MOUNTAINS OUT OF MOLEHILLS.

The Johnstown Democrat, organ extraordinary of the Democratic party in Cambria county, is using columns and columns of editorial space daily in an effort to discredit the candidacy of Judge Frank P. Barnhart, the Republican nominee at the general election, for the full term, beginning next January.

Political enemies of Judge Barnhart at the primaries attempted the same tactics, but without result. Now the Democrat is going the limit in painting a picture that would make Judge Barnhart a regular "devil"—and of course, its whole attempt is to prejudice Republican voters against him, for without the votes of many thousands of Republicans in the county, the prospects of the Democratic nominee, Mr. McKenrick, would be hopeless.

The tactics used against Judge Barnhart, of course, are for political effect only. The whole case against him amounts to absolutely nothing. Judge Barnhart did only what any honest man would have done in the matter of which the Democrat is manufacturing political material. Really, Judge Barnhart did much more to his credit in this particular case than most men would have done.

Republicans should not be fooled in this matter. Don't let any Democratic newspaper influence your minds against the regular Republican nominee.

After all, the Democratic party, with its constantly withering minority in Cambria county, surely cannot expect the support of good Republicans to the Democratic nominee, when it assails bitterly, through the columns of the Johnstown Democrat, the men chosen by the Republican party as their candidates. It is like an outsider trying to create dissension in an organization of which he is not a member. Pay no attention to the propaganda of the Johnstown Democrat.

The sum total and the only hope of the entire fight being waged by the Johnstown Democrat seems to be against Judge Barnhart. Of course, other Republican candidates are being attacked, but only in a half-hearted way. Homer C. George, the Republican candidate for sheriff, comes in for considerable comment, but notwithstanding anything the Johnstown Democrat can do or say, their editorial director cannot but acknowledge that no better candidate can be offered to the voters than Mr. George. He will have a big vote at the general election, and even the most optimistic of Democrats make no claims that he will be defeated.

The sole hope of the Democrats is that the regular Republicans will stay away from the polls on general election day. This is the one little thing that no good Republican should do. It is his duty to his country and his party to go to the polls and vote. Arrange your plans to do this. It is a matter of extreme importance.

Republicans, exercise your privilege on general election day. Go to the polls and VOTE THE STRAIGHT REPUBLICAN TICKET. If you do this no amount of political propaganda that can come from any source will have any effect on the ultimate outcome of the election.

STOLEN AUTOMOBILES.

According to recent figures, 116,000 automobiles have been stolen in the past year in the United States. These cars were valued at eight-one millions of dollars. Cambria county has furnished its proportionate share of automobile thefts, but through the policy of the President judge of the county, offenders in such matters apprehended get sentences so salty, that this county really is not a lucrative field.

When you reflect that an automobile represents from $500 to $2,500, on an average that it is oftentimes carelessness in parking by its owner and that the thief, not only does not "haul" it off but can ride away faster than ever, the wonder is that so few of them are stolen.

ON LOYALTY

Running a newspaper even in Patton gets into the blood and becomes to the editor almost a game. We had occasion to be away from Patton for a number of days and we came back from trip through New York State yesterday with the game somewhat bewildered, so far this week's issue is concerned. And troubles besieged us, too, financial and otherwise.

The cash register keeps accounts of the "hits" but runs scored are mostly to the credit of the Courier which owes its improvements to the fact that its operators like the game rather than the rash.

A large business man, talking the other day, stated that he travelled over much of the United States and that what struck him most of all in his journeys was the loyalty of the average newspaper to its town.

THERE IS A DIFFERENCE.

Occasionally a citizen comes into the Courier office with the request that some article be printed. Often the matter is worthy of attention, being interesting and of public benefit. Occasionally the only purpose in the mind of the citizen is to acquaint the people of Patton with something about his business or what he sells.

We wonder if the readers of the Courier understand the difference between advertising and news?

It Was Bobby's Birthday

By JANE OSBORN

THEN, Miss Whitman, please consider yourself employed in the office," said Doctor Blair on the first of September when he engaged Hortense Whitman, trained nurse, as of ice assistant. "There's just one thing," said Hortense. "I shall not ask for any full days off—only if I should be still well by the fifteenth of April I'd like to have the whole day off."

Doctor Blair studied the nurse as she made this request and for the first time realized how very young and naive she seemed after the wear and tear of hospital training.

