WHO SPLITS?

Those who desire further proof of who is responsible for present divisions in labor ranks, are invited to examine what has been happening in Canada.

The CIO from the first has stood for a united labor movement. In the United States the movement was split, against its will, by the action of the AFL executive council in expelling the CIO unions.

In Canada, both CIO and AFL unions remained united in the Trades and Labor Congress and in nearly all the local trades councils, despite the split in the United States.

It has been the policy of the CIO in Canada, as it was in the United States, to continue this unity as long as possible. And this policy has succeeded for three years there because it has also been backed by the AFL membership, as shown by repeated convention proceedings of the Canadian Trades and Labor Congress.

But the top leaders of the AFL have long been trying to divide Canadian labor in the same way they divided the movement in the United States.

Repeated orders have been issued from AFL headquarters in Washington to drive the CIO unions out of the local trades councils in Canada, and to disaffiliate them from the Trades and Labor Congress.

These orders have been resisted up to now because of the strength of the Canadian union sentiment for labor unity. But the pressure from AFL's headquarters seems finally to have had effect in the reluctant decision of the executive council of the Trades and Labor Congress to obey William Green's splitting orders.

Vice President D. W. Morrison of the Trades and Labor Congress, who is also president of District No. 26 of the United Mine Workers of America, as the one CIO representative among the Congress representatives, has upheld the CIO stand for unity throughout.

In opposing any split, he declared, "My stand is that of strict adherence to the decision of the recent convention of the Canadian Trades and Labor Congress held at Niagara Falls that there would be no division of the ranks of labor in Canada.

"The organization of which I have been the honor of being an officer and a member, the United Mine Workers of America, stands for unity in the ranks of labor, not only in Canada, but in the United States as well."

If the craft leaders finally succeed in splitting the labor movement in Canada, the CIO unions will still continue to stand and work for labor unity.

This they can do with a clear conscience, for the record shows beyond any shadow of doubt who are the splitters of the labor movement. The CIO has stood consistently for the labor unity which is also desired by most of the rank and file of the AFL. The disrupters of this unity are the AFL leaders who evidently believe that they can only continue to rule through division.

LOVER'S QUARREL ENDS IN DEATH FOR YOUTH OF GALLITZIN, SUNDAY

Despondent, police believe, over a lover's quarrel, Thomas W. Slad, 25, of Gallitzin, took his life late Sunday night in the woods along what is known as the Mountain Road leading from Gallitzin to Coupon. The body was found about six o'clock on Monday evening by County Detective John C. McGowan and Chief of Police Julius Jernosky of Gallitzin, who were informed that a car was parked on the highway with an overcoat, hat and keys in it.

Starting an investigation immediately, the two officers followed tracks from the car about fifty yards into the woods where they came upon the body. Slad had been dead about twenty hours, it is estimated.

Raymond V. Glancy, a coal trucker of Gallitzin, first noticed the parked car when he was passing with a load of coal. On the return trip the car was still there and another autoist, reaching the scene at the same time was forced to drive off the highway to permit the car to pass.

It was in helping the motorist back onto the road that Glancy became curious about the parked car and looked inside. He noticed the hat and overcoat and noticed that the keys were in the ignition switch. The car, he said, was coated with ice, indicating it had been parked there some time. On reaching Gallitzin, Glancy notified police authorities.

Officers learned Sunday night Slad had been with a girl to whom he was engaged. On interviewing the young woman officers learned that Slad had seemed depressed by a disagreement the pair had during the evening and that Slad had left the girl's home in anger about ten o'clock.

A .25 calibre automatic revolver was found close to the body, it appearing that Slad had sat down in the snow, shot himself through the heart and fell full length on his back. Only one shot was fired, six cartridges remaining in the clip.

Thomas W. Slad was a son of Mr. and Mrs. Marco Slad both deceased. He is survived by a brother, Steve, and a sister, Helen, of Gallitzin, and a brother residing in Michigan. He was employed as an iron worker by the Pennsylvania Railroad Company at Gallitzin.

