Pennsylvania produced 23,800 tons of grapes this year, or approximately 780 tons more than in 1938 according to the Federal-State Crop Reporting Service of the Department of Agriculture.

Flees Exile

Fears that Ham Amin El Hussein, former grand mufti of Jerusalem who recently escaped from exile, may start a new anti-British terrorist campaign were expressed by government officials. The mufti, now in Iraq, is held responsible for the Arabs' campaign of terrorism.

EXCITING PICTURE STARS COOPER, BARTHOLOMEW

Jackie Cooper and Freddie Bartholomew are cast as friendly enemies in their dramatic new picture, "Two Bright Boys," which shows at the Grand Theatre on Friday and Saturday of this week. Supporting the lead in the play are Alan Dinehart, Dorothy Peterson, Melville Cooper and J. M. Kerrigan.

Said to be the most powerful story in which either of the young stars have appeared in recent months, "Two Bright Boys" is described as a stirring drama of human hearts. Told in the colorful atmosphere of the Texas oil fields, it pictures the swift tragedy which may come when one places confidence in dangerous companions. Advance reports indicate that the story moves at rapid-fire tempo through every reel with a plot which includes action, laughter and tears.

Cooper will be seen as the fiery tempered Irish boy who stakes his courage and wits against the evil schemes of a ruthless oil promoter, played by Alan Dinehart. Bartholomew has been given the co-starring role of a young English stranger who is forced through circumstances to become a menace to Jackie's plans, then displays the bravery to help avert disaster.

Melvin Cooper, who last appeared in "The Sun Never Sets," has the role of Freddie's father, a former English gentleman who has been reduced to gambling for a living. Dorothy Peterson, the nurse in the Dionne Quintuplets' films, portrays Jackie's mother. J. M. Kerrigan, noted character star, has a strong human role.

Filed from a screenplay by Val Burton and Edmund L. Hartmann, "Two Bright Boys" was directed by Joseph Santley and photographed by Elwood Bredell. But Kelly was associate producer on the picture.

STUDENTS STUDY MENTAL HEALTH

Harrisburg — High school and college students of Pennsylvania, as part of their instruction in the principles of mental health, make periodic visits to the State-owned and some State-aided mental hospitals.

These visits are included in the hospital program of education as a means of informing the public about mental disorders and ways of prevention and treatment.

Staff physicians at the various institutions arrange for the visits. The students are conducted through wards representative of various types of mental illness. Work of the hospital is explained by members of the staff. The students are shown classes in occupational therapy, recreational diversions and various other modern hospital methods in the treatment of mental disease.

In semi-classroom discussion, members of the hospital staff present to the students the full scope of the mental hygiene problems, and the need for general understanding of the subject in aiding early discovery and prevention of mental diseases.

Mental hygiene clinics for physicians of the various hospital districts are another important item in the program of informing medical students and general practitioners about mental ailments and their complications. Members of the staffs and visiting speakers present papers before these groups. Open discussion follows on various phases of mental diseases and their treatment.

FEED CROP YIELDS

Pennsylvania crop yields, despite the dry season and a continued lack of moisture, are above average for corn, wheat, oats, barley, rye and tobacco, while tame hay, buckwheat and potato yields are lower than average, according to the report issued this week by the Federal-State Crop Reporting Service of the Department of Agriculture, Harrisburg.

During the last campaign the Press-Courier printed over 450,000 small campaign cards for use in Cambria county alone, and they all came unsolicited— which of itself speaks well for our job printing department.
