

'Now, Here's the Way It Appears to Me'

It must have been a matter of grave consequence judging from the facial expression of Rep. Luther A. Johnson of Texas, right, who whispers into the ear of Rep. James A. Shanley of Connecticut. Johnson probably wears a happier look now, for the arms embargo repeal, which he backed, was adopted. Shanley advocated retention of existing embargo legislation.

Soldier's Return

Eager to help England win the war was Charles Conner, 14, of Chicago. He stowed away on board a transatlantic liner, then jumped the ship when it reached a British contraband inspection point. Authorities restrained him from joining the army and sent him home.

INDIANA NEWSPAPER OFFICE GUTTED BY FIRE

Office and plant of the 83 year old Indiana county weekly newspaper, The Messenger, were damaged by fire and water late on Friday night.

TWO NORTHERN CAMBRIA MINERS ARE INJURED ON TUESDAY OF THIS WEEK

Two Northern Cambria county coal miners were injured in accidents on Tuesday morning of this week. Both were caught under falls of rock.

Joseph Dorak, 28, of Bakerton, sustained injuries to the back when he was caught under a fall of rock in the No. 1 mine of the Sterling Coal Company at Bakerton. He was admitted to the Miners' hospital and his condition is listed as fairly good.

Struck by a large rock while at work in the No. 10 mine of the Peale, Peacock and Kerr Company at St. Benedict, Frank Rematt, 32, of Spangler, sustained a possible fracture of the right ankle. He was also admitted to the Miners' hospital, Spangler. His condition is listed as fair.

Youth Gets Two Years.

Admitting that he criminally assaulted a 15 year old girl, Jerome Noel, 19, of Lilly, was sentenced by Judge Greer to serve two years in the county jail. "The only reason I am not giving you a penitentiary sentence is because of your age," Judge Greer said in imposing sentence on Noel.

There is no substitute, and never will be, for the individual painstaking service that characterizes the best type of medical practice of today.

PATIENT'S PAIN IN CHEST OFTEN GIVES DOCTOR'S A HEADACHE, SAY DOCTORS

A patient's pain in the chest often gives the doctor a headache. Pain in the chest may be caused by so many different conditions. It may result from a disease of the heart, lung or pleura. Chest pain may originate in the vertebrae, spinal cord, chest wall or upper intestines. The location of a chest pain is not necessarily where the pain is produced.

In searching for the cause of a chest pain, the doctor must search for signs of disorder both within the chest cavity and in surrounding structures.

It is sometimes a difficult search. In the first place, accuracy in describing the location of pain declines as soon as the pain ceases.

Secondly, there is nothing particularly characteristic about the nature of the various types of chest pain.

Thirdly, there is always the nervous state of the patient to consider.

There are some well established instances of great insensibility to pain and there are those extreme cases of acutely reacting sensory systems which cry out at the slightest pain. Chest pain can be a very complicated symptom because of the many possible causes for such pain.

The most common causes of chest pain are strain and injury of the chest wall itself.

Then comes indigestion, with spasms of the esophagus and cardiac end of the stomach.

Pulmonary and pleural disorder and gallbladder disease are other causes of chest pain.

Because a pain in the chest may be caused by such a variety of conditions so far from the chest, a patient with this complaint offers a real problem to the doctor.

'Somebody Please Throw That Man Out'

When the cameraman surprised Countess Barbara Hutton Haugwitz-Reventlow, left, and Bob Sweeney, her new heart interest, while dining in a New York hotel, their companion, Countess Dorothy DiFrasso, jumped to the rescue and threw her fur piece over "Bob's" face, requesting that the cameraman be thrown out. Sweeney was too busy
