes constantly to strain when they are engaged in close work.

"No child wants to wear glasses, and no parent wants it to be thus bothered. On the other hand, if by a trip to the eye specialist, such a report is made by him after examination, then personal feelings should be disregarded, and the required lenses for use during the school and study periods should be promptly obtained.

"Conservation of child sight should be a major concern of all parents. Far better the use of glasses, if required, during a few years of school life, than the starning of the eyes to the point where they are irremediably damaged. Glasses for a little while when young is much more sensible than glasses for all the time a little later on. It is entirely portable that many older people wearing lenses today would not be compelled to do so had proper adjustments been made to their eyes in early life.

"There are sufficient handicaps for every child. Do not add the frequently unnecessary one of defective vision. Keep your eyes on your child's eyes."

COPIES OF BALLOTS FOR NOVEMBER ELECTIONS LARGE

Copies of the official ballot to be used at the election November 6th, now in the hands of all county commissioners, are the largest in the history of the State Bureau of Elections. George D. Thorn, chief of the bureau, stated the other day. A copy of the ballot may be seen in the Courier office window. The ballots which voters will receive next November are 22 x 38 inches.

The ballot carries eight party squares and the electors for seven. Parties that qualified for a place on the ballot were the Republican, Democratic, Labor, Prohibition, American Industrialist, Socialist and Workers Communist. The American party has no presidential electors and the Industrialist but two.

Squares for United States Senator, State Treasurer, Auditor General, Judge of the Superior Court, Congress, the State Senate, and House, also are carried.

"Printing of the fourteen proposed amendments to the constitution is responsible for the unusual size of the ballot.

The amendment which would permit the state government to own and operate its own printing plant is No. 1 on the list of amendments, while the one known as the "Greater Pittsburgh" amendment is last.

WOODLOT LEADS AS AN INCOME PRODUCER SHOWN

Profits from timberlands are not alone confined to extensive forest areas but very frequently the returns from farmers' woodlots prove to be such a substantial source of income that they far exceed any other product of the farm. Such an instance has been reported to Forester Leroy Frons of the Pennsylvania Department of Forests and Waters, while making special forest research studies in Mifflin county.

W. F. Yeater purchased a farm near Paintersville containing 205 acres, 130 acres of which were in a farm woodlot. The forested area was cut over in 1900 and all the sound, merchantable timber removed. Only the deformed and unsound trees were left in the area.

The return from agricultural crops was not very promising. Five years ago Yeater began to study the possibilities of determining what returns could be had from his woodlot. Being interested in forestry he communicated with the Pennsylvania Department of Forests and Waters, with the result that he came to the conclusion that thinning and improvement cuttings could be carried on which would give him a financial return as well as improve the natural regeneration of the area.

His chief problem was to find a suitable market for his product. He found that there existed a good market in that locality for firewood. He purchased a gasoline engine and wood saw, and with the aid of a hired man set to work to remove only the poorest specimens of the undesirable trees. The first winter he sold 200 loads of wood at $4 per load. During the last four winters he sold 800 loads of wood, for which he received a total of $3200.

In speaking to Forester Frons he said that only about one-third of his woodlot had been cut over to date. He estimates that he spent for the sawing and labor, other than his own time a total of about $400, and that his net income from the woodlot during the last five years was $700 a year. The work was done during the winter months when it was impossible to do any other work on his farm.

Probably the most significant fact, Frons reported, in connection with the woodlot operated by Yeater is the fact that only dead, dying and trees of poor quality have been removed. The clean, straight and thrifty growing timber is left to stand, so that it may develop into high grade timber products. As a result of Yeater's operations he not only developed a very profitable enterprise by utilizing his spare time during the winter months, but in addition he left his woodlot in a more thrifty and better growing condition than before he began his improvement operations.

THE EYES ARE AN IMPORTANT FACTOR; SEE TO THEM NOW

"Under the direction of the U. S. Public Health Service, 2,000 children were recently subjected to an eye examination. The group was not a selected one. Consequently the results may be taken as an average condition more or less general throughout the country including Pennsylvania," said Dr. Theodore B. Appel, Secretary of Health, this week.

"No less than 45 per cent or nearly one-half of these children needed glasses for school work. While 60 per cent of the young people were able to make
