By Charles Sughroe

Yaquis Yield Independence

Mexico City.—Mexico's fiercest warriors, the Yaquis, have at last agreed to be commanded by non-Yaqui leaders. For 400 years—300 under Spanish rule, 100 under Mexican—the Yaquis maintained their independence, refusing to be conquered, beaten at the end by the government, with their country in ruins, they now go one step further in becoming Mexicanized by their acceptance of a "foreign" commander.

Port Perote, a mountain near Orizaba, in the state of Vera Cruz. This is the group which for the first time in history has submitted to have a non-Indian leader. The war office's announcement of a change in the organization of this Yaqui force was regarded as signifying the disappearance of Yaquis as separate units. Hereafter they will be part of the army. Colonel Enrique Morin Figueroa has been assigned to the group under the new arrangement.

The actual conqueror of the Yaquis was Gen. Francisco Manzo, one of the leaders of the present rebellion who recently crossed the United States border at Nogales to escape falling into federal hands. The Manzo campaign against the Yaquis, undertaken three years ago, was organized with 13,000 troops and equipment which included nine airplanes.

Manzo had on his front flew constantly over Yaqui territory bombing and spreading terror. The federal planes drove the inhabitants of Bacatete, the capital, into the mountains and finally destroyed it.

NEW TRACK RECORD

Jimmy Heid, captain of the Harvard university track team, won the two-mile championship at the I. C. A. A. A. games at Philadelphia. Heid's time was 9:22, clipping 2-5 of a second off the record made by Ivan C. Dresser of Cornell in 1919.

Chicago Police Skilled Archers

South park police of Chicago have organized an archery club, and some of them are developing great skill with the bow and arrow. Here are five of the best in an archery tournament in Jackson park.

New York to Be Record City

New York.—A great city of the future, providing for a population of 20,000,000 with its industries, schools, homes and facilities for comfortable living, is envisaged in the regional planning committee's report for a new and greater New York city.

1965 and takes as its city 22 counties in and about New York. The area considered is a tenth that of England, as large as the state of Connecticut and nearly five times the size of Rhode Island.

mind of man had never before attempted to cope with such a problem, would be modeled not only for the efficiency of industry but for happiness and welfare of its millions of inhabitants.

There would be parks, playgrounds, golf courses and boulevards, and enough transportation facilities so that the people could move about comfortably and live without undue crowding.

Since the future of aviation is "an unpredictable thing," the plan provides for 16 new airports, making a total of 38.

From these airports passengers would be coming and going in a steady stream. The motif of speed would be maintained in a metropolitan belt line, connecting with all roads entering the region, so that all points of the city could be reached easily by rail, both by passengers and in the handling of food stuffs and freight.

educated at the expense of the community or of the state in which we live for that very reason are under obligations to assume greater responsibilities than others who have not had our opportunities of our training. We are not entitled to an easiness but must, as Van Deventer would do, give more constant and efficient service to the community and other people.

Immense Aqueduct Planned

New York.—Work on boring a gigantic aqueduct 20 miles long and 500 feet beneath the surface of New York is to begin in a few months.

The tube, which involves one of the major engineering feats of modern times, is to be installed for the purpose of increasing the water pressure for the residents of Brooklyn and Queens.

Sixteen shafts are to be sunk along the route to the 500-foot level, where hundreds of men are expected to spend four years in boring through the muck and rock. The shafts themselves will be so deep that the Leifcourt-National building, the city's newest 40-story Fifth Avenue skyscraper, would find its tower well below street level if it could be dropped into one of them.

COMMUNITY SERVICE

By THOMAS ARKLE CLARK, Dean of Men, University of Illinois.

I had not seen Van Deventer for twenty years—in fact since he had taken his degree and left college. As an undergraduate he had been well known for various reasons. He was a good student; he was a winning athlete, and he had so interested himself in college affairs as to be pretty generally known by everybody. I had heard from him indirectly during the years since he had been out, but, as I say, I had never before met him face to face.

"It's wonderful to get back to the old place," he said as he shook hands with me. "Twenty years is a long time to be away, but seeing the building and the campus and a lot of the old fellows puts new life into us."

