

Los Angeles Harbor Now in Second Place

With a record of $1,425,844.19 net profit earned for the city during the past year, Los Angeles harbor is now second in American shipping, and was one of the "exhibits" most interesting to delegates of the National Foreign Trade convention. Above is an aerial view of Los Angeles inner harbor.

MENTAL HEALTH PUBLIC CARE

By DR. HAVEN EMERSON, New York Public Health Official.

There would be just as much sense in sending the case of scarlet fever to a reformatory as in sending a delinquent schoolboy to jail. Public health work can no longer be limited to the control of communicable disease, correction of physical defects in children or safeguarding the lives of mothers and children in childbirth. It must also include prevention of defects in nervous and emotional control.

The health officer must begin to ask himself such questions as: "Will the psychiatrist get to the mean, lazy, me'er-do-well before the policeman does?"

"Will the bully, the fearful child, the miserable man meet a wise social worker before he is forced into an institution?"

Is it not at least as important that the suicide rate has risen from 4.9 to 19.7 per 100,000 of our people in seventy years as that the diabetes death rate has done about the same? Is there a greater need to report upon a rising death rate from appendicitis or to analyze, publish, teach and, if possible, prevent the conditions that have brought about a rise in the divorce rate from 26 per 100,000 to 68 per 100,000 in less than fifty years?

It is just as much the province of the doctor of public health to concern himself with occurrence of temper tantrums as with the prevalence of rickets in a community. Perhaps the probabilities of truancy can be estimated on the basis of today's records of boys who have motherless homes or breakfastless mornings.

Much improvement in the field of mental health may be hoped for through preventive measures. Only about one-tenth of retarded school children owe their difficulties to such causes as heredity, mental disease or epilepsy. This is an encouraging fact when considering the possibilities of prevention.

PARENTS' NEED OF TRAINING

By DR. LOWRY, Director Institute for Child Guidance.

Child guidance clinics continually are encountering "infantile" parents. The most frequent complaint of this type is that their children disobey them. They do not seek help in instilling desirable qualities. In an attempt to analyze the most desirable attributes of personality, I have collected from 26 persons, mostly not parents, lists of those traits which they regard as most desirable and most undesirable. The ten traits which appear on the largest number of lists are honesty, sense of humor, cheerfulness, tolerance, sincerity, intelligence, sympathy, courage, reliability and loyalty. The ten traits placed on the largest number of lists as undesirable are selfishness, egotism, deceitfulness, dishonesty, jealousy, laziness, cowardice, instability and stubbornness. It is noteworthy that obedience and disobedience, as such, do not occur in these two lists.

The contrast with the interests of parents emphasizes the fact that parents are most likely to be concerned about the problems of the present instead of the future behavior and success of the child.

TENDENCY TO CRIMINALITY

By DR. FRANS ALEJANDER, Berlin Psychoanalyst.

All children, if free to respond to their instinctive impulses, would act as criminals. Instead of the popular conception that it is natural to be a law-abiding citizen, mental science has shown that people are born criminals.

Distinction must be made between the chronically criminal and the accidentally criminal, as the former class is incapable of reform by a mere change of environment, but requires medical treatment. The tendency to criminality is acquired in the conflicts of childhood between the natural impulses, chiefly love and hunger, and society. It is often impossible to find any rational motives for the behavior of the chronically criminal.

Punishment has no deterrent effect on the neurotic criminal excepting to stimulate him in an opposite direction from that desired. An individual of this type after punishment feels he has expiated his crime and is encouraged to commit new offenses.

NEW AGES, NEW RELIGIONS

By CHARLES FRANCIS POTTER, New York (Humanist).

Ox-cart religion is out of place in an airplane age. Every age has to have a religion of its own, because every age is marked by its system of transportation, and as travel increases, due to improved facilities, the mind of man broadens. When men had to depend on their own legs or on ox carts they could not travel far and remained tribal in their outlook. The development of transportation has continued until now the airplane removes man's last handicap in travel. When the airplane arrives provincialisms must go. World peace must come in the airplane age. The provincialism in religion also must go.

