'SHOW BUSINESS' AT GRAND THEATRE NEXT SUNDAY AND MONDAY

It was amateur night at Miner's Bowers on Manhattan's Lower East Side, more than thirty years ago. A skinny, pop-eyed kid pushed onto the stage of the famous old burlesque theatre, began singing "The Curse of an Aching Heart" in quavering, melancholy tempo.

Wild boos and catcalls greeted his doleful debut. A head of rotten cabbage missed him by inches, an over-ripe tomato smote him high on the temple, and marked a grisly path down his cheek. From the wings, a veteran actor yelled to "speed it up, speed it up."

The kid sang faster, rolled his eyes clapped his hands, and jumped excitedly about the stage to avoid the missiles. The audience sat up—this was action—this was fun! They roared approval. The shower of garden truck was replaced by a shower of coins.

From such a humble start, banjo-eyed Eddie Cantor went on to become one of the great figures in American show business.

That scene on the stage of Miner's Bowers was recently repeated by Eddie Cantor, now 51 years old, as one of the highlights of his new Radio RKO picture, titled properly enough, "Show Business," and which will be the attraction at the Grand Theatre, Patton on Sunday and Monday next, with a matinee on Sunday afternoon, 2:30. Cantor produced the picture; he's also one of its several stars. But nothing connected with the entire production thrilled him as did the revival of that amateur night.

WEEKLY HEALTH TALK

As Compiled by the Medical Society of Pennsylvania.

Most persons associate tuberculosis with youth.

Havoc caused by tuberculosis in later life has not been thoroughly realized.

The highest death rate due to tuberculosis at any one age period in the year 1940 was that of males between 55 and 65 years of age.

With increase in the length of life in this country we now have 20 per cent of the population over fifty years of age.

While tuberculosis is relatively common in later life, its detection is difficult.

Many cases of tuberculosis in older people are not diagnosed early enough because so few have X-rays of their chests.

Surveys for tuberculosis have been mainly of young people in school or industry.

It is difficult to secure consent to examine older people.

They seem to pay less attention than young people to declining health, which they may regard as inevitable.

They are fearful, too, of a result and change in their individual way of living.

The x-ray may be used more freely as its operation becomes less expensive.

Most cases of tuberculosis in the aged, will be diagnosed early.

THE ALTAR OF SACRIFICE

By Ruth Taylor.

When I went into the great church on Fifth avenue, where I go to pray for the solution of any problem that harasses me, it was early on D-day.

Even then I was not alone in the Gothic stillness. Worshipers were before me, kneeling in silent prayer.

I looked up at the great stained glass window that glowed with living blue as the morning sun struck it. It seemed like a promise of the eternal beauty of an earned peace.

As I knelt, there came to me the realization of the fact I had not fully sensed. To see the promise of beauty and peace—I had to look across the altar of sacrifice.

So it was on D-day. So it is today. The altar of sacrifice is not always an altar of marble. It may be—it is, in many homes—the altar of the human heart, giving sadly but freely its most cherished possessions.

Only as we are willing to sacrifice ourselves for the right that right prevail. Our boys overseas are giving their all for us for a belief that tyranny, oppression, persecution are denials of the Fatherhood of God and the Brotherhood of man in which—no matter what their creed—they all believe. They are not divided by any creed. They are not separated by class, or national background. They are just our boys fighting for us and for our way of life—that creed of democracy which holds that all men are created equal and are endowed by their Creator with certain inalienable rights—to life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness.

They are giving their all—their futures, their hopes, their dreams, and their lives. Those who come back will not be the same for they have passed through the refiner's fire. They will have become so accustomed to death that it will be hard for them to face life. They will have laid their youth as a sacrifice upon the altar.

It is for us rather who remain at home to see that that sacrifice is not in vain—that beyond the altar may be built the mosaic of beauty—the deep blue of peace, the clear rose of a world free from war—a mosaic through which the sun may ever freely shine.

Let us pray as we all did on D-Day and let us also resolve in our hearts that this time the sacrifice will not be in vain.

FSA LOANS TO VETERANS.

Farm operating loans have been made to several hundred honorably discharged service men who had no other source of credit to finance food production, the Department of Agriculture announces. These Federal Security Administration loans are enabling veterans of the present war to lease or buy farm land and to obtain all the necessary equipment and facilities needed to start their farm operations.

Farms, ranches or other non-institutional employers of seasonal workers may now apply for allotments of rationed foods to feed workers hired for 60 days or less, the Office of Price Administration announces. Previously allotments were granted for 30 days or less. Farm workers employed for more than 60 days must continue to turn in their ration points to their employers for food served that requires points.
