CHEAP SKATES!

Another story has come out of Harlan county, Ky., that proves just how cheap some men are. As everyone knows Harlan county was for years, until recently, the hotbed of anti-unionism, and traces of that rotten system may still be found there, although most of the coal companies now are under contract with the United Mine Workers of America and a vast majority of the miners are members of the union. But there still remain a few coal companies and a few miners who are opposed to organization.

The new story from Harlan tells of a group of renegade miners who pulled out of the union and filed suit for an injunction to prevent the collection of union dues through the check-off, as provided in union contracts.

Before the United Mine Workers of America organized the Harlan Miners they worked for any kind of wages that the companies saw fit to pay. They worked long hours. They were surrounded by armed guards and gun thugs whose business it was to keep the union out of the county. The men were constantly under coercion and intimidation and always in danger of being beaten up, blackjacked, or even killed. Then the union came in and all of these terrors were wiped out. Wages were raised, hours shortened, working conditions improved, gun thugs driven out and liberty established. The group that now seeks an injunction to avoid the payment of union dues, accepted all of these benefits that were secured for them by the union. They were tickled to death when the union got for them increased wages and all other reforms. But they are not willing to pay their share of the cost of bringing these reforms about. They want all the benefits but they want someone else to pay for them. They are just common, everyday cheap skates and spongers.

It takes all kinds of people to make up the world, and possibly it is well that there are some such as these, for the whole thing shows the difference between honorable men and those who are totally devoid of honor. Fortunately, however, there are not many of that kind.

"NO SOAP"

The local union of New York printers, known as I. T. U.'s "Big Six," at a recent membership meeting voted that it would not "contribute one cent to destroy any organization which is working in the interest of labor." The local had been assessed by the AFofL to fight the CIO. As a result the local has been suspended by the state AFofL organization and no soap for the AFofL.