As contrasted with ordinary theism, humanism stands for thinking versus praying, courage versus trust, confidence versus fear, simplicity versus elaborateness and ritualism and a pioneering instinct versus conformity.

CRIMINAL VICTIM OF ACCIDENT

By DISTRICT ATTORNEY CRAIN, New York.

If husbands respected their wives, and if children were given religious education and taught to honor the old-fashioned principles of honesty and fair play, there would be no crime problem.

I am not saying anything new. I am merely repeating a few beliefs I have always held. We should be fair to the criminal, and take into account his early environment. He should be allowed to earn a fixed sum while in prison so that he will feel independent and not an outcast, and his term should be cut down if he shows an intention to reform. While on parole, a prisoner should be treated as a man who has had an accident.

The judge should also be treated with fairness. It is not wise to cut down judicial power because in some instances it has been abused.

Pathetic Reunion That Has Film Outclassed

Stranger than fiction and more moving than a film is a story which comes from Saint Omer, France. The scene is a cafe at Quivrehain.

Among the customers is an elderly woman. A miner enters. He has a story to tell. He relates how his father abandoned his mother in this very same village of Quivrehain in 1885, and took him to America when he was three years of age. His father died shortly after his arrival, and he was adopted by Poles, who made a miner of him. Eventually he returned to France, working in a pit at Hensies and passing as a Polish miner. The elderly woman put questions, and the miner was astonished when the woman jumped up in great excitement and declared that he was not a Pole, but a Frenchman, and that he was her son, taken from her 44 years ago.

Pipe-Organ to Sound in Famous Tabernacle

One wonders what Spurgeon would have thought of the new organ which is to be brought into use at the Metropolitan tabernacle, writes "Looker-On" in the London Daily Chronicle.

The great preacher shared the old Scottish dislike of "a kist 'o whistles," and in his time would permit no musical instrument of any kind in the tabernacle services, all the singing being led by a precentor, who announced the hymns and sang through the first line to give the congregation a start. In recent years an American organ has been used, but the famous church in Newington Butts has had to wait until now for its first pipe-organ. It should be added that, despite—or because of?—the lack of instrumental aid, the congregational singing at the tabernacle has always been notably good.

Nothing Doing

Secretary McCankle of the American Institute of Actuaries told a story at a banquet in Des Moines.

"A waiter in a night club," he said, "complained bitterly to the cloakroom girl.

"The whole night through," he moaned, "I've had the hardest kind of hard luck. Haven't made a cent on the side, not a cent. I added in the date on every blasted bill, but not once did the trick work. Not once the whole night through."

"You poor fish," said the cloakroom girl, "no wonder your trick didn't work. Don't you know that all these people here are attending the actuaries' convention?"

Nonsense

Jean Assolant, the French airman, said at his wedding breakfast in Old Orchard.

"Everybody ought to get married. Most people's excuses for not marrying are as nonsensical as Sir Thomas Lipton's.

"Sir Thomas, you know, said to the Dolly sisters:

"Yes, I'm a bachelor, and I'm going to remain one, for you know, my dears, married men make the worst husbands."

OLD DOCTOR'S IDEA IS BIG HELP TO ELDERLY PEOPLE

In 1885, old Dr. Caldwell made a discovery for which elderly people the world over praise him today! Years of practice convinced him that many people were endangering their health by a careless choice of laxatives. So he began a search for a harmless prescription which would be thoroughly effective, yet would neither gripe nor form any habit. At last he found it.

Over and over he wrote it, when he found people bilious, headache, out of sorts, weak or feverish; with coated tongue, bad breath, no appetite or energy. It relieved the most obstinate cases, and yet was gentle with women, children and elderly people.

Today the same famous, effective prescription, known as Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, is the world's most popular laxative. It may be obtained from any drugstore.

Her Need

Little Betsy had been ill, and with the privilege of an invalid, demanded so much of her mother's time and attention that her older brother, Fred, was a trifle annoyed. One day when Betsy had kept her devoted parent reading aloud to her until she was almost hoarse, Fred remarked succinctly: "Well, mom, I think what Betsy needs is a 'talking picture of you.'"