"It comes on a Wednesday—" she was continuing. "Oh, that's perfectly all right. Here I'll put it down on my desk pad—April 15—Day off for Miss W. Birth day, I suppose?"

"Not my birthday," said Hortense, feeling quite sure that the doctor had asked only out of politeness.

The truth was that it was Bobby's birthday—and Bobby was her five-year-old nephew. It was for the sake of Bobby and because Bobby had lost both father and mother that Hortense Whitman had given up the dream that she might some day be promoted to the position of superintendent of a hospital.

Hortense had taken a little flat not far from the doctor's office and she had found a good private school where she made arrangement to have Bobby cared for after school hours until her duties at the doctor's office were over. Once when Bobby had acquired a black eye and another time when he had been rather painfully scalded, it was necessary to consult the doctor. And on these few occasions the doctor had come to know and like the youngster immensely.

It was Tuesday, the fourteenth of April. The doctor sat at his desk consulting his engagement pad. "Miss Whitman," he called to Hortense, who was sterilizing some instruments in the little operating room adjoining. "You know you're to have a day off tomorrow. It's the fifteenth."

"Is it quite all right?" asked Hortense shyly, coming into the doctor's office. "I don't want to inconvenience you—"

"I've made no appointments for tomorrow," said the doctor, "so I shall be able to manage. Of course I shall miss you." He looked intently at Hortense, but she had turned her head, so their eyes did not meet.

Hortense had decided to give Bobby the entire day.

"Perhaps what Bobby would want to do," thought Hortense, "is very, very different from what I would think he'd want to do."

It had not been easy to dim into the little five-year-old mind just what Hortense meant, but when Bobby did grasp the idea he made his plans, and until the morning of the fifteenth he refused to tell his aunt what they were.

"Now," said Bobby, jumping up and down with glee as Hortense washed up the dishes after breakfast. "Now the party's coming. You don't know, do you? I told Doctor Blair he mustn't say one weeny word about it."

Bobby giggled and danced absurdly. Hortense would have tried to force further explanation, but the bell of their little apartment door rang. Quickly she went to the door, opened it and there stood face to face with Doctor Blair.

"Are you ready for the party?" asked the doctor.

Hortense protested and tried to get an explanation, but the doctor gave her five minutes to dress for the street and then fairly carried her and Bobby out of the flat down the stairs into a comfortable and roomy car that was waiting.

"Where shall we go?" Doctor Blair asked Bobby before giving his directions to the chauffeur.

"Way out West," ordered Bobby.

"Out where there are Indians?" The doctor stifled a laugh and looked seriously into Bobby's face. "We won't be able to see any Indians, but we'll go just as far West as we can to see Indians, we can go to a circus this afternoon. They have real Indians there."

"But how did you know?" asked

Dairy Waste Utilized

The possibilities of the use of the wastes of the dairy were realized only a few years ago, but it has now developed into an extensive industry. Casein is now used in many cases as substitutes for horn, ivory, ebony, pearl, amber and tortoise shells. Many of the staples and novelty articles, such as beads, buckles, buttons, combs, cigarette holders, cuff links, dominoes, dice, toilet articles, fountain pen barrels, penholders, pipe stems, etc., now contain casein products.

Wide Pronunciation Choice

"Mi-amer, My-er-muh, Mi-arnour, My-aim-ah, My-am-I May-hammer, My-ammy, Me-ammer, M-ammer, Me-yammer, My-yamer, Me-ah-mah, My-ah-ahm, Me-ammy, May-yammy and M'ammy."

Old "Heat" and "Friction" are a Vicious Pair - but Sterling Oil Laughs at Them!

DON'T under-estimate these two. They're tough. One break in the oil film is all they need and Zam! Friction swings his sledge and Heat applies his torch. Ever burn out a bearing? Then you will recognize that hammering and scorching.

They're underhanded. No warning from these two. You find what they're doing after they have done it.

Don't give them a chance! Use Sterling Motor Oil that knows every trick and has beaten them at every turn.

Many a Sterling protected motor they have watched—waited patiently over a thousand miles and then, thinking Sterling ought to be about all in, sneaked in for a death blow. Always they have found the old wall of resistance as strong as ever.

They have never licked Sterling Motor Oil yet—not when a driver hands over the job and lets this champion 100% Pure Pennsylvania lubricant fight it out alone.
