WEEKLY HEALTH TALK FROM STATE MEDICO
"There is a large number of persons who enjoy being ill. They seem to get a kick out of the idea that their machinery is out of gear and needs tampering with. This class passes in a large degree the same psychology as those foolish people who are forever tinkering with their automobile—pulling it apart and putting it together again, for no reason at all, except the adjustments made at the factory," said Dr. Theodore B. Appel, secretary of health, during the week.
"There is however a vast difference in possible results when the body and machinery are subjected to this tinkering activity. The worst that can happen to the machine is to ruin it. And money will buy another. But dollars and cents are not so potent when it comes to purchasing new human bodies.
"There are two main types of tampering. One is to neglect the high-powered eloquence of quacks and of quack remedies. The other is to get the imagination to work, develop a worry habit and thus think that one is ill.
"Just the other day an outstanding physician whose long and able hospital experience has made his statement said, 'Four per cent of all persons to visit doctors at hospitals have nothing wrong with them.' It is not hard to understand the wonderful cures by the advertisers and the advertised remedies where subtle people are concerned. It is difficult to appreciate the amount of actual suffering, both physical and mental, that worry over imaginary ills can inflict.
"Again, to self-diagnose one's condition, assuming that something is actually wrong, and thus repair to the patent medicine store for a glittering package of relief is also a hazardous bit of tinkering with one's physical economy.
"Therefore, if you think there is something wrong with yourself, don't brood over it. Visit a reputable doctor. If he says it is all in your head, believe him. Then get out into the open, fill your lungs with fresh air, see that you get plenty of sleep, eat regularly and sensibly—and forget it! On the other hand, if you are sick, again go to the doctor, and implicitly follow his instructions.
"Neither you nor your body benefits from tampering. So, don't do it."

FEED ALBINO RATS IN SEEKING IRON SOURCES
In a study of the power of foods to supply iron to the body, using albino rats as subjects, the Institute of Animal Nutrition at the Pennsylvania State College has made some interesting and important discoveries.
It was learned that a baby albino rat is born with the same percentage of iron in its body that the adult rat has, but during the time that it lives on its mother's milk alone its percentage of iron content diminishes one-half. Soon after the little rat begins to eat solid food its iron content returns to about a level throughout life, except as temporarily reduced by rearing of young.
When growing rats were fed so that they got protein and iron only from milk they grew very rapidly, but in five weeks as with the suckling rats, the iron content of their bodies was reduced to 50 per cent of the normal; that is, they became anemic.
With eggs as the sole source of protein and iron the growth was excellent, but the iron content, though higher in the milk fed rats, was definitely below normal. Rats which received the protein and iron from beef muscle, liver, kidney and from fat, and from beans, rice, kidney and fat as did rats which received milk or cheese, but the iron content of their bodies was normal in each case.
The most important conclusion from this study by the Institute is that meat and milk have different functions in nutrition and it is best not to depend on either to take the natural place of the other.

ASKS REPORTS FROM STATE INDUSTRIES
valuation, invested capital, employees, have been forwarded to manufacturers in Pennsylvania by the bureau of Statistics of the Pennsylvania Department of Internal Affairs. The forms ask for information on the industrial situation during the year of 1928. Under the law the returns must be made to the department before the last of the present month.
Following the receipt of the questionnaires the department's statistical bureau begins compiling records, which when completed, show in detail, just what Pennsylvania accomplished in an industrial way during the year. The reports seek information on production of salaried and wages paid, quantities produced and numerous other subjects, so that complete details may be on file.

OFFER MEDALS TO SCOUTS FOR FOREST FIRE WORK
Under a plan approved by the National Boy Scout Headquarters, The Pennsylvania Department of Forests and Waters awards meritorious service medals to Boy Scouts who render conscientious service in forest protection. Secretary Charles E. Dorworth announced this week that the Department of Forests and Waters offers to Boy Scouts 100 Medals for meritorious forest protection service performed by them during 1928. This service may have been shown in one or more of the following respects:
Prevention of forest fires.
Detecting and reporting forest fires.
Educating the public to the danger of forest fires.
The state has been divided into ten districts, in which of each ten numerous service medals may be distributed. A medal may be awarded to an individual scout, to a patrol, to a troop, or a Boy Scout official.

