

SOME GLIMPSES AND COMMENT ON STATE OF NATIONAL AFFAIRS

Specter of Unemployment Puts Great Shadow Across the Country's Capital.

Washington, D. C.—The specter of unemployment throws a long shadow across the nation's capital. It is deepened with uncertainty of how soon war in the Pacific may end, the slowness of reconversion, the fact that Congress has gone home for the summer without enacting any preparedness legislation.

The fears now apparent throughout the Capital are brought into sharp focus by the report of the Senate War Investigating Committee, which says: "Should the war in the Pacific end soon, it will find us largely unprepared to overcome our domestic problems. Reconversion will not have progressed far enough to absorb the manpower which will suddenly be released."

"Government work programs will not have been established. Unemployment on a large scale will ensue. Once this occurs, it creates an inertia which is very difficult to overcome and will seriously interfere with achieving prosperity."

The Senate Committee wants the Office of War Mobilization and Reconversion to take full charge of getting the country back into civilian production, to issue orders instead of unimpeding disputes. It wants the army to trim down war production, to release men whose services are essential to an early reconversion of industry.

It told Surplus Property Board to get a move on, to clear surplus materials out of the way now while they are still useful. Meanwhile, Congressional hearings on the Murray Full Employment Bill are postponed until next October. The bill's supporters predict it will pass, but the real fight is expected to come over crippling amendments now believed certain to be offered. A group of "liberal" Senators, headed by Claude Pepper (D-Fla.) has announced its intention to work for this and similar "progressive" economic measures.

cialists are indignant at the slowness of reconversion. Some charge privately that the Army is putting the brake on reconversion; that the military are attempting to control the civilian economy. One responsible official said the promised 25 per cent cut-back in war production within three months after V-E day actually is only 9 per cent.

All the signs indicate that Truman's civilian cabinet officers will demand a crackdown on the Army when the president returns.

Interior Secretary Ickes demands Army furlough of 30,000 coal miners to produce fuel for both the U. S. and Europe. Without it, he says, this winter will be the coldest of the war here, and unless 6 million tons of coal are shipped to liberated Europe, those countries will experience "rioting and bloodshed."

Office of Defense Transportation claims that Army failure to cooperate with civilian agencies in the redeployment program, and to release needed railroad workers is the main reason for the homefront transportation tie-up. Agriculture Secretary Anderson is burned up over what he says is Army failure to cooperate in getting coconuts oil back from the Philippines, and failure to aid relief agencies in making equipment available for greater food production and more even food distribution in Europe.

A bi-partisan group of Senators proposes that the cost of one day of war be devoted to the ten year program of maternal and child health services. Known as the "Maternal and Child Health Act of 1945," the bill supplements the Murray-Wagner-Dingell proposal for expanded health insurance and social security.

Charges by the American Medical Association that the Murray-Wagner-Dingell bill would lead to "regimentation and totalitarianism" have been answered by Dr. Ernest P. Boes of New York, head of the Physician's Forum. He accuses AMA of attacking the whole concept of social security, and declares that millions of persons could not meet the expense of voluntary hospital and sickness insurance plans offered by AMA, as substitute to the Murray-Wagner-Dingell bill.
