

WEEK FARM CALENDAR

From the Pennsylvania State College Agriculturalists

Pasture Saves Grain.

Pennsylvania's increased swine population will require a large amount of additional feed this year. Livestock specialists of the Pennsylvania State College recommend the use of pasture where possible to provide a high protein feed and save grain. Alfalfa and clover pastures are preferable, but Dwarf Essex rape may be used where legume pastures are not available.

Select Cockerels.

Poultry growers who plan to maintain breeding flocks to supply hatching eggs next fall, winter, and spring should select and save their best cockerels at the time they market broilers, remind poultry specialists of Pennsylvania State College. About three times as many should be saved as will be needed.

Roses Are Available.

Flower growers have many outstanding varieties of roses available this year either as additions or as replacements, say ornamental horticulturists of the Pennsylvania State College. There are white, pink, red, salmon, orange, apricot, yellow and blends. Ask your county agent for rose culture information.

Repair Girdled Trees.

Apple trees girdled by mice during the past winter face death unless repairs are made promptly, say Penn State fruit specialists. A prompt and effective job of bridge grafting usually will insure quick and complete recovery.

Use Slatted Floors.

Many turkey growers prefer slatted wooden floors instead of wire for turkey sun porches. Penn State poultry specialists have records of slats lasting seven years without repairs.

Save Anti-Freeze.

Drain and save antifreeze solution in cars, trucks, and tractors for use next winter, urge Penn State agricultural engineers.

Soybeans Are Needed.

Oil is needed for the war effort and high protein concentrates are in demand for livestock feeding. Soybeans produced by Pennsylvania farmers this year will help to relieve shortages of both. Agronomists of the Pennsylvania State College say that oil can be extracted from the beans and the meal used for feed.

Plant Certified Potatoes.

Certified seed is the only stock from which it is safe to save seed for next year's planting, remind the plant pathologists of the Pennsylvania State College. Plant the certified seed in a field separate from other potatoes to avoid any possibility of disease infection which might occur in the same field.

Grow Some Flowers.

A touch of color will be added to the garden by growing some flowers in the border and the blooms can be used for inside decoration. Floriculturists of the Pennsylvania State College suggest snapdragons, calendulas, China asters, cosmos, petunias, scabiosa, marigolds, and zinnias.

Gardening Is Popular.

Vegetable gardening is engaging the attention of 4-H Club members all over Pennsylvania. Club leaders at the Pennsylvania State College report that the members are making sure their families have plenty of vegetables this year.

Better Breeding Pays.

Dairy cows are limited by inheritance in their production of milk and butterfat. Only sires that improve the production of their daughters over that of the dams should be used, Penn State dairy extension specialists emphasize.

Save Good Cockerels.

Flock owners who plan to produce hatching eggs should make the first selection of breeding cockerels at the time they market broilers, say Penn State poultry specialists.

NOVENA FOR THE MONTH OF MAY ANNOUNCED FOR CARMELITE MONASTERY

The Carmelite nuns of Loretto announce the monthly novena for May in honor of St. Therese, the special favorite of Mary. Each day of the novena, from May 22 to May 30, inclusive, there will be novena services, also benediction of the Blessed Sacrament and prayers in honor of the Blessed Mother, continued throughout the month.

During this May, as always, we honor the Blessed Virgin as the patroness of the Church in our country. It is the earnest wish of the Holy Father, Pope Pius XII, that special intercession be made through the Immaculate Heart of Mary, the Queen of Peace, for the needs of humanity and for the attainment of a just peace. She will obtain the graces all need to bear the sacrifices, hardships and separations which war thrusts upon us. A special intention will be made for the many sons and daughters of the Church who have flocked to the defense of the country, many of whom are already enshrined on the honor roll of the dead. All names sent to the Monastery, as well as all intentions, will be placed on the altar and remembered in the many prayers of the Carmelite nuns during this month. Novena services and Benediction of the Blessed Sacrament each day at 4 p. m. Address to the Carmelite Monastery, Loretto, Pa.
