

DEATH NOTICES

CHARLES C. ANNA.

Charles C. Anna, 81, one of Cambria County's best known residents, died at 10:30 o'clock on Tuesday morning at his home in Elder township, near St. Boniface. Death ended an illness of several months of a complication of ailments. Anative and life long resident of Elder township, Mr. Anna's death occurred in the same house in which he was born. He was born Nov. 23, 1857, a son of Squire Anthony Anna and Mrs. Anna Mary (Hahn) Anna. He operated the homestead farm for many years, and served for many years on the school board. He was also interested in the lumber business, and worked for some years as a raftsmen on the Susquehanna river and made trips from Northern Cambria to Harrisburg.

Mr. Anna was one of the oldest members of the Catholic church at St. Boniface. His wife, the former Margaret Yeager, died 28 years ago. He also was preceded in death by four children.

Surviving are these children: Anthony Anna, Akron, Ohio; Patrick Anna, Kecoughtan, Va.; Harry Anna, of Hastings; Gertrude, wife of Coroner Patrick McDermott, Hastings; Agnes, wife of James Lynn, St. Boniface; Mary, wife of Harry Yeager, St. Boniface, and Wilfred Anna, Elder township.

He also leaves 27 grandchildren and one great-grandchild. He was a brother

CLERK CANDIDATE

BYRON W. DAVIS.

Byron W. Davis of Ebensburg, a life long resident of Cambria county, has announced his candidacy for the Republican nomination for clerk of courts. He was a candidate for the same office in 1927 but lost the nomination by a narrow margin.

Davis feels that he is well qualified for the position. He has had six years of experience in the common pleas court and has served as auditor of Ebensburg borough for the past 25 years. He was elected to the borough office on both tickets. He is vice president of the Ebensburg Volunteer Fire Company.

In the Shade of the Big Value Tree

When its so hot you can fry eggs on the sidewalk—just remember that down at Sharbaugh & Lieb's the apparel is as cool as a Coco Cola ad.

And when you feel so broke that you're wondering if you can afford a tire for the car, don't forget that in the shade of Sharbaugh & Lieb's big value tree you can afford the cool attire you need—now—without waiting.

Why should a man go on huffing and puffing when values like these are keeping his friends comfortable?

JOSEPH H. REILLY.

Joseph H. Reilly, 79, one of the oldest coal operators in Pennsylvania, expired last Thursday night at his home at Sandy Brook Farm, Paoli, near Philadelphia. Mr. Reilly was president of the Duncan-Spangler and the Joseph Reilly Coal Companies. He had been in business for more than fifty years and operated mines in Barnesboro and Spangler.

The companies had mines in other parts of the central Pennsylvania field before establishing the two in Cambria county. Delta No. 2 is the Duncan-Spangler mine located in Barnesboro, and Reilly Colliery No. 1 is located in Spangler. The latter operations are closed at present while the Delta mine is operating with about fifty employees. The Cambria county mines were opened over 20 years ago.

Mr. Reilly was born in Philadelphia and educated in the Parochial schools there. He was a member of the Friendly Sons of St. Patrick, the Kelly St. Business Men's Association, Philadelphia, and Philadelphia Country Club.

Surviving are his widow, Mrs. Julia K. Reilly, a daughter, Mrs. Mollie Stackpole, and a granddaughter, Julia Faine. He was a brother of John E. Reilly, Spangler, and Col. William R. Reilly, Philadelphia, and Mrs. C. R. Jones, Spangler. Funeral services were held on Monday.

Joseph H. Reilly in the early days of the Barnesboro and Spangler operations was well known in the north of the county, but was an infrequent visitor in recent years.

MISS ELIZA DOUGHERTY.

Miss Eliza Dougherty, 73, died on Thursday night at the home of her brother, James Dougherty in Ebensburg. She had been in ill health for a number of weeks. Miss Dougherty was a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Dougherty and was born April 20th, 1866.

Surviving are her brother, James Dougherty, and two sisters, Mrs. Hattie Galligan, and Mrs. Mary Adams, both of Gallitzin.

ANDREW KINLEY.

Andrew Kinley, 31, foreman at the Sonman Shaft of the Koppers Coal Company, Portage, died unexpectedly on Saturday at his home. Death was attributed to a heart attack.

Mr. Kinley had not complained of any ailment and had worked as usual on Friday. He was employed at the Sonman mine for a number of years.

EDWIN HOARE.

Edwin Hoare, aged 52 years, died on Wednesday morning of last week at his home in Emeigh, following an extended illness. Surviving are his widow and two children, Mrs. Gordon Evans, of Detroit, Mich., and Miss Betty Hoare, at home.

ELMER E. NELSON.

Elmer E. Nelson, well known Gallitzin hardware merchant, died last Friday morning at his home in Gallitzin. Death terminated an illness of several months of a complication of ailments. He was born in Altoona. His wife died in 1931. A son, Oliver, survives.

GUFFEY CITES STATE'S G. O. P. RULE OF WHAT NATION COULD EXPECT

Washington. — Senator Joseph P. Guffey, of Pennsylvania, who is booming President Roosevelt for a third term, issued a "political preview of 1940" last Thursday night in which he described "failures" of the present administration of Republicans in Pennsylvania as a "curtain raiser" of what the nation could expect if the G. O. P. wins next year.

"Pennsylvania is stuck with Governor James and a Republican administration for three more years," he said. "Let us make sure we are not stuck again next year, for we have seen in the Keystone state the Republican alternative to the New Deal of Franklin Roosevelt is not prosperity, not progress and hope for the future, but only broken faith, broken pledges, the chaos of crumbling fidelity, and the exploitation of the country for their own greedy interests."

