WEEK FARM CALENDAR

From the Pennsylvania State College Agriculturalists

Cull Idle Hens. Poultrymen must cull non-layers out of their flocks if the available feed supply is to do the most good in producing eggs.

Feed Calf Starter. To save milk for the war emergency many dairymen have adopted the dry calf starter method of feeding.

Get Seed from Hay. If the second crop clover hay was cut on the ripe side, there may be a lot of seed in it as well as good feed.

Place Farm Labor. Total placements of emergency farm labor in 1943 were 82,908 persons, according to the Pennsylvania State College Agricultural extension service.

Order Machine Parts. To keep farm machines running, order needed parts early so that they can be put on the machinery in advance of using and thus save valuable time when field work is pressing.

Keep Farm Accounts. Farm records help the farmer to know what parts of his business are paying and which may be losing money.

SAYS MILK PRODUCTION GRADUALLY INCREASING

Miles Horst, Pennsylvania Secretary of Agriculture, says that Pennsylvania milk production is gradually increasing in volume as more cows freshen, but added: "feed, labor and price conditions are such that many dairymen are fearful that even 1943 production may not be attained in 1944."

Horst said federal-state crop reporting service statistics show 1943 production of 4,863,000,000 pounds was three per cent below that of 1942 and that June was the only month in which production equalled that of the same month in the previous year.

December production of 353,000,000 was three per cent under that of December 1942.
