WEEKLY HEALTH TALK FROM THE STATE DOCTOR

"At this time of year when outdoor sports are of general interest, a note of warning needs to be sounded to those folks who are of middle age or over," said Dr. Theodore B. Appel, Secretary of Health, Tuesday.

The business man who is fat and forty, or at least forty, suddenly deplores a logical enthusiasm for tennis, golf and baseball at this outdoor season. And while such an inclination should be indulged to a reasonable limit, there is such a thing as permitting one's affection for a sport to get the better of one's judgment—then something happens.

"For instance, at a recent opening of some new tennis courts, father, who happened to weigh 175 pounds and was forty-seven years old, boastfully took his racket in hand to lick the kid who was twenty and a college tennis 'flash.' Well, he didn't do it, but in his attempt he so injured his heart which was entirely unaccustomed to such strenuous demands that he is now flat on his back, broken in body and spirit and, as a matter of cold fact, likely to be alive.

"The business of imagining at forty or fifty years of age that one is just as young as ever poor proposition if one deliberately sets out to prove it after a winter's physical lassitude, by way of suddenly over-exercising or indulging violently in outdoor sports.

"Sunshine and exercise are among the cardinal necessities for all—young and old alike. But sudden, or even protected exertion that is not so sudden cannot be indulged in safely by the middle-aged who are unaccustomed to it. It is not even good for the college man. This fact is recognized by all trainers who regulate and step-up athletic activities.

"Play golf and other outdoor games if you like them. You should even adopt one, if you don't have a particular fancy. But don't go in for this just-as-young-as-I-used-to-be performance, which can cripple, and sometimes kill."

THE ORIGIN OF COAL

By John Connelly.

Coal is made of vegetable matter. Wherever we find a layer of coal today we may imagine there was once a swamp forest. There vegetable material accumulated for thousands of years. The water of the swamps kept the air from reaching the plant material and thus prevented decay. Later the water sank and the sea or inland lakes came in and flooded the area. Sand, gravels and clays were washed into the sea or lakes and in setting to the bottom buried this vegetable matter. More and more sediment was deposited until the vegetable matter was covered by hundreds of feet thick. In time, by compression and by the loss of water and gases, the vegetable matter was changed into coal.

All stages in this process are known and samples that illustrate each stage have been found, from the peat in the bog to the coal as it is mined. Exhibits of these materials have been placed in large museums.

In some regions where mountains have been made by the folding of rocks layers of soft coal have been so compressed that they change into hard coal. This is the explanation of the anthracite in the Appalachian mountains of Northeastern Pennsylvania.

CIRCUS IS COMING NEXT WEDNESDAY

Drake Bros. Selects Patton As Only Point for Showing in North County.

A Circus will be here on Wednesday, June 12th.

Drake Bros. Circus and trained animal exposition will exhibit one day only on the above date, giving two performances rain or shine at 2 and 8 P. M.

A circus is something that no boy or girl should miss. Whilst the circus tent there is a mystic, which brings to the children's mind and contains the acme of all that is wonderful and bewildering the great red pictorial posters which come in advance have filled every young eye with visions of a perfect haven of delight and amusement and nothing can fill the childish heart with so much gloom and abject dependency as the idea of being debarred from casting wide eyes about this wonderful beautiful as it will appear beneath the big waterproof tents beautifully electric lighted by the circus own illuminating plants. This circus has among its many novelties the only high school manage mule in the circus business or to-day. "Maude" and her trainer, look mild and meek. The animal at the word of a command can kick a hundred ways in a minute, and at the next will be so docile that a child can lie down beside it and ride around the ring. It is so trained also to take walk, perform the spanish trot, and jump over gates four feet high. There is Prof. Whites celebrated troupe of performing dogs ponie riding monkeys educated bears say nothing about the high class aerial acts swinging perch, revolving ladder, clown comedy bar numbers solo gymnasts and tumbler. The Toto family of artists supreme jugglers acrobatic feats and pyramid athletics. You will see a world of novelties with the Drake Bros. Show that in the past have been seen only with the very largest circuses. The Drake Bros. lacks the bewilderment and confusion of acts which distract an audience in "the mammoth" shows of today, and this feature of Drake Bros. Performances being given in one ring is a refreshing innovation and one that please mightily.

Don't forget the free outside exhibition on the show ground at 1 and 7 P. M. The Big Show performance starts at 2 and 8 P. M. Rain or shine and there are courteous ushers in attendance to seat you.

"THE DOVE" COMES TO GRAND THEATRE

Norma Talmadge to Appear in Film Version of Willard Mack Stage Success.

Norma Talmadge in "The Dove", her first United Artists picture, is to be featured at the Grand theatre, Patton, on Monday and Tuesday of next week. Based on Willard Mack's stage play, which ran for a year on Broadway.

"The Dove" is a melodramatic, romantic tale of Costa Roja, the "red coast." Miss Talmadge is supported by Noah Beery and Gilbert Roland. Ronald West directed the picture from the scenario by Wallace Smith and Paul Bern.

"The Dove" is the powerful, quick-action narrative of a virtuous dance hall girl, a courageous young American employed in a gambling house and "the bes' damn caballero in all Costa Roja." Don Jose Maria y Sandoval. Against a background of guitars, stiletos, roulette wheels, fine ladies and grand gentlemen, the characterization of Miss Talmadge as "Dolores, the Dove," a beautiful dancer, comes to glowing life according to advance reports.

Directed by Roland West, who has previously made Norma Talmadge pictures, and supported by Noah Beery and Gilbert Roland, who were accorded considerable roles by the star, Miss Talmadge has a role of fire, temptation, loving, defying and yielding in its several shades. The film is said to have retained all of the color which in the Belasco put into the stage version of "The Dove," in which Judith Anderson and Holbrook Blinn appeared. Roland West, the director, believes the story even more suited to films and that "The Dove" Miss Talmadge achieves new heights in a part as different from her prior characterization as that was from its predecessors.

"The Dove" was made at the United Artists Studio in Hollywood, taking six months in the making.