"In Pennsylvania," he continued, "we have a Republican administration elected after four years of liberal Democratic government. The sole owners and operators of that administration are the same forces that control the national Republican organization and will formulate its policies for their hand-picked candidates next year."

"When I say the same forces I think of such individuals, dynasties and great corporations as Joe Pew of the Sun Oil Company, who is in charge of finances for the Republican National Committee; the Mellons of Pittsburgh, czars of finance and heavy industry; former Senator Joseph R. Grundy, leader of the powerful Pennsylvania Manufacturers' Association; the du Ponts, whose influence is not restricted to the duchy of Delaware, the House of Morgan, which operates unobtrusively but effectively through Philadelphia banking connections; the public utilities which have supported the Republican state and national machines for generations; and diverse other potent financial and industrial interests."

"These men and these interests call the turn at Harrisburg, and their word is the final word in the leadership of the Republican party in the nation."

Guffey related that "these self-professed patriots and public benefactors" won control of the state administration by going up and down the state and "shouting that the liberal policies of the Democratic Administration were driving business out of the state, forcing factories to shut down and piling up tax burdens for generations unborn."

"They succeeded in fooling the voters with promises, he went on—and in six short months they have turned out to be the greatest collection of political fakirs, the most gaudy assortment of political hypocrites and medicine men who ever worked a shell game under the political big top."

He said they promised less spending, lower taxes, a balanced budget, jobs for everybody, humanized relief and more WPA. "They were for everything that the voters were for," he added. "They loved business, they loved the farmer, and they loved labor. They were the little pals of all the world before election."

The "time of reckoning has now come," he said, "but those called upon could not deliver."

He charged that the Democratic tax bill was reenacted "and the businessmen who had voted for lower taxes got fooled;" that the farmers voted for the Republicans "but got a bill to destroy their only defense against the milk trust;" that non-political relief was achieved by ripping out all non-partisan relief boards and substituting boards recommended by Republican leaders; that labor was "betrayed" by slashing of workmen's compensation, increasing minimum hours for women and repealing the law against anti-labor injunctions, and that the second largest budget in the history of the state was adopted.

"You may ask what this means," he said. "To that I answer that in Pennsylvania you have a curtain raiser to what may be expected of the Republican leadership of the nation. And what does this show? It shows that if business is beguiled into supporting the Republican cause it is deceiving itself; that if agriculture is looking for help, it cannot find it in that leadership."

"Let every citizen of every state measure Republican promises against the record of the new Republican administration in Pennsylvania. Those who voted Republican very likely believed they were voting for deliverance from a governmental monster; actually they were calling a bluff, because it was the most monumental bluff in Pennsylvania's history."

Five Hurt at Cresson.

Five persons were injured early on Friday night when an automobile and motor cycle collided on the William Penn Highway at the junction of Route 53 at Cresson. Robert Hoover, 27, Duncansville, operator of the motorcycle, suffered a compound fracture of the left arm and lacerations of the scalp.

John Lader, 21, Cresson, driver of the car, suffered abrasions and contusions of the body as did three other occupants of the machine. They were John Tutsock, 20, Cassandra, and Mrs. Mary Zerenka, 29, and Miss Mary Demko, 23, both of Benscreek, near Portage.

Colver Man Hurt.

John Rubish, 22, of Colver, suffered bruises about the face on Friday night when his car crashed into the rear of another vehicle on the Benjamin Franklin Highway four miles east of Indiana. The car ahead was said to have slowed up suddenly.

ADMIT DEER KILL ON LAST FALL HIGHER THAN ANTICIPATED

Harrisburg.—Encouraged by the hearty co-operation of hunters in reporting game kills during the 1938 season, the Pennsylvania Game Commission hopes for a one hundred per cent response next January 15th.

All but four per cent of the 660,600 hunters licensed last fall have filed their reports. Others still are trickling in, said Seth Gordon, executive director of the commission.

A $2 fine is provided for failure to report game kills. Notices of delinquency usually go out before fines are assessed.

The rule enables the commission to keep a better check on the scarcity or abundance of certain species which is for the sportsmen's "own benefit," Gordon pointed out.

From last season's statistics the commission learned that the deer kill was 169,986—somewhat higher than it had anticipated—but, according to field reports, "no region suffered seriously from overkilling. Many sections still report too many deer for the food supply."

The pheasant kill—511,000—established another new high for Pennsylvania, "further evidence" Gordon remarked, "that the spring stocking of nature birds pays." The previous high was 370,000 in 1937.

The total weight of the state's collective game bag was estimated by the commission as 25,285,000 pounds.

Taulation of the other kills: 381 bears, 6,722 wild turkeys, 4,222,000 rabbits, 2,120 snowshoe hares, 3,750 raccoons, 1,097,000 squirrels, 223,000 ruffed grouse, 109,000 quail, 8,656 shorebirds, 1,641 wild geese, 19,590 wild ducks, 78,000 blackbirds, 49,800 woodcocks and 145,000 woodchucks.

Figures do not include the game killed by thousands of landowners who did not obtain hunting licenses.

TRINITY METHODIST EPISCOPAL CHURCH

The story is told that a learned Chinese was employed by some missionaries to translate the New Testament into Chinese. At first the work of translating had no apparent effect upon the scholarly Chinese. But, after a time, he became quite agitated, and said, "What a wonderful book this is."

"Why so?" asked the missionary. "Because," said the Chinese man, "it tells me so exactly about myself. It knows all that is in me. The one who made this book must be the one who made me."

It will be worth your while to come to the Church School on Sunday morning at 9 a. m. and study this marvelous book. You will also find it very profitable to attend the mid-week Bible class and listen in on the Bible expositions given there. And on Sunday at 10 a. m. and 7:30 P. M. you will hear a discourse on some text of the Bible.

Bible Study is profitable in more ways than one—as anyone who sincerely pursues it will discover to his delight.