It was a sort of recreation to be back again. "How are you getting on?" I asked him. "I've been more prosperous than I ever had any reason to hope," he said modestly. "I've had mother and my sister to look after and we're more than comfortable. If I did not work any more we could be financially comfortable for life. I'm happy over having made something of my education, happy that I have succeeded in the profession I took up, but I've had more satisfaction in having been able to do something worth while in the community in which I live than in anything else I have been able to accomplish."

Father Properly Squelched

YOU'VE GOT TO STOP GOIN' ROUND WITH THAT YOUNG MUTT. HE HAS NO CLASS — HE LOOKS LIKE A BUM TO ME — GET ME!

Then he told me in a simple modest way of his cooperation in civic and religious enterprises, and the work he had done in the schools, in the political affairs of his town, and especially in the boys' organization in which he had always had the keenest interest. It was a more than interesting work and I told him so. He had sensed the real purpose and meaning of free education.

I often ask young fellows who come in to talk to me just why they are getting an education, and I am struck with the almost universal reply that they want to do something that will improve their own personal condition. It is self-improvement that they were after and self-advantage; they give little thought to what their education is going to help them to do for the community in which they are to live.

The purpose of free education is not that the individuals who take advantage of it may have, as one father said to me once of his son, an easier time in life, a softer berth, and larger income. Those of us who have been

CAVELL BETRAYER IN LIVING DEATH

Man Who Told on Nurse Spurned by Convicts.

Paris.—Spurned even by the dregs of society among whom he is doomed to spend the rest of his life, Georges Quen, who betrayed Edith Cavell, the heroic English war nurse, into the hands of the Germans to be shot as a spy during the World War, is living a terrible life on Devil's island, the French penal colony in South America.

Not a man will speak a word to him. Quen still maintains that he is innocent of the charge which doomed him to life imprisonment, but his lawyers long ago gave up their efforts to obtain him a new trial. His parents have died of shame in Paris, and his name dare not be spoken among those who live in the village where he once was a well liked neighbor.

Quen has no work to do, for the simple reason that other convicts will suffer punishment rather than associate with him. The guards whose duty it is to carry him his food leave their trays at the door of his lonely hut and hasten away lest he address a single word to them.

Many times the authorities have frustrated plots to kill Quen, for they dare not permit him to be killed in spite of their hatred for him. It is significant, however, that the men who have been caught plotting to kill Quen never have been punished.

Quen, who at the beginning of his imprisonment was a strong, healthy man, today has wasted away until he is a mere skeleton.

Prisoner Makes Money Wording Jokes in Jail

Columbus, Ohio.—Before William Ray Gilman was sentenced to the state penitentiary for automobile theft four years ago, he was a salesman in Cleveland. Now, from his cell, he turns out jokes and humorous quips for eight magazines.

The Cleveland youth's writings net him an average of $150 a month, which he sends to his mother in Pittsburgh.

Whether Gilman would have turned from a typewriting salesman to a magazine writer had he not been convicted and sentenced to from eight to twenty years in the penitentiary is a matter of conjecture.

He related that he began writing accidentally, to fill in the hours of solitary confinement in his narrow compartment.

A writer's magazine, which he found in a corner of his cell shortly after his arrival, was the incentive.

"The magazine said there was a market for jokes and funny quips so I decided to write," said Gilman.

He invested his last dollar in stamps and soon reams of copy had been mailed to magazines and publishing houses in the East.

"I had just four cents in stamps left when my first check arrived. After that it was easy and now I receive checks at regular intervals from eight magazines."

Watch Teeth-Prints Thieves Are Warned

Los Angeles.—After what's happened to Christian M. Shirley, merchant and former policeman, thieves should remember to be as careful about leaving teeth prints as clews as they are about finger prints.

During the course of a recent party at the home of Ethel Hupp somebody broke into a trunk and stole a pint of rare old whisky and jewels valued at $10,100.

Detectives found that the thief had pulled off the tinfoil around the bottle neck with his teeth.

Shirley was in jail after Police Technician Rex Welch reported that his teeth matched perfectly the impressions in the tinfoil.
