SPANGLER LADIES ARE HOSTS TO LEGION AUXILIARY COUNCIL

School Essay Winner Announced at Quarterly Meeting of the County Organization

Robert Hinks, a student in the Johnstown High School, last Thursday was announced as the winner of the essay contest sponsored by the Cambria County Council of the American Legion Auxiliary of the American Legion Auxiliary. The announcement was made at the regular quarterly meeting of the Council held in the American Legion Home, Spangler, by Mrs. Thomas A. Owens of Carrolltown, president of the body. The youth's essay will be entered in a state wide contest being sponsored by the body.

Guest speaker at the dinner, held at the Brandon hotel in conjunction with the meeting was William F. Smith, Punxsutawney, past commander of the Pennsylvania Department of the American Legion. He discussed the present war and outlined the part the Legion and its auxiliary must play in the home defense effort.

The Council by unanimous vote endorsed Mrs. George Beisinger of South Fork as a candidate for the office of Western Director of the auxiliary. The election will take place at the state convention next August in Pittsburgh. Mrs. Beisinger, a past president of the county council, will be a candidate to succeed Mrs. Oscar Sutcliffe of Somerset.

CAMBRIA COUNTY PAYS PLENTY FOR ITS LIQUOR

Cambria Countians laid $2,474,-881.77 on the line for their liquor and wine last year to rank eighth among the state's 67 counties, it was announced last week by the Liquor Control Board at Harrisburg.

The first witness may be Secretary of Interior Harold L. Ickes. Gasoline now is being produced from coal by the hydrogenation process on a large scale in Germany, Japan, Italy, France and Great Britain. Germany has a number of large plants and experts believe that she now is producing more than a million tons of gasoline yearly from coal.

NATION CONSIDERS USING OF COAL IN MAKING GASOLINE

But the Product Is Very Likely to Be Expensive According to Experts' Reports

Washington.—Don't be surprised if the man at the filling station puts some gasoline made from coal instead of petroleum in the family car one of these days.

It isn't, the experts say, because the country doesn't have sufficient quantities of petroleum for refinement—it's a transportation problem. And coal is to be found in quantity along the East Coast, where the gasoline shortage threatens to become the most critical.

A House sub-committee headed by Representative Jennings Randolph, (D., W. Va.), plans to explore the matter, probably opening hearings in 10 days.

Gasoline now is being produced from coal by the hydrogenation process on a large scale in Germany, Japan, Italy, France and Great Britain. Germany has a number of large plants and experts believe that she now is producing more than a million tons of gasoline yearly from coal.

The Bureau of Mines has been experimenting along the same line, and its experts think that the same process could well be developed in this country. They believe that coal also may be used in making of plastics.

Gasoline made from coal would be more expensive, the cost of refinement per gallon running around sixteen cents. By the time the various taxes were paid the cost would be considerably more.

Experts estimate that four or five tons of coal—either bituminous or anthracite—would be used to make one ton of gasoline.

The primary interest of the House sub-committee is in averting a situation comparable to that of the rubber shortage.

TAX REDUCTION ON ESTATE OF MRS. SCHWAB AT LORETTO SOUGHT BY THE EXECUTORS

Harrisburg.—Appeal from the appraisalment of the state for inheritance tax purposes of the real estate and personal property of the estate of Mrs. E. Eurana Schwab, widow of Steel Magnate Charles M. Schwab was filed in the Dauphin County Court on Friday.

The executors and trustees, Willard A. Mitchell and the Empire Trust Company of New York, ask that the appraisalment be lowered from $185,800 to $52,000 in three items.

They say the property, "Immergrun" at Loretto, appraised at $150,000, should be cut to $50,000; the property known as "Seeds," Loretto, appraised at $3,800, should be reduced to $2,000, and personal property consisting of livestock, farm equipment and household furnishings, appraised at $25,000, should be eliminated because it belonged to the late steel magnate himself.

The petition says that "Immergrun" was erected by Schwab "out of sentiment for his childhood home" and that persons of wealth who could purchase the place are not interested in the property because of its location.

The petition adds that the estate pays out $12,000 a year for taxes, maintenance, fire insurance and other items on the properties.
