The Discipline of Disappointment

By THOMAS ARKLE CLARK, Dean of Men, University of Illinois.

It is not a good thing always to succeed, and though the proverb is that "nothing succeeds like success," there are times when success makes us careless, overconfident, so sure that nothing can happen to interfere with our reaching the goal toward which we are headed, that we grow careless and indifferent, and though failure often discourages and success elates, yet there are times when it takes the shock of failure or disappointment to give the discipline upon which success is dependent, or which brings out the best in us.

Coffman has never had the disciplline of disappointment. His lines have fallen in very pleasant places. He has had all his life whatever money can buy, whatever social and financial prominence can furnish. So far as the ordinary affairs of life are concerned he has never been disappointed. All he has had to do is to ask for whatever he wanted, to stretch out his hand, so to speak, and it was his. He has no understanding of people who have not misfortune, no sympathy for those who meet one reverse after another. He is selfish, a niggardly giver, a self-satisfied and rather arrogant citizen. The discipline of disappointment would have softened him, no doubt, and have made him more human in his sympathies.

Davis had always played baseball well from the time that he was old enough to get out in the back lot with the older fellows and bat a ball around until he tried out for the college nine. He had always made good at his favorite game and had been captain of the team on which he played from the time he entered grade school until he got out of high school. Disappointment had never come his way when he was trying out for baseball. He was quite sure now of a place on the college nine, and he saw no particular reason why he should exert himself with any particular energy. The berth was going to be his, and he was sure of it. The names of those who were to stay on the squad were to be posted in the afternoon and Davis wandered over to see who his teammates were to be. But his own name was not there. A little insignificant country boy by the name of Jones had the position which he had expected to fill. It was the first disappointment the boy had ever experienced and he felt it keenly.

Then he began to take stock of himself, and as he sat despondent with his head on his hand, it all came over him that he had been too cocky, too conceited, too sure of himself. He had really not made the effort that he could have made, that he was, in fact, under every obligation to make. Disappointment was really coming to him. It was a good lesson, for him. The next time he got into the pitcher's box, he did not swagger quite so much; he was more modest, more deliberate, and more accurate. The discipline of disappointment had taught him more self-control.

Will Make Study of Gorillas

New York.—Four scientists sailed from New York on the Aquitania for the highlands of tropical Africa, there to kill adult gorillas, embalm them and bring them home complete for anatomical study. The new specimens will give first opportunity for detailed comparison of the gorilla with man.

Columbia university, which will finance the expedition, announced its plans. The College of Physicians and Surgeons is co-operating with the American Museum of Natural History.

Henry Craven, who has explored in Borneo, Celebes, Africa, Australia and Greenland, heads the expedition. He is associate curator of comparative anatomy at the museum.

With him are Dr. William K. Gregory, professor of vertebrate paleon-ology at the university and curator of comparative anatomy at the museum; Dr. J. H. McGregor, professor of zoology at the university and research associate in human anatomy at the museum, and Dr. E. T. Engle, associate professor of anatomy at Columbia.

They also will make special studies and photographs of the feet of the unshod natives who carry their equipment through the thickly grown highlands north of Lake Tanganyika. Dr. Dudley J. Morton, head of the committee in charge of the expedition, wants the data for his studies of the evolution of human foot and its disorders. The native feet are undecomposed by shoes and will be compared with American feet.

The expedition will return next January.

May Compensate Law's Victim

Madison, Wis.—An effort is under way here to obtain legislative compensation for John A. Johnson, sixty-five, who served ten years in prison for a crime it now generally is believed he did not commit.

Although Johnson confessed in 1911 to the murder of seven-year-old Annie Lemberger, he repudiated his confession just before he entered the gates of Waupun prison.

In 1922 he was pardoned by Gov. E. L. Phillips, who had been convinced the man confessed because of a morbid fear of mob violence.

There are more than 3,000 Madison citizens who now are certain society "robbed" Johnson of ten working years of his life and who have signed petitions asking the legislature to compensate him, as far as possible, for that which was taken.

Johnson, an employee of the city, has aged rapidly and is in none too good health. He still works, but his earning power is small and he and the wife who trusted him during his years of imprisonment are not enjoying the comforts they might have had.

Annie Lemberger, daughter of Martin Lemberger, was put to bed by her mother about nine o'clock the night of September 5, 1911. Several days later her body was found floating in Monona bay. She had been beaten to death.

Johnson was arrested three days later and was questioned by a detective. For hours he maintained that he was innocent—until the detective struck the vulnerable spot.

The officer, falling in all other efforts to make Johnson confess, told him that a mob was outside clamoring for his life.

Johnson once had seen a man lynched at Darlington and the moment he heard that he was in danger of meeting a similar fate he became cringing, terrified wreck. He confessed, begged protection, and when arraigned in court pleaded guilty, with the additional plea that he be hurried to prison and saved from the mob.

Despite the fact that Mrs. Johnson and two daughters, Stella and Bertha, testified that Johnson had gone to bed about nine o'clock the night of the murder and never left the house during the night, the man's plea of guilty was accepted and he was sentenced to Waupun for life.

Pope Limits Use of New Vatican Money

Rome.—Officials of Vatican City will continue to receive their salaries in Italian money after the papal government's new money is issued, it was understood.

The papacy's own silver and gold coins will be few and their use limited. Gold coins of 20 lire value and silver coins of 5 lire value (about $1.05 and 26 cents, respectively) are planned.

The coins will be used to purchase Vatican City stamps, to pay entrance fees to the art galleries and fees to the holy congregations, especially to the congregation of sacraments in cases of annulled marriages.

