'Fenny Serenade' Billed at Grand Sunday and Monday
Estatic romance is the theme of George Stevens' "Fenny Serenade," a new drama at the Grand Theatre in Patton Sunday and Monday with Irene Dunne and Cary Grant starred. Two of the most exciting stars on the screen today, in a love story which is everything a love story should be—sentimental, rapturous, filled with laughter and with tears—"Fenny Serenade" possesses as well as a warmth and tenderness which makes it one of the year's immediate selections for the vaunted "ten best."

As a casual, irresponsible newspaperman and his wife, Grant and Miss Dunne bring to the screen characteristics which are intrinsically human, filled with sympathetic understanding so that their romance becomes one that not only belongs to, but becomes a part of, every member of their audience. The stars surpass anything they have ever given the screen.

Advance Planning of Vacations Advocated by Motor Club Chief
With increased highway use and a housing security in many sections due to a concentration of defense activities, the Johnstown Motor Club urges all motorists to plan spring and summer vacations early so that routes and accommodations can be carefully checked.

Pointing out that the American Automobile Association, with which the club is affiliated, is expanding its traveling service to meet new conditions resulting from the defense effort, W. Winston Davis, president of the Johnstown club, said that the 1941 travel season requires a new degree of planning.

"While increased highway use is in virtually every section," he pointed out, "there is particularly heavy traffic in the vicinity of training centers and defense production plants. Motorists can avoid these areas and add to their motoring pleasures by checking with an A. A. A. motor club regarding alternate routes."

Mr. Davis said that areas of unusually heavy traffic will be spotted on A. A. A. detour maps, issued twice a month.

With regard to housing accommodations, the motor club official asserted that hotels and tourist camps and home in some sections are crowded with defense workers, and it is more important than ever to make advance reservations.

'The Flame of New Orleans' 'Power Dive' Double Feature at Grand Theatre in Patton

"One of the best-balanced pictures Universal ever made" is the way studio executives describe "The Flame of New Orleans," which is one of the double-features attractions at the Grand Theatre in Patton Friday and Saturday.

Marlene Dietrich carries the principal glamour interest, supported by Bruce Cabot, playing his first major romantic role. But also opposite Marlene Dietrich is Roland Young, master of light comedy, cast here in the role of a Creole socialite.

The other film to be shown is one of the greatest air thrills ever recorded on film, "Power Dive," produced by Paramount. One scene when a plane is actually in a power dive and the controls are stuck, is filmed so that each spectator will feel that he is in the plane living through each harrowing second of death's challenge in the mid-air.

Defense Contract Service Goes Into High Gear

The Defense Contract Service in the Third Federal Reserve District pushed into high gear this week in its drive to speed up work of defense.

Declaring that speed is essential in the present emergency, Dr. Thomas Gates, district coordinator, disclosed that the roster of 15 regional chairmen now is complete.

Gates also added that "from our experience so far we know that the defense effort can, by our activities, be speeded immeasurably. There is much idle plant space and many idle machines."

Already the service has compiled details on more than 30,000 machines and machine tools in Pennsylvania as far west as Johnstown and as far east as Southern New Jersey and all of Delaware, he said.

The service is being run, Dr. Gates said, by men of business experience whose object is to get every available machine in the district into production for defense.

Through the service, he explained, companies holding defense contracts will have an information link with the firms which could accept subcontracts and thus aid in speeding defense work.

Each regional chairman chooses a committee of executives from every important industry in the regional area. He opens an office in the district, usually in conjunction with the Chamber of Commerce, and every machine and machine tool in the regional area are catalogued.

Robert S. Waters, Johnstown, is the chairman of District 13.

New Home Guard Enlistments Now Open

Harrisburg—Enlistments in Pennsylvania Reserve Defense Corps, a Home Guard which replaces the National Guard while those troops are in federal service, is now going on.

The general qualifications for the outfit will follow those for the National Guard, said Brig. General Robert Vail, acting adjutant general and commander of the corps.

Age limits are 21 to 50. While no ironclad rules are fixed for giving preference to those with military experience, the company commander may consider that as added qualification.

Sixty enlistments will be taken for each company. There are 10 companies in each of the state's three regiments of the corps, making a total of less than 2,000 men which General Vail said would comprise the initial strength. The War Department authorizes 1,000 on the basis of National Guard strength.

Blue-gray uniforms will be furnished, along with rifles, out of state and federal funds.

The state guard assumes the general function of the Pennsylvania National Guard for acting in emergencies—and in addition is the "behind-the-line" protective force in time of war.

Officials point out that growing importance is given to efficient, well-trained troops behind the line, as a result of events in Europe.
