MISS ANNE O'NEILL

Miss Anne O'Neill, aged 34, formerly of Ebensburg, died Monday morning at her home in Pittsburgh...

DON'T KEEP YOUR HOME WARM THIS YEAR

"It has been but recently that nearly everyone was complaining about the torrid weather, and with good reason...

"If the perversity of human nature were the only element in the situation the matter might cause a smile...

"Of course, there is a decided temptation to step up the furnace when the cool winds of late autumn or the chill blasts of real winter are attempting to invade one's domain...

"Therefore, keep the home fires burning, but keep them burning on a health basis rather than on the summer heat standard of the recent unmeted season."

LETTER CARRIERS MEET AT CRESSON

H. P. Moore of Clearfield was named president of the Mountain district Pennsylvania Letter Carriers' association at Cresson Saturday evening as upward of 125 letter carriers from Cambria, Blair, Bedford, Huntingdon, Clearfield and Fulton counties assembled for their semi-annual dinner meeting...

The postal employes re-elected A. Grant Stains of Cresson as their vice president for another term. George Schultzabarger of Altoona was secretary, succeeding M. S. Keller, also of Altoona, and Chester England of Everett was elected treasurer.

At a brief business session preceding a program featuring an address by the national president, the district organization selected Hollidayburg as the scene of their next meeting, which probably will be held in April. A memorial service also was held in tribute to the late George Easley, retired Johnstown postal employe.

In the principal address of the evening Edward J. Gahner of Muncie, Ind., president of the National Association of Letter Carriers, outlined the national program and urged cooperation in the work of every branch of the organization. Other speakers on the program, which brought messages of unusual interest to the letter carriers, included Harry C. Young of Harrisburg and H. J. Kinzler of Pittsburgh, vice presidents of the Pennsylvania Letter Carriers' association; Congressman J. Russell Leach and Postmasters W. E. Shisler of Johnstown, John F. Parrish of Cresson and J. Rosenberry of Clearfield.

The Johnstown Letter Carriers' band, which arrived with a delegation of approximately 50 members, presented a pleasing musical program during the dinner. Other musical features included solo and unaccompanied by Herbert J. Mover and Bartley Smith, both of Cresson.

Large advertisement for Sterling Motor Oil featuring an image of a runner and text: 'EXHAUSTED AT THE TAPE! MOST motor oils are like runners that just breast the tape... then fall... played out. They merely get by from one oil change to another. They look and feel like dirty water when they are drained from the crankcase. They are refined to "just meet" the requirements of a motor... that's all. But Sterling... in adding its new "Safety Reserve" (made possible by the addition of new intricate refining equipment and the selected grades of famous Pennsylvania Crude) has exceeded the requirements of the average motor so far that dirt, dilution and oil loss will demand an oil change long before its complete resistance to heat and friction has been tapped or called upon.