COAL LOADING CONTEST FOR COMING SUMMER
Notices are being broadcast throughout the bituminous coal fields of central Pennsylvania, the second district, giving the rules which will govern a coal loading contest, to be held this summer. No such contest as this has ever been held before and this one will settle many arguments that have been wrangled over for years and also "call many bluffs," that have been put up for decades. Every coal miner in the world, except a few very wise ones, believes that he can load more coal in a day, if called upon, than almost any other man. They not only have believed this, but have asserted and bragged of it on the steps of countless company stores, at the counters of many now vanished barrooms, along railroad tracks, in the woods, and in fact, everywhere that miners gather. Some very startling statements have been made as to individual prowess at coal loading but none of them have ever been put to the proof by a contest and it is to settle this long vexed question that the Central Pennsylvania Coal Loading contest is to be staged. Every miner in this district and even from the Pittsburgh field, if there are any champions in that district, can compete. Individual miners can try for the prizes, or mines, or groups of mines, can select a champion—if they are sure he is a champion—and put him in the competition as their representative. Notices of the rules and prizes are to be sent broadcast to all the mines in this district and, as the news may travel to other coal fields, competition from afar may be entered before the contest starts.
The competition will be one of the daily features at the Cambria County Industrial Exposition to be held at Ebensburg the week of July 1 to 6, and is sure to attract attention in all the coal fields of this and adjoining states. Cars on a track alongside the coal, just as it would be under mine conditions, will be provided and the carload, when taken to the scales, will be weighed and the time for loading taken to the fraction of a second. The judges will be veteran coal men. The winners will be announced each day. The contest is sure to call many a bluff and settle for a time, many a long drawn argument. This will be merely one of the many novel features that will bespangle one of the most entertaining programs ever presented at any outdoor exposition as that held yearly at Ebensburg.

"WAIT YOUR TURN," IS EYNON'S SUGGESTION
Motorists who persist in "riding a line of stalled traffic" especially on slippery or icy pavements, will be prosecuted for reckless driving, Benjamin G. Eynon, registrar of motor vehicles, said Wednesday.
"A number of crashes during stormy and icy weather, were found to be due to the practice of heedless motorists who, upon approaching the stalled lines of traffic, held up either by accident, blocking the highway, or by necessity of moving slowly on icy pavements, rode the line of traffic only to find themselves blocked. When these heedless motorists suddenly put on the brakes with resultant skids and crashes into cars stalled in traffic or stalled close to the sidewalk. Where investigations prove that crashes were due to motorists "riding the line of stalled traffic," the offending motorists will be prosecuted for reckless driving and will not only face fine and imprisonment, but revocation of their licenses," Registrar Eynon said.

RUPTURE EXPERT HERE
W. B. Seely, noted rupture expert, famous for his ability and skill in handling difficult cases, will be at the Hotel Fort Stanwix, Johnstown, Monday, February 11th, and at the Colonial Hotel, Altoona, Tuesday, February 12, only; 11 a. m. to 6 p. m., where those desiring to escape a surgical operation may consult him without charge.
Mr. Seely says the patented rupture retainers he now uses will hold bad ruptures with ease, will strengthen the tissues, cause muscles to contract and close opening. Any position of the body—any kind of work can be undertaken with safety.
For two generations we have cared for many thousands in many walks of life. Physicians and surgeons, as well as financiers and farmers; United States Government employes in Army, Navy, Post office, and Department of State; Men, women and children.
CAUTION—Elastic trusses with leg straps should never be used; they squeeze the delicate parts against the bone and slowly produce dangerous complications necessitating operation.
Master your rupture now. It will be too late after strangulation sets in, operations that have torn out will be given special attention.
Home office, 122 11th St., Corner 11th and Sansom Sts., Philadelphia, Pa., and at no other address.
