FINNEY OF THE FORCE By F. O. Alexander MRS. SNOOP IS ALL IXCOITED !- SHE CAME OVER A DANCIN' AN' A SINGIN' THIS

"One man," said Mr. Sloan, "predicts that he'll give us a good $100 car within three years, but such a

"This predicter reminds me of a chap who was held up one morning by a friend, but he jerked loose and said as he trotted off:

"'Excuse me, George, I can't stop;

I'm catching the 8:15 train.'
"'Well,' George yelled after him,

'you'd better hurry, then. I just missed it.'"

The Real Sport Tell me not in doleful measure, Baseball nears a sad decline; Other sports may bring you pleasure, I'll take bats and balls for mains.

Critical Comment

"You criticized the grammar of several speeches very severely."
"Yes," answered Miss Cayenne. "By commenting on the pronunciation I was able to conceal the fact that I was occasionally too dumb to know what the ideas were all about."—

The Silver Lining

"I give my wife forty dollars and she's kickin' fer sixty. What d'yuh think of that?" "Well, why don't you give it to "Why, I've only had her one week."

This old world we're livin' in
Is mighty hard to beat.
You get a thorn with every rose,
But aren't the roses sweet? Huh! "I thought you were a chiropodist."

"I was, but I gave up that line."
"What are you doing now?" "Attending a barber college." "Oh, I see, you have gone in for higher education."

Once Peedeecue-Did you ever have more money than you knew what to do Beeveedee-I don't remember, but I must have had or I wouldn't have got married.

Overdoing It The Lawyer-I wouldn't complain bout that if I were you. It's an old custom to throw shoes at a bridal couple. It's supposed to bring luck. The Bridegroom—Then I must have been out of luck. These were horse shoes and I stopped a couple. Case for a Club Husband (testily, after going down padly at bridge)-You might have guessed I had no heart, partner.

Wife (sweetly)—Quite, but I thought you had a brain, darling.