A new synthetic fiber made from castor oil and coal tar is expected to have wide use in women's hosiery, and is already used for toothbrush bristles and wire insulation.

The Northern Cambria Republican Club will hold its regular monthly meeting in the house hall at Hastings on Monday evening, February 6th, at 8 p. m. At this meeting there will be interesting speaking, with Editor Joseph C. Graul, of the Cambria Dispatch, Fortage, heading the list. A half hour of entertainment of various kinds will also be afforded.

The club has held meetings in various towns in the north of the county, the last gathering being held at Carriltown in the American Legion hall about four weeks ago. At that time the following officers were chosen for the year: Jerome J. Sheehan, president; George R. Bender, first vice president; Mrs. Regina Winslow, second vice president; Mrs. Catherine Bowers, secretary; Edward Conrad, treasurer; Maurice Stoltz, sergeant at arms, and Dennis Bender was retained as the Publicity Chairman. An attendance of 225 was present at the meeting and 102 new members were admitted to the club. Publicity chairman Bender advises that in order to join the club one is required to be a registered Republican. The fee is 25 cents per year, and a membership card is issued. He also asks Republicans to come to the Hastings meeting where application forms will be available, and join the club. He adds, too, that if you are not a registered Republican, you are invited to come to the meeting anyway. All are welcome.

During the fall campaign the Northern Cambria Republican Club held a number of rallies, among them being meeting in Carrolltown, Patton, Barnesboro, Hastings, Spangler, Chest Springs, Flinton, Ashville, St. Augustine, Blandburg, Moss Creek and St. Benedict. The club is a year and a half old, and its membership has grown immensely. They invite you to come to the next meeting.

Joint Council Meeting of United Wholesale and Retail Employees

The last meeting of the Joint Council of the United Wholesale and Retail Employees of America, a CIO affiliate, was held in the Minors' hall at Gallitzin on January 20th.

The meeting was called to order by the chairman, Mr. Retallick. Roll was called if the locals with a good representation present at the meeting. Locals represented paid their per capita tax to the Joint Council which is due each month, and also made a report of their Locals.

Colver Local—Report made by Kenneth Grazer. This is one of the best locals of the Joint Council and is getting along very well.

Barnesboro Local—Report by Mr. Davis. This is a very large local but they seem to have difficulty in collecting dues from their membership. Any member in this local that has been back in paying dues has been disqualified, and to become a member of the Local again, an initiation or fine must be paid. Lost several members by marriage.

Ebensburg Local—Report given by Frances Feighner. Having trouble with collection of dues, otherwise getting along very well. Have possibilities of getting new members.

Gallitzin Local—Report given by a representative. This local has again taken great interest in the Joint Council. They are getting along very well with the exception of the Truckers with whom there is competition. Have possibilities of getting three new stores under a signed contract and of getting a few new members.

Punxsutawney Local—Report given by a representative. This is a very large local consisting mostly of meat packers. It is one of the best locals of the joint council and is getting along very well. This local formerly belonged to the AFL.

Mr. Elmer Barger, organizer, made a report of the locals that were unable to be represented. He also reported on the work and his efforts in securing a contract for the A & P Tea Co. Store in Curwensville. Mr. Barger also asked the local unions to make a drive on all A & P clerks.

It was proposed that a man be sent to Johnstown for a week to try to organize in that territory. There are possibilities of getting the clerk's at one of the large department stores there.

Motion was made and carried that Mr. John Frank be sent to Johnstown to work there for organization.

The Joint Council also went on record that it is not in accord with any company or companies to sanction work on the Sabbath Day.

The Joint Council will hold its next meeting at Punxsutawney on Friday, evening, February 24th. All locals are requested to be present.

PRE-CANNED FISH

All ready for canning is this "drum fish" seined by four Seattle men in the northern part of Puget Sound. The finny adventurer had apparently gotten into the milk bottle when small, and being of a retiring, thoughtful nature, remained too long. When he tried to get out he found that he was too big. The fishermen turned it over to the Seattle aquarium.
