Miss Marjorie Evans of Ebe

HERE is no pain like the hurt of longing . . . the constant, yearning pain you feel for someone far away.

It is a proud pain and you-brave girl -you bear it proudly.

You do your work . . . and buy your bonds . . . and give your blood . . . and help a thousand ways.

But when the night grows still and you are all alone . . . there comes again the wish that there was something extra you could do, some special way in which you could reach him, bringing him the small comforts, the extra little, human things that he expects from you.

Tonight . . . when your door is closed s.. when you can almost see him standing there before you . . . think of the Red Cross. For the Red Cross is still the Greatest Mother in the World, now as always doing the sort of things you'd want to do yourself for him.

Wherever he may be . . . in camp or overseas . . . in the desert's thirsty dust or slogging through the mud . . . the Red

Cross will bring him comforts, solace and a helping

The blood you gave so willingly will get to him...thanks to your Red Cross. He will sleep between sheets when he goes on leave . . . in a rest be wounded, the Red Cross worker will sit beside his bed . . . sent by you to do the things you would do for him yourself if you were there.

If he should be a prisoner of war . . . your Red Cross will send him every week, if humanly possible, your carton of real American food ... Yes, and real American cigarettes and tobacco.

Of course, you have given before, generously and with a willing hand. And you expect to give again. But this year dig deeper...give more than you ever have in the past. Give for the boy who isn't in your arms. This year dig deep and be glad. For wherever he is

The RED CROSS is at his side