Two-Year-Old Baby Is Witness in Court

Butte, Mont.—The youngest witness ever used in a local police court was a two-year-old boy, Robert Clifford, who exhibited a long cut on his face as evidence that a defendant in a disturbance case broke the glass in the front door of Mrs. Clifford's home. The youngster incurred the cut from flying glass.

SHIP'S CREW KEPT ALIVE BY PRAYERS

Adrift Eight Days in Wave-Buffered Lifeboat.

New York.—Prayer and Bible readings sustained ten shipwrecked sailors through eight days of torture in a wave-buffered lifeboat. It was revealed when the yacht Amida reached port with survivors of the four-masted schooner, James E. Coburn.

Eleven men abandoned the Coburn when it foundered on a voyage from Baltimore to Martinique. They were without food or water after the first four days. Three of them were white men, the rest negroes. While swimming seas broke against the sides of their twenty-foot yawl each man prayed to his own conception of a deity.

One of the white men, W. E. Milliken, engineer, became temporarily insane and his hysterical rantings added to the babel of prayers. One of the negroes, W. Sargent, sixty-year-old cook, died. His body was not thrown overboard because the other ten men in the boat were too weary for the exertion involved.

Capt. Jose J. Pereira, of the Coburn, was the only survivor who could give a coherent account of the terror-laden days before smoke from the yacht Amida curled over the horizon and the men in the lifeboats knew rescue was at hand.

Captain McLaughlin, of the Amida, said he was fifteen miles off course when he sighted the yawl. The survivors were not told that the rescue was made possible only by accident.

Canned meat and birdtrack were put into the yawl when the schooner was abandoned. Salt water soaked the crackers, however, and despite scanty rations the meat soon was gone. Four days before they were saved there was no food or water aboard.

Girl Bandit at Last Meets Woman Waterloo

New York.—A girl bandit—of course she was bobbed haired and blonde—led a holdup in the best bobbed haired bandit tradition and followed precedent so closely that after her arrest she talked too much and two men she named to the police were arrested. John Raszwolsky, owner of a grocery store, was the intended victim. He was behind the counter when a young woman and two men entered. The woman, Raszwolsky told the police, pointed a revolver at him and demanded that he put up his hands and also give them all the money he had.

Mrs. Raszwolsky was in her apartment behind the store and heard when the woman said to her husband, so she screamed as loudly as she could. The scream unnerved the men with the girl, who were holding ropes in their hands ready to tie up the grocer as soon as they had his money. The men turned and made for the door and the girl dropped her pistol and followed.

Raszwoleski seized her, but she broke away. Too late, however, for Patrolman Hoffman had heard the scream and met the girl at the door with open arms. She gave her name as Emily Beloski, eighteen, and said she was an honest laundress out of work. Upon further information she gave them, detectives arrested William Moore, thirty-one, and Nicholas Turetsky, Moore said he was an Indian who formerly lived on a Colorado reservation.

Fears Alienation of Mate; Enjoins Couple

Waterbury, Conn.—The affection of Mrs. Arthur S. Hart of Watertown for her husband has been safeguarded by the law. Common Pleas Judge Harry J. Beardsley issued an injunction at Hart's request, restraining John J. Fairchild and Hilda Fairchild, his wife, from doing anything to alienate Mr. Hart's affections. It is believed to be the first court order of its kind ever issued in such a case.

100 Persons Killed by Fire in Poland

London.—One hundred persons were killed in a fire which destroyed 250 houses at Iwie, eastern Poland, during the night, an Exchange Telegraph dispatch from Warsaw said. Five hundred families were made homeless by the fire, whose flames could be seen 30 miles. Authorities suspect incendiarism.

Must Quit Novels

New York.—After leading four boys on a night raid on a public school in New York city, Charles Engel was sentenced to stop reading dime novels for one year. Engel and his gang took stamps, pens, and pencils before they were caught by a night watchman.

When Food Sours

Lots of folks who think they have "indigestion" have only an acid condition which could be corrected in five or ten minutes. An effective anti-acid like Phillips Milk of Magnesia soon restores digestion to normal.

Phillips does away with all that sourness and gas right after meals! It prevents the distress so apt to occur two hours after eating. What a pleasant preparation to take! And how good it is for the system! Unlike a burning dose of soda—which is but temporary relief at best—Phillips Milk of Magnesia neutralizes many times its volume in acid.

Dirigibles to Undergo Test

London.—The world's latest and most expensive experiment in aircraft construction will be given its first test soon when gas is blown into the bags of the R-100 and the R-101. Great Britain's new $4,000,000 airships.

Sir Samuel Beare, British air minister, recently announced in the house of commons that the two new airships would make flights to Canada and India in the fall if the trial flights were successful. Air experts of the world perked up their ears at this announcement for Great Britain's failure in these two ventures may mean death for future airship construction.

The R-100, the air ministry has decided will go to Canada, while the R-101 will make the first long flight to India and Egypt, where arrangements already have been made for handling the ship.

But so far Sir Samuel has refused to divulge when the shed tests and first trial flights will be held. Previous delays, and subsequent questionings in parliament, have made him cautious. It was learned, however, that the bags will be filled some time in June, after which the first local flights will be made.

The construction of these two 5,000,000 cubic feet gas-filled airships is rapidly nearing completion after innumerable delays occasioned by changes in plans and the addition of many new devices which never before have been employed on giant airships. The R-101, in particular, represents several radical departures in the construction of the steel frame and also in the arrangement of the interior. As the R-100 is fitted with ordinary petrol engines, it was selected for the flight to America, whereas the R-101, equipped with Diesel engines, is more suited to the warm atmosphere which will be encountered on the flight to India and Egypt.
