A companion bill provided for pre-marriage syphilis tests, also sponsored by Senator C. Gilbert Wolfenden, Indiana Republican, was approved by both houses and was signed by Gov. Arthur H. James.

Unanimous Senate approval was given to a House-approved bill appropriating $3,000,000 to distressed school districts, effective June 1.

UNUSUAL BEQUESTS BY CAMBRIA FOLKS REVEALED BY MIKE HARTNETT

"To my wife I bequeath my blessing. I have taken out an insurance policy for $2,500 for her which is ample provision for all the worryment she has caused me and mine by her foul, filthy tongue. May God forgive her as freely as I do."

Thus a Johnstown "remembered" his wife when writing his will, filed with Register Michael J. Hartnett, following the death of the "fond" husband. This unusual provision is only one of many found by Mr. Hartnett in a search for odd bequests made in wills which have been filed in his office.

Another husband bequeathed his wife "one brindle cow, one spotted cow, one brindle heifer, plenty of hay and straw for the cows, flax cornmeal, 100 weight of pork every year." Just how the distribution was made Mr. Hartnett knoweth not.

A lady disposed of clothing as follows:
"First, I give and bequeath to my friend x x x, my black bombazine dress; second, I give and bequeath to my friend x x x, my best flannel dress with all my nightgowns; third, I give and bequeath to my niece x x x, my black quilted skirt, one poplin dress, one plain delain dress, a calico dress and my collar."

A man of a religious nature provided: "I wish my two-year-old steer to be sold next fall and the money given to Rev. x x x x x as I owe him $20."

Another Cambria Countian was evidently opposed to his widow remarrying as he provided in his will that "the income from my estate is to go to my wife as long as she remains my widow, but if she remarries she shall pay back to my children as much as she has received from my estate."

A wife evidently thought her husband was a spendthrift as her will provided that "I will my daughter my property upon condition that she pay to my husband $12 per month for two years, to be paid in payments of 40 cents a day."

A veteran bequeathed his army commission, discharge and marriage certificate.

"I give to my son, William, $10, being about the price of a cow," was the provision made by a father for his son.

A former member of the Legislature provided a bequest "of the chair I sat in in the Legislature."

Another parent was not so liberal. He declared in his will, "I will to my son x x x, $100. My reason for not giving him more is that he is 38 years old the last day of this month and all he ever gave me in his life $1 and that he spends all his money for drink. What I have willed him he can do as he pleases with."

A disappointed father stated in his will: "For it seems that my own children do not care for me and therefore this is my wish that the above named x x x have everything belonging to me."

A father set down in his will: "Property to be divided equally between my present wife and my daughter. I did intend to give each of the boys $1, but it wouldn't satisfy them so I don't count on giving them anything."

Mr. Hartnett after office hours, is now conducting a search of odd introductions to wills.

TYPO LEADER BRANDS AFL ATTACK 'MORONIC'

Washington — AFL "alleged labor leaders" allied with employers to amend the Wagner Act are bluntly described as "moronic" and accused of seeking special privilege of trying to "defeat the purposes of the act" in the leading editorial of the May Typographical Journal, organ of the AFL Typographical Union, issued this month.

The editorial, signed by Woodruff Randolph, Journal editor, defends the Board from the charge of unfairness repeated ad nauseam by AFL top leaders, and declares:
