

DEATH NOTICES

HENRY J. LINK.

Henry J. Link, aged 90 years, one of Cambria county's oldest and best known residents, fell dead at 6:30 o'clock last Friday evening at his home on Fifth avenue, Patton.

Mr. Link was sitting at the table eating his evening meal when he collapsed and fell to the floor dead. Coroner Patrick McDermott said death resulted from a heart attack.

Despite his advanced age, Mr. Link was able to be about his home daily and was frequently seen walking the streets of Patton. He was a retired farmer, having operated a farm in East Carroll township for many years. He left the farm more than twenty years ago and moved to Patton.

He was born in Duncansville on March 1, 1849, a son of John and Veronica (Fox) Link. He located in this county more than sixty years ago.

Surviving are these children: James Link, Altoona; Ida, wife of John Gray, Spangler; Edward Link, Trafford; Mary, wife of C. J. Cordell, of Patton; Jane, wife of S. P. Dietrick, with whom he resided, and Amandus Link, Jeanette. He also leaves thirty-one grandchildren and eight great-grandchildren.

Mr. Link was a member of St. Mary's Catholic church of Patton and of the Roary Society of the church. Funeral services were held on Monday morning at nine o'clock with a high mass of requiem in St. Mary's by the Rev. Father Bertrand McFadyen, O. S. B., the pastor, and interment was made in the family plot in St. Benedict's cemetery at Carrolltown.

MRS. GERTRUDE LUTHER.

Mrs. Gertrude Weakland Luther, aged 51 years, died at 12:50 o'clock on Sunday afternoon at her home in Carrolltown after an illness of nearly five years. She was born in Elder township on January 8th, 1889, a daughter of Ambrose and Anna Campbell Weakland. She and Elmer Luther were united in marriage December 2, 1924, in St. Benedict's church, Carrolltown by Rev. Father Thomas Wolf, O. S. B., rector. Besides her husband, she leaves a son, Joseph William Luther at home. Mrs. Luther was a son of Edwin H. Weakland of New Brunswick, N. J.; Daniel P. Weakland, of Johnstown; Stephen J. Weakland, and Mrs. Leo Cronauer both of Carrolltown; Mrs.

A. S. HAYWOOD, NEW ORGANIZER, TAKES C. I. O. JOB

Washington — Allan S. Haywood, a graying veteran of John L. Lewis' Mine Workers Union, took over the job of directing C. I. O.'s new organizing efforts in the Nation's big industries, last Thursday, expressing confidence that neither the Communist Party nor any political group would be allowed to dictate C. I. O. policies.

Amid conflicting reports of an impending "purge" in the C. I. O., Haywood said in an interview that the C. I. O. would follow a strict trade union policy in its forthcoming membership drive in what he called the war industries.

"We organize whomever the employers employ," he said, "and we don't ask their political or religious beliefs or their racial background. We stand for freedom of thought, but we expect the officers and members to conform to the policies of the C. I. O."

Asked what C. I. O. would do if freedom of thought interfered with C. I. O. policies, Haywood replied: "If it interferes, we'll deal with it a bit comes up."

Witnesses before the Dies committee on un-American activities have charged that Communist Party members have gained influential positions in the C. I. O. and its affiliated organizations.

At the close of the C. I. O.'s San Francisco convention in October, President Lewis was reported to have told an Executive Board meeting that although there would be no "witch hunts," any budding young Communist who had ambitions to take over the C. I. O. "might as well forget it."

Lewis was reported to have demanded that C. I. O. officers who participated in shaping of policies devote their allegiance to the C. I. O. ahead of any other interests.

"I don't believe," Haywood asserted, "that John L. Lewis will let the Republicans, Democrats, Socialists, Communists or any other party run the C. I. O. or dictate its policies."

The onetime coal miner who began his career around Taylorville, and served until recently as C. I. O. director in New York State, said he had no orders to "purge" anyone.

"My orders," he added, "are to see that we get organizing activity around the country."

Haywood was named director of organization work by Lewis at the San Francisco convention. He was given two more members of the United Mine workers as his chief aides, Michael Widman and Walter Smethurst.

Members of the Mine Workers Union, who attached considerable significance to the selection of three U. M. W. members to run the organizing campaign, pointed out that union's constitution bars Communists from membership.

"Haywood said the C. I. O.'s new organizing plans were concerned largely with expanding membership in such industries as chemicals, steel, autos, rubber, aircraft, textiles, and machine tools where industrial activities and employment have been on the upturn.

CAMBRIA FLYING CLUB HOLDS ITS MEETING

The regular monthly meeting of the Cambria Flying Club was held at their club house at the Keystone Airport, Ebensburg, Tuesday evening, November 21st. There were plans made for a banquet to be held the second week in December. Forty members attended and general business was discussed. Major Paul O. Farabaugh, the instructor at the Keystone Airport, was appointed head of the committee to plan for the banquet.

Recent airport news would include a "Whos Who" list of those who have soloed in the past two weeks: Mae Haden, Ebensburg; Mickey Farabaugh Carrolltown, and George M. Donnelly, Huntingdon, made initial flights last week, and Beula Donnelly, Huntingdon; Merle Aiken, Colver; and Michael Manchulich, Conemaugh, soloed last week. This makes a total of 35 students who have soloed from the Keystone Airport since the first of June.

Recently, William Kessler, Jr., of Ebensburg, successfully passed the examination for a private license; and Inspector Goff, of the Civil Aeronautics Authority, visited the Airport and found everything quite satisfactory. He commented upon the advisability of clubs of this sort and congratulated the airport officials upon the high degree of enthusiasm for aviation that is characteristic of this airport.

The next meeting of the club will be held at the Keystone Airport the first Sunday of December.
